Alta Loma boy shot in police chase

UPLAND — Upland police shot and critically wounded a 17-year-old Alta Loma youth after he attempted to run a vehicle roadblock in a high-speed chase this morning.

Wayne Edward Saddlemier, 17, of 9185 Old Ranch Road was listed in "very critical" condition at San Antonio Community Hospital with shotgun wounds to the shoulders and back of the head.

The youth was shot, according to Upland Police Chief Dave Wessely, after he led officers in a high speed car pursuit from Sinclair Avenue and Seventh Street north through the city to 20th Street and Wilson Avenue, where he tried to drive around a road block.

During the pursuit, said Wessely, Saddlemeier hit a police car driven by Sgt. Gary Hart and drove through a busy hamburger drive-in stand at Mountain Avenue and Arrow Highway in an attempt to evade officers.

Just before the shooting, Saddlemeier turned into a rough field at 18th Street and Mountain Avenue and went cross-country to Wilson Avenue, the police chief said. Saddlemier, in a small Datsun pickup truck, saw the police roadblock manned by officers Luis Morales and Steve Wilson at 20th Street and made an attempt to go around their police cars blocking the road, said Wessely.

As Saddlemier turned to go around the police cars, Wilson, holding a shotgun, and Morales, holding his service revolver, opened fire. The shotgun blast shattered the pickup truck's rear window, and Saddlemier was hit. The small pickup continued another 25 to 30 yards before it crashed into a ditch on the south side of 20th Street.

Wessely said the pursuit began when Sgt. Hart saw Saddlemier's truck travelling at a high rate of speed at Seventh Street and Sinclair Avenue. Hart turned on his red light and siren when the youth failed to pull over. When the youth still failed to halt, other Upland police units were called into the pursuit.

Wessely said at least five Upland police officers were involved in the pursuit. Hart said that once he managed to get in front of the truck and tried to force it off the road. The driver of the truck began driving into Hart's police car, forcing Hart to halt. At another point the truck, travelling at a high rate of speed near Mountain Avenue and Arrow Highway, went through a service station driveway, turned and went through a field coming out through a driveway in the drive-in restaurant and back onto Mountain Avenue.

Wessely said that the officers involved in the incident are now completing their reports and the case is still under investigation. Wessely said he believed that the officers "had to use extreme force in the incident because lives were endangered."

Doctors at the Upland hospital told police that they were immediately unable to operate to remove the bullet from Saddlemier's head because it had lodged in a sensitive area of the skull.

It was the second time in a year that Upland police have had to resort to gunfire to end a high-speed auto chase. In the previous shooting, a 17-year-old driver fleeing officers was slain, but a coroner's jury agreed that the officers' action was necessary. Morales also was involved in the earlier case.

'Won't sacrifice allies'

Nixon to press for end to arms race with Russ

BRUSSELS (UPI) — President Nixon told America's European allies today he will push for progress in stopping the nuclear arms race during the Moscow summit and at all times will keep the NATO alliance's interests in mind.

"We will never sacrifice the interests of our allies to achieve agreements," White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler quoted Nixon as telling leaders of 14 other members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization during a two-hour closed meeting.

Nixon said that during his week-long summit beginning Thursday with Soviet leader, Leonid Breshnev he would seek a ban on underground nuclear weapons tests, but said there were many roadblocks in the way. U.S. officials have said a full, permanent agreement would not come during the Moscow talks.

Ziegler said Nixon covered the whole range of U.S. relations with European allies and his summit during the closed session. Nixon pledged the United States will maintain its military strength in Europe and would not reduce forces without a similar move by the Soviet Union.

Following the closed meeting, Nixon signed a declaration reaffirming commitment of the NATO alliance, had lunch with King Baudouin and held private talks with several European leaders.

Nixon appeared fit and free of any hindrance from the phlebitis —swelling of the veins in his left leg —that struck him during the Mideast visit two weeks ago. He even walked the half mile from his residence to the palace where he had lunch without any notice of a limp.

Ziegler said today Nixon was not experiencing any pain although the leg was still swollen. He said Dr. Walter Tkach was checking the President daily and was satisfied with the progress. For his part, Tkach indicated he wished the President would take it a little easier.

In Moscow, women in white scarves and orange smocks took up shovels, hoses and lawn clippers today to cut grass and patch potholes in streets in preparation for Nixon's arrival Thursday. He will hold his first meeting with Breshnev in the afternoon.

In separate sessions today with European leaders, Nixon met first with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, then with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Italian Prime Minister Mariano Rumor.

Nixon told the NATO leaders that "the alliance stands stronger and more united than ever before," and then in public smiled as he signed the new agreement that NATO General Secretary Joseph Luns said assures all member countries of being "stronger and more secure."

Hot weather will linger for five days

The unseasonably hot weather that has kept afternoon temperatures in the high 90s all week is going to continue through the weekend, the weatherman says.

A low pressure area that was expected to move in today from the coast has now "fizzled," according to the weatherman and Pomona and other valley areas can expect hot days and warm nights the next five days.

Today's high temperature is expected to reach 96 degrees and will be compounded by smog — a problem that caused the San Bernardino Air Pollution Control District to call a second stage alert Tuesday in Upland.

The ozone level there reached .48 parts per million and remained at that point for several hours.

The Los Angeles Air Pollution Control District forecast an ozone reading of .26 ppm in Pomona today. The highest zone reading in Pomona Tuesday afternoon was .20 ppm.

Health advisories are called by APCD officials after the ozone level reaches .20 ppm. The public is asked to limit unnecessary driving and to curtail strenuous physical activity in these areas.

During these first stage episodes, such as most valley areas experienced Tuesday and expect again today, the APCD asks that children and especially the elderly and those persons with repiratory problems — remain indoors and that unnecessary driving be curtailed.

RECORD MARIJUANA HAUL

Part of the largest marijuana seizure in history is unloaded at San Ysidro port of entry. Five tons were found in tanker trucks Sunday, leading to discovery Tuesday of 37 more tons in a Mexicali warehouse.

Agents seize record pot haul--42 tons

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — U.S. and Mexican officials have confiscated 42 tons of marijuana —the biggest seizure in history —with the discovery of a basement piled with tons of the weed which was to be smuggled into the United States in asphalt trucks to foil potsniffing government dogs.

The seizure was announced by the Drug Enforcement Administration Tuesday.

The previous record was 28 tons, found in Culiacan, Mexico, in March, 1973, by Mexican investigators, said John Bartls Jr., the DEA administrator.

The marijuana would have been worth $22.8 million in street sales in the United States, he said.

Investigators had been working on the case since January and learned two weeks ago that a big marijuana shipment was to cross the border in supposedly empty asphalt trucks, he said.

The crossings were planned for San Ysidro, Calif., which is just south of San Diego and across the border from Tijuana, Mexico.

The trucks are owned by an American firm but leased to an operator in Mexicali, Mexico. They carried asphalt and tar from the United States into Mexico, and supposedly returned empty.

Dogs specially trained to detect the odor of marijuana routinely examine vehicles crossing the border at San Ysidro —the busiest international crossing in the world.

But the strong odors of tar and asphalt masked the smell of marijuana from the dogs, the DEA said.

Inspectors looking into the supposedly empty tanks of two trucks Sunday morning found 5 tons of marijuana, and arrested two Mexican truck drivers. They were identified as David Gonzales Valle, 32, of Tecate, and Alejandro Lomas Reyes, 43, Mexicali.

Officers said they led U.S. and Mexican investigators to a warehouse on the outskirts of Mexicali. Beneath the floor was a secret hiding place with 37 tons of marijuana, processed and ready for shipment in 22-pound bricks which were stacked six feet high in the cavern, authorities said.

Settlement expected in nurse strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Negotiators in the 19-day Bay Area nurses' strike ended a two-day marathon bargaining session early today and called a news conference, apparently to announce a settlement.

"The strike is theoretically settled and all that's left is for the rank and file to vote," said a medical source. He indicated that full hospital staffing by nurses would probably take place by Monday if the settlement is approved.

There were no details of the pact available immediately.

Mandatory editorial signing bill sought

DOVER, Del. (UPI) — The Delaware Senate has passed and sent to the governor a bill requiring all newspapers in the state to sign their editorials.

The bill would require editorial writers for all papers to sign each opinion piece.

"We want to find out who's lying. If the editorials don't actually lie, they imply lies and we want to know who writes them," said state Sen. Dean C. Steele, one of the bill's strongest supporters.

In tune with times: school drops string program for guitars

SANTA FE, N. M. (UPI) — School officials have replaced their violin instructing program with something that's a little more in tune with the times — the guitar.

School officials dropped the school's string program last year because of a lack of interest. Principal Joe Casados said the most students ever enrolled in the violin program totaled 15.

Casados said 248 students had already enrolled for the guitar course.

Who said honesty dead these days?

LOGAN, Utah (UPI) — A Logan couple stepped up to a Post Office stamp machine and dropped in a dime.

For the next several minutes they stood agog as the machine spewed forth 10-cent stamps. When it finally quit, it had dispensed 990 stamps in a single roll.

The couple detached one stamp, laboriously rolled up the rest and stuffed them into a mailbox with a note explaining what happened.

"We wish they'd left their names so we could thank them," said Postmaster J. R. Rowberry.

The machine had a big "Out of Order" sign Tuesday.

Calley goes back to Leavenworth

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI) — Former Army Lt. William L. Calley, his attempt to overturn his conviction for the My Lai murders now in the hands of a federal judge, was to be flown today to the Army prison at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

Calley has been housed in the military stockade at the base while U. S. District Judge J. Robert Elliott listened for the past two days to an appeal to have Calley's conviction and 10-year sentence for the murder of at least 22 civilians at the South Vietnamese hamlet set aside. Elliott's ruling is not expected for several days.

French youth vote

PARIS (UPI) — The National Assembly lowered the voting age from 21 to 18 Tuesday night, giving the vote to 2.6 million French youths.

The assembly passed a bill that had already passed the Council of Ministers.

Available in August

Lab's new antirabies serum provides painless treatment

BERKELEY (UPI) — Cutter Laboratories has developed a federally-approved serum which can provide painless treatment for rabies.

Cutter officials said Tuesday that the serum would be available to the public in August but only in limited supply.

The serum will eliminate the need for persons bitten by rabid animals to undergo the painful and dangerous "Pasteur treatment," which involves a series of inoculations with a serum taken from horses. Many persons suffer an adverse reaction from the horse serum.

Cutter's serum comes from human blood, and there is no adverse reaction, company officials said in a statement.

They explained that the blood comes from those who have rabies antibodies in their system. They said the reason the serum would be in short supply was because there were only a few of these persons.

The antibodies develop in the bloodstreams of those who have recovered from rabies itself. Others with the antibodies are those who have been vaccinated against rabies prior to exposure.

James Goodspeed, Cutter's marketing manager for plasma fractions, said most of the sources for his company's serum were veterinary medicine students at the University of California at Davis.

Those who have undergone the "Pasteur treatment" can also be used as donors, Goodspeed said.

He said the serum was called "Hyperab" and has been approved for sale by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

Four in family found shot to death in their beds

SAN LEANDRO, Calif. (UPI) — Apparently without reason, four members of a well-regarded middle class San Leandro family were shot to death in their beds.

"It's very bizarre," Police Lt. Robert Wilson said Tuesday, remarking he had "never seen anything like this."

"They were one of the nicest families around here," said a neighbor, Joyce Figueira, 31.

Police discovered the bodies because of a telephone call by a worried employer who couldn't understand why Edward Blaiser, 43, had not shown up for work.

All the victims had been shot in the head with a small-caliber gun but the weapon could not be found, although detectives discovered a pair of plastic gloves with cartridges wrapped inside about 75 yards from the one story frame house.

Blaiser was a civilian employe at the Alameda Naval Air Station and his wife, Patricia, 37, worked as a secretary for the Pacific International Express Co.

The other victims were their children, Robert Blaiser, 15, and Deborah, 13.

Another son, Kenneth, 16, was working at a summer job in Modesto, neighbors said.

Although three Oakland policemen live next door to the Blaiser home, they reported they didn't hear any shots.

Before the bodies were found, five teen-age friends of the Blaiser children had called at the house but had not noticed anything unusual.

One of those youths, Randy Kern, 14, went inside the house to borrow a raft, saw a telephone off the hook and replaced it without noting anything out of the ordinary.

He said he had heard the telephone's dial tone and replaced it on the hook because he "figured they didn't want to be disturbed."

New Chino school budget would up taxes 78 cents

CHINO — Property owners in the Chino Unified School District may face a 78-cent hike in their property tax rates during the next fiscal year.

School board members Tuesday night approved a tentative budget which boosts the property tax rate from the present $4.44 to $5.22 per $100 assessed valuation.

The tax rate, however, reflects a 10-cent community service tax and a boost from 10 to 16 cents in the district's state repayment loan.

Funds derived from the community service tax can be used for various recreational programs such as playground supervisors and swimming, to help finance the delinquency prevention program, and the school's counseling program.

The budget also proposes spending $11,018,069 next year. This compares to $10,104,992 for the current year.

This reflects, however, an 8½ per cent salary increase for the district's 800 employes. A breakdown shows $6,976,799 earmarked for certificated personnel, $1,534,334 for classified employes, plus $918,898 for employe benefits.

Other proposed expenditures include: Books, supplies and equipment replacement, $571,772; contracts, services and other operating services, $477,126; and sites, buildings, books and new equipment, $355,256.

Officials reported some spending increase is due to "start up" costs for the district's new year-around school program. This has created a need for neu equipment, they explained.

They also noted the budget allows for a three per cent enrollment increase. The district now has 9,174 students.

During board discussion, trustee Al McCombs was critical of a 100 per cent increase in the clerical cost in the business office. District officials said this was partly caused by a changeover to the data-processing program.

He also urged the board to protest a $6,000 penalty the state is charging the district for the nondevelopment of three school sites.

McCombs noted one site is being used by the district's continuation school. "I believe we should oppose the payment," he said. "We are planning for the future education of our students."

Officials explained that the state levies a tax on these sites which aren't developed within a five-year period.

The board approved the tentative budget to meet a state requirement that this be presented to the county's superintendent of schools office by July 1.

Trustees will hold a public hearing on July 16 for its publication budget.

Five rob woman who stopped for 'injured' youth

POMONA — A young Glendora woman was robbed by five young men after she stopped her car in a dimly-lit area to help one youth she thought had been injured.

The victim, Ruth R. Kaler, 21, told police she was eastbound on Campus Drive near Ridgeway Avenue when she came upon four young men standing over a fifth youth, who was lying in the street.

She said the four were yelling, "He's been hit," so she stopped to help. When she did, one of the four put a revolver to the back of her head and the supposedly-injured boy jumped to his feet.

Miss Kaler, a Cal Poly student, was forced from the car and it was ransacked by several of the men. They took her purse and car keys, but left the keys up the street where she found them after the five fled.

The victim told officers her purse contained no money but carried her credit cards, driver's license and other papers.

Child, 2, beaten; couple arrested

POMONA — A couple was booked on suspicion of child beating Tuesday night after a boy, 2-year-old Gabriel Quiroga, was examined at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Veronica Rose Sanchez, 22, the child's mother, and Eugene Raymond Gomez, 23, her companion, 2125 S. Powers St., were arrested at the hospital. Gomez was booked additionally on a charge of the illegal use of drugs.

The child suffered facial and head injuries and possible burns on his back and stomach. His buttocks were completely black and blue, police said. They quoted Mrs. Sanchez as saying Gomez told her the boy fell from a rocking chair while she was at work.

Gabriel was admitted for treatment and was reported in fair-to-good condition there today.

Third quad quits diet of oxygen

POMONA — Kevin Michael Struve, the oldest of quadruplets born June 12 to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Struve of Claremont, today became the third to rely entirely on regular room air for his breathing needs.

His sisters, Kristina Lynn and Tonya Marie, have been off an oxygen diet for several days now.

Only Todd Allan still receives small amounts of oxygen.

In manslaughter case

Reluctant witness arrested in court

POMONA — A reluctant witness, called during the manslaughter hearing here of two young Montclair men, was arrested himself on the same charge as he left the courtroom Tuesday.

Richard Ryan Rademacher, 18, of 10030 Geneva Ave., Montclair, was booked by Claremont Detective Robert Brinegar and later released on bail. Rademacher was a passenger in one of two cars, which allegedly were being raced in Claremont, when Edith Elser Harrison, 82, was killed.

Miss Harrison's car and the car driven by Bruce Alan Banker, 18, collided at Claremont Boulevard and Ninth Street. Rademacher was in the other car, driven by Terry M. Chambers, 19. It narrowly missed Miss Harrison's car, according to officers.

Banker and Chambers appeared Tuesday before Judge Robert C. Gustaveson for preliminary hearing of the manslaughter charge against them. During the hearing, Melissa M. Dawson, 17, of 9778 Columbine St., Montclair, testified she had no recollection of the accident or events preceding it. Police said Miss Dawson was in Banker's car and was injured in the collision.

Then Rademacher was called and was advised of the possibility of self-incrimination. He was given time to consult with a public defender and when he returned to the stand he declined to testify under his constitutional rights. Court was recessed at that point and Rademacher was arrested as he left.

The hearing was to resume today with Rademacher and other witnesses under orders to return.

Jury picks begin for stabbing trial

POMONA — Jury selection began Tuesday in the murder trial in Pomona Superior Court of Johnny R. Thomas, 23, and Roger L. Cox, 29, accused in the stabbing March 19 of J. W. Clements.

The trial, before Pomona Superior Court Judge Carlos M. Teran, was expected to take two to three weeks. The pair failed at a previous hearing before another judge to have removed from the information special allegations which could result in a possible death penalty upon their conviction. They also failed to get separated trials.

Authorities charged that Clements, 40, was slain during a robbery. His body was found along a trail in the Live Oak Canyon area between La Verne and Claremont.

Tentative budget has low tax rise

CLAREMONT — City Councilmen Tuesday night could not agree on how to finance a new headquarters fire station, but unanimously adopted a $3,891,992 tentative budget which reflects only a 3.13-cent property tax hike, instead of a 13.74-cent increase depicted in the original budget.

Councilman Gene Block's motion to use $50,000 in revenue sharing funds pinpointed for a new fire headquarters for other capital improvements this next year ran into opposition from Councilwomen Eleanor Cohen and Claire McDonald, but Councilman Frank Hungerford and Mayor Bertye Smith backed the motion.

Block said that the city could realize $9,000 more in revenues this next year in business license fees and retail sales taxes than originally budgeted. That amount added to the $50,000 saved by the revenue-sharing money would mean a slash of more than 10 cents in the proposed 1974-75 tax rate of $2.3491.

Block said he felt the voters would go more favorably for a $300,000 bond election for a new fire station if the council could show that the tax rate has been kept down for several years.

Hungerford agreed, and suggested that the council save money on the tax rate.

Mrs. Cohen, sworn in as new councilwoman Tuesday night, said that she campaigned that there would be a hefty city tax rate next year, and that residents expect it.

"What if a bond election fails?" she asked.

City Manager Keith Mulrooney recommended paying for the new fire station entirely out of revenue sharing.

Block reminded fellow councilmen that four of them, except Hungerford, in the past four months had campaigned for election, and had told constituents that they would favor bond elections for major improvements such as a fire station.

The city has adopted the seismic safety element of its general plan and has ordered a seismic study of its antiquated fire station headquarters, due sometime in July.

Block said that whether the city decides to join a valleywide fire protection district or go it alone the city still needs a new fire station.

Supervisors clear way for new park with trails

SAN DIMAS — Equestrians and hikers in the near future will have a three-mile-long wooded park area to enjoy with trails stretching from Bonelli Park to Covina.

The Board of Supervisors Tuesday adopted a final environmental impact report and authorized the acquisition of five parcels of land that will clear the way for the creation of the Walnut Creek County Park.

The proposed park, that has one of the few year-round streams in the entire Los Angeles Basin, will be left mostly in its natural wooded state for the enjoyment of equestrians and hikers.

Present plans call for the park trails to be hooked up with a 29-mile trail system from Whittier Narrows to Bonelli Park in San Dimas. Long-range plans are to have trails that will begin at the ocean and wind throughout the San Gabriel Mountains.

The park land is located along the alignment of Walnut Creek from Interstate 210 to the beginning of the improved Walnut Creek Flood Control Channel at the end of Charro Street in Covina.

Plans for the park have been under discussion with the county since the mid 60s.

Casting plates stolen

ONTARIO — Thieves entered the storage yard of the Alum-Alloy Co., 614 S. Bon View Ave., and stole 37 aluminum casting plates valued at over $10,000, according to police reports.

The theft from the metal foundry was reported Tuesday morning by the owner of the company David W. Howell, 35. Howell said the aluminum plates used for casts in making ornamental metal supports and decorations, were valued at $275 each. Howell said the plates were somewhat hidden in the storage yard and the thieves must have known their exact location.

Howell said he believed that the plates were stolen, not for the price they might bring from a scrap metal yard, but for sale in Mexico where they could command a high price.

Howell said the plates weigh about 25 to 30 pounds apiece and range from 2 to 3 feet long and 1 to 2 feet wide.

Sign posts with less resistance scheduled

ONTARIO — There will soon be a little more "give" in sign posts and light standards in a six-mile area long the San Bernardino Freeway between the Los Angeles County line and Vineyard Avenue.

Light standards will be placed on bases designed to give way without resistance if struck and signs mounted on steel posts will be placed on wooden "breakaway" supports, said officials.

These measures are being taken to protect occupants of out-of-control vehicles which leave the freeway and hit the posts.

Some $10,000 to $12,000 has been allocated for the project, which involves signs and light standards at the interchanges of Vineyard, Monte Vista, Central, Mountain and Euclid avenues and Fourth Street.

For the most part, said highway officials, this will involve installing new "anchor" bolts which snap on impact. Crews will also grade around the concrete bases so out-of-control vehicles won't hit these.

The local project is part of a continuing program along state routes. It was recently funded by the California Highway Commission.

Rotary president retires; 2 clubs richer by $5,000

POMONA — Harry McBeth bowed out of his year's term as president of the Rotary Club in a grand fashion Tuesday evening.

At a ladies night event held at Griswold's restaurant, McBeth presented checks totaling $5,000 to representatives of boy-serving organizations.

Judge Carles Teran, president of Pomona Boys Club, accepted a check for $2,000 to be used for new construction at the clubhouse on S. Garey Avenue.

A $3,000 check was presented to Bill Wilkinson of Old Baldy Boy Scout Council for improvements at the Holcomb Valley Boy Scout Ranch near Big Bear Lake.

McBeth announced that during his year as president the club had contributed more than $8,000 to worthwhile projects.

There was an exchange of lapel pins by McBeth and Bill Bradley, who will serve as president for 1974-75. Bradley presented McBeth with a gavel and plaque.

Key, scrawled note, skeleton solves mystery

British cloak, dagger man missing since 1971

LONDON (UPI) — On a frosty October evening in 1971, Sir John Peregrine HennikerHeaton, a former British secret agent with a Van Dyke beard, told his wife he was going 'round to his cricket club for a drink.

The veteran of years of cloak-and-dagger espionage in the Middle East stepped out of his Victorian-style villa in the quiet suburb of Ealing, slipped into the enveloping chill and vanished.

Police today reported a startling development in the case of the missing British baronet. It had all the makings of a great whodunit.

On Sunday, Henniker-Heaton's son Yvo was rumaging about the house in search of a box to store some papers. He came across a lone key pushed into a desk.

Yvo twisted the key in the lock on his father's smoking den and the door eased open for the first time in three years.

Inside on a bed, Yvo found his father's skeleton. An empty bottle lay nearby and an apparent suicide note was found in the pocket of his suit, police said.

London newspapers said the bottle had contained whiskey and that the suicide note, addressed to his wife, said he could not carry on and asked her not to make very much of his funeral.

Scotland Yard officials said today the discovery ended one mystery that touched off an international intelligence and police search when HennikerHeaton vanished.

But they said the discovery also posed some additional questions about the bizarre circumstances of his death.

During the bloody years of the birth of Israel, HennikerHeaton was in charge of British security in Palestine and the target of at least four assassination attempts by bombs blamed on Jewish underground groups.

When his wife, Lady Margaret, reported the disappearance, all of Britain's security agencies and Interpol were called in to investigate.

The family said at the time they believed he was the victim of Arab or Israeli guerrillas.

Secret service agents followed up tips he was murdered because of his continued Middle East connections, that he had been kidnaped and that his body had been dumped in chains into a flooded gravel pit near London.

The trails led nowhere.

Police sources said today a preliminary autopsy had failed to establish the cause of death. A coroner's inquest was ordered for Thursday to begin the formal inquiry into the mystery of the locked door.

Scotland Yard officials raised some key unsolved points in the mystery:

—Why was the ground floor room at the rear of the house not searched in the beginning? Police said they had been told at the time that the house had been combed from top to bottom.

—With Lady Margaret, their son, a boarder and three dogs living in the house how did the presence of the body remain undetected, especially in the period immediately after death?

Protect citizen privacy--Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford, fearing errosion of personal privacy, called today for prompt and broad federal legislation restricting use of government computer-stored information on individual citizens.

"I believe this is one of the most serious problems we face today —and one of the least realized," Ford said.

He said future abuse of computerized data "threatens to open the most personal affairs of each of us" without swift new safeguards.

Divorce granted in Switzerland

It's all over for Liz, Burton

SAANEN, Switzerland (UPI) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor obtained a final divorce from a Swiss court here today, ending her sometimes stormy and always eventful 10-year marriage to actor Richard Burton.

The Burton's personal and financial adviser and friend, New York lawyer Aaron R. Frosch, said there was an amicable financial settlement between the couple and that Miss Taylor keeps all her jewelry and her 249-ton yacht.

The movie stars announced earlier this year that they would end the marriage that culminated a nearly public courtship during the filming of the multi-million dollar movie, "Cleopatra."

The final breakup after several temporary estrangements followed a series of public fights and reunions spanning two continents.

"Mrs. Burton today obtained a final divorce from the court of the county of Bern sitting in Saanen," Frosch said.

"A financial arrangement was made amicably between the parties," he said. "Mrs. Burton retains all the items she owned prior to and during the marriage, including the jewels given to her by Mr. Burton. The yacht is entirely hers.

"The child Maria is an adoptive child and custody as always was given to the mother with very liberal rights of visitation.

"Mrs. Burton also reques ed that Mr. Burton have the right to visit her other children."

Frosch said Miss Taylor attended the final 15-minute hearing today. Burton was not present and was not required to attend, he said.

The final divorce papers will be issued in about two months time, court officials said.

The judge was Johann Friedli.

The Burtons own large share portfolios, property in Switzerland, the United States and Mexico, and an art collection.

Record California budget approved by negotiators

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — After a night-long session, legislative budget negotiators early today approved a record $10.2 billion-plus spending proposal for the coming fiscal year, the largest of any state in the nation.

The budget proposal, which was a compromise between versions passed by the Senate and Assembly, now returns to both houses for final passage and submission to Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Included was about $254 million to cover state worker benefits and an 5.3 per cent pay hike, $104 million for park and wildlife enhancement land purchases and $7,500 for an official portrait of Reagan to be displayed in the Capitol.

Among the largest additions to the budget was about $93 million for acquisition of recreation lands, much of it made available by voter approval in June of the parks bond issue, Prop. 1.

An official budget total was not available from tired members of the joint conference committee, who labored through the 3-inch-thick document from 8 p.m. until just after midnight to reach agreement.

Made a general

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John S.D. Eisenhower, son of the late president and five-star general Dwight D. Eisenhower, rose only to the rank of colonel in nearly 20 years of active army duty.

Tuesday, he made it to general, when the Army Reserve gave him his first star. His name appeared on the list of reserve colonels confirmed as brigadier generals by the Senate.

Eisenhower, whose son David married President Nixon's daughter Julie, quit the army in 1963 after 19 1-2 years, giving up a pension he would have earned had he stayed in one day more than 20 years.

Sworn in BALTIMORE (UPI) — Cathy Douglas, the wife of Associate Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, was sworn in Tuesday as an attorney to practice before the federal bar in the District of Maryland.

Mrs. Douglas, 31, already had been admitted to practice before the District of Columbia bar.

The golden touch

DETROIT (UPI) — Bob Naimy is inflicted almost as badly as Midas was. He must buy anything made of gold.

"I'll make an offer on anything gold," said Naimy, who is president of the Prestige Coin Co. of Walla Walla, Wash. He is in Detroit this week with nine of his buyers looking for gold, silver and U.S. stamps from the 1930s or before.

"I do it for profit," he said. "It's strictly a dollars and cents proposition."

His company supplies coin shops and investors nationwide.

Naimy offers 250 per cent of the face value for silver coins minted before 1965 and uot-of-circulation gold coins.

Trudeau returns

ASBESTOS, QUE. (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau paid a memory-filled visit Tuesday to an asbestos plant where, as a young radical, he once exhorted strikers to fight for their union rights.

Trudeau's visit to the Johns Manville asbestos mill was his first in 25 years, since one of the most bitter strikes in Canadian labor history.

The nine-month-long strike in 1949 helped spur the growth of the labor movement in the province.

"It's a memorable day. There have been tremendous changes," Trudeau said as he toured the mill, the largest in the western world. He spoke with workers and tried out a 100-ton ore moving rig.

Out of hospital

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Marlon Brando was released Tuesday from UCLA Medical Center, where he had been hospitalized since last Friday with a torn throat.

Brando, 50, fell ill from eating spoiled fish at his home in Tahiti. Violent vomiting tore his esophagus. A hospital spokesman would not comment on a trade paper report that Brando "almost died." His personal physician, Dr. Robert Kosticheck, said Brando was "in perfect health" when he was released.

Writer to wed

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — Screenwriter Sterling Silliphant, 55, who won an Academy Award for writing "In the Heat of the Night," took out a license Tuesday to marry Catherine Tian Mayo, 22, a South Vietnamese actress.

They were to be married today in a fashionable restaurant by Superior Court Judge Laurence J. Rittenband. It will be the fourth marriage for Silliphant and the second for Miss Mayo.

Murderer given death penalty in $10 robbery

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — Ronald L. Sims, 23, who shot a man in the back with a shotgun at point blank range in a $10 holdup, Tuesday became the second killer sentenced to be executed since California put the death penalty back on the law books.

A jury of 10 women and two men, after two days deliberation, ruled that the killing was "willful, deliberate and premeditated and committed during the course of a robbery."

That is one of the offenses requiring the death penalty under the new execution law which went into effect Jan. 1, designed to meet the Supreme Court objections to the penalty as previously applied.

The first death penalty was imposed June 13 in San Bernardino on a 35-year-old transient found guilty of killing a young boy and girl in a lovers lane slaying near Victorville.

Sims was convicted of the murder of John Sullivan, 58, who worked at the Hamburger Hamlet in West Hollywood.

AEC signs Egypt, Israel atomic deals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commisssion signed provisional contracts today to provide nuclear fuel for power plants President Nixon promised Egypt and Israel.

Nixon's offer of reactors, components and fuel for Israel and Egypt has aroused congressional controversy over ensuring that they do not use the technology to develop nuclear weapons.

Today's AEC announcement said supplying the nuclear plants and the fuel depended on successful negotiation of an agreement for cooperation between the United States and the countries.

Boy shot with mother's gun back from the dead

TORRANCE, Calif. (UPI) — William Horton, 4, shot himself in the aorta with his mother's pistol. The odds against his being alive are about 100-to-one, but he is.

When his mother brought him into Harbor General Hospital a week ago, doctors thought he was dead. The bullet had gone through the aorta, the main artery from the heart, and punctured his intestines in seven places.

He had stopped breathing, his eyes were dilated and his abdomen had filled with blood.

Dr. Michael Peter said he had seen about 10 similar cases in the past six years, all involving adults. All of them died.

The hospital's emergency trauma team stopped the flow of blood and replaced the small boy's entire blood supply and within 15 minutes his heart started beating on its own.

William's brain was without oxygen for 15 to 25 minutes, and loss of oxygen for only eight minutes can cause permanent brain damage, Peter said.

He was unconscious for two days and could not breath on his own.

One day a nurse noticed that instead of staring blankly, the boy's eyes were following her around the room. When she spoke to him, he nodded.

"When we rushed in, he looked up and said 'I want to get out of here,'" said his mother, Mrs. Larry Horton of Carson.

"He has responded to questions and his memory seems good. We feel certain there is no (brain) damage and he should recovery completely," Peter said.

William shot himself with a pistol his mother kept in her purse because she as carrying $500. Now, she said, the thousands of dollars the hospital bill will cost has wiped the family out financially, and both she and her husband have lost their jobs "But we have son, and that's what counts."

THEY THOUGHT HE WAS DEAD

Four-year-old William Horton is visited at Harbor General Hospital in Torrance by his mother, Mrs. Larry Horton and Dr. Michael Peter. The boy shot himself while playing with his mother's pistol. A surgical team worked over William for hours and literally brought him back from the dead.

Dogs getting in their licks

Putting the bite on city dwellers

CHICAGO (UPI) — A New York City public health specialist says dog bites are increasing at an alarming rate in metropolitan areas and urges people to think twice before buying a large, aggressive dog as a pet.

"Perhaps a dog is man's best friend, but for the city-dweller, dogs also pose a hazard to health and safety," Dr. David Harris, associate director of Mount Sinai Hospital, said in a preventive medicine seminar Tuesday at the annual meeting of the American Medical Association.

Harris said the increase in dog attacks on humans coincides with heightened public concern about street crime and burglary.

"It is the opinion of most specialists involved with animal affairs that there is a strong trend at present towards the ownership of large and aggressive dogs in cities and suburbs and that this is linked to the use of dogs as deterrents to crime," he said.

Five years ago, he said, telephone directory yellow page ads were for friendly dogs, Now they emphasize guard dogs from such companies as "The House of Lethal Dogs" and the "We Bite Dog Academy."

Reported dog bites have increased from 30,000 in 1965 to about 40,000 last year, and authorities believe many more go unreported. Harris called the situation an epidemic that is not recognized by most public health officials.

The hazard is greatest with children. He said a recent study in New York showed that more than half the bites involved people under 20. Three out of 10 bites to youngsters under 10 were on the face, where the greatest threat to injury and disfigurement exists.

He said "guard and attack training, especially partial training, often makes a dog unsuitable as a pet because such training puts not just the would be criminal, but also the neighbors, the family and the master himself at increase risk of dog bite injury."

Salt always valuable

Salt has been valued since ancient times; the word salary, meaning "pertaining to salt", is derived from the fact that soldiers of the Roman Empire were paid either with lumps of salt or an allowance to buy salt, giving us the expression that people "are not worth their salt."

On how to eat your humble pie

By ERMA BOMBECK

Dick Cavett was recently underwhelmed with his award of an Emmy because it wasn't presented on the telecast. The talk-show host was quoted as saying, "If you couldn't find time in your two and a half hour telecast to announce it, I can't find room for it in my living room."

Have a humble pill, Dick. Here, take one of mine. There is probably something contradictory about bragging about your humility, but sir, you are in the presence of the Master.

As a child I won a spelling bee. When it was announced, my name was misspelled. It came out Steve. Things never got better. I come home from the beauty shop after four hours and my husband says, "Where have you been?"

I once sat in Johnny Carson's green room so long waiting to go on a maid picked me up, dusted my legs and tried to empty me. She thought I was an ash tray. Following the publication of my second book, I received a gracious note from Mrs. Hubert Humphrey addressed to "Edna."

Some people have egos that are fed every three hours. Mine died two years ago following an incident in Washington.

Wanting to impress my sons with their nation's capitol, I arranged a sightseeing trip to Washington. Because my column is syndicated, I was told certain privileges were extended to the press, notably the VIP tour of the White House.

After several high level phone calls and a trip to pick up the tickets personally, I briefed my children in the hotel room before we left. "We're being given special VIP treatment," I said cooly, "now if Mrs. Nixon should happen to come out and say, 'I understand Mrs. Bombeck is on the tour. Where is she?' I will come forward and look down at my shoes absolutely humiliated at being found out. When we are singled out and asked into their personal living quarters, don't fiddle with your noses or talk with food in your mouths. Understood? And remember, we can't stay too long. We must push on so we can get into the Senate. Got it?" They nodded.

As the cab stopped at the White House (thank God, he didn't use a siren), I saw a mob that looked like Woodstock after a rain. "Poor devils," I said to the boys, "I wonder how long they've been waiting." We whipped through the gates and over to the guard where I flashed my VIP tickets.

"End of that line Lady," he said motioning toward the crowd.

Standing at the end of the line (which was two blocks into Virginia), my son asked, "What do I say again if we're asked for lunch?"

"Oh, shut up!" I said.

Medical students still awaiting scholarships

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some 2,000 medical students are anxiously awaiting word from the government on whether scholarships will be available for them next fall.

The truth is, a government official told UPI, the confused situation may not be resolved until after the students return to classes next fall.

The money they are waiting for is considerable, averaging over $9,200 an academic year but sometimes topping $11,000 a year for a student attending a high-tuition medical school.

In return for this government stipend, the students have to agree to work a minimum of two years in U.S. Public Health Service hospitals, clinics, prisons, Indian reservations or other PHS shortage areas.

With the waning of the military draft, Congress enacted the scholarship program in 1972 to provide new incentives for PHS to attract young doctors.

But because of delays in Congress in financing the program, and in the administration in implementing it, the first 400 scholarships were just awarded this month to cover retroactively the portion of the school year completed since Feb. 15.

Now, said James Kissinger of the PHS personnel office, applications are piling up for next year's awards. However, the legislation expires June 30, new money is needed for the next school year, and the program's future is tied up in health legislation now being considered by Congress.

Kissinger said that "most" of the 2,000 applications were from students who could qualify for awards if money were available.

Mrs. Louise Anderson, who fields telephone calls from anxious applicants, said at least four of the callers said their future medical careers depend on getting the scholarships.

"A number of them (callers) are in tears," she said. "A good many are extremely angry.

U.N. project hopes to end dreaded 'river blindness'

LONDON (UPI) — One of the world's most tragic infectious diseases is scarcely known to the general public. The British Medical Journal says its name is even unfamiliar to some doctors.

Yet onchocerciasis — the dreaded "river blindness" of Africa —afflicts some 20 million victims in that continent and in parts of South America and Yemen in the Middle East.

It would be hard to exaggerate its effects.

In some areas of Africa it causes blindness in at least 20 per cent of the adult population. It produces itching so severe it is often confused with scabies. It attacks the pigment of the skin so savagely doctors have mistaken it for leprosy.

Onchocerciasis is transmitted by bloodsucking blackflies which breed in rapidly flowing rivers. The disease has led to the desertion of many fertile valleys, damaged the economic development of many of the already impoverished savanna regions of Africa.

One of its worst manifestations —presbydermia —gives its victims a prematurely aged appearance. Individuals and sometimes entire communities are ostracized by their neighbors as a result.

Now a 20-year, $120 million program described as "the most detailed and far-reaching plan ever drawn up to control a disease" has been prepared by a team sponsored by the U.N. Development Program, the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization, the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development and the World Health Organization.

The aim is the eradication of onchocerciasis from the entire Volta River basin —700,000 square kilometers (437,500 square miles) of seven adjoining countries; Dahomey, Ghana, Ivory Coast, Mali, Niger, Togo and Upper Volta. There are approximately 10 million people in the area, of whom about one milliion have the disease and at least 70,000 are blind or have seriously impaired vision.

The key to the operation is the reduction or elimination of blackfly by application of chemical larvicides to the rivers in the basin.

Many problems must be overcome. One of them, the Medical Journal said, is the simultaneous application of the insectide throughout the numerous river systems in such a way as to prevent reinfestation.

That will involve helicopters and small aircraft using techniques developed in the control of blackfly in North America where it is a nuisance not a major threat to the health of multitudes.

Marijuana charge for pair dismissed

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — A Superior Court judge dismissed charges Wednesday against two men caught with 110 pounds of marijuana at a U.S. Border Patrol checkpoint last December on grounds the seizure was unconstitutional.

Judge E. Scott Dales said the decision could have a "far reaching effect," it represented a flat reversal of a ruling he made a month ago involving contraband seized at the same checkpoint, at Temecula, Calif., about 40 miles south of here.

Dales said he made his reversal in light of a May decision by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco that "warrantless searches at fixed checkpoints by the U.S. Border Patrol without probable cause are unconstitutional."

He said the decision means that authorities will not "be able to pull cars over in Temecula (and at checkpoints at Oceanside, Calif. and Garden Grove, Calif.,) and just search them for no reason. What they'll have to do is do all their searching at the border or the equivalent" of that.

Art Lester, attorney for the defendants, Michael John Seamans, 27, and William Gordon Winsett, 29, both of Chico, Calif., was pleased with the impact the decision would have and said it was the first of its kind in California state courts.

"...As I see it," Lester said, "they cannot stop a car unless they had believeable information the contraband or illegal aliens were in the car or the vehicle had entered the country from Mexico."

But border patrol officials said they are not abiding by the rulings because they are in the process of appeal.

The rulings do "not deter our authority to stop and interrogate; just to stop and search," said Richard Batchelor, deputy chief patrol agent for the Chula Vista sector, which covers five Southern California counties.

Batchelor denied the Border Patrol randomly stops cars.

"We stop them on founded suspicion," he said.

Guatemala hits oil after 18-year quest

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — Guatemala announced Monday night it had entered the world petroleum producers club with the nation's first oil strike, a result of an 18-year search by a score of multinational companies.

President Carlos Arana Osorio, flanked by Mining and Petroleum Minister Jorge Godoy, broke the news in a special national television broadcast called only six days before he is to leave office and hand the presidency to his successor, Kjell Laugerud Garcia, elected last spring.

Arana Osorio said the nation's first producing well, called Tubelsalto after the mountain area where it is located, is expected to produce 3,000 barrels daily and supply 15 per cent of the doomestic oil consumption of Guatemala, a Central American country the size of Tennessee.

The well was drilled in northern Guatemala only two miles from the Mexican border by a mostly German-financed company called Recursos del Norte.

Recursos del Norte has already announced plans to drill five more wells in the same northern Guatemala area, and other companies are expected to be encouraged by the first strike.

The Guatemalan well is not far south of the rich oil fields of the Mexican state of Chiapas.

The strike came only months after guatemala relaxed a petroleum law to increase incentives for foreign investors.

There are now 25 multinational companies looking for oil in Guatemala, many of them operating here since 1956.

Though scientists and speculators have said for years that there was petroleum in Guatemala, the Tubelsalto well is the first concrete evidence.

Reds stop pen pal escape try

BERLIN (UPI) — Amelia Meissner, a 20-year-old San Franciscan, was so sure her plan to get her East Berlin pen pal through the Communist wall last October would work that "we didn't even say goodbye."

"I smuggled a U.S. Army uniform into East Berlin piece by piece under my own clothing," she said this week. "We knew the border guards do not check Western allied soldiers. We shaved off Juergen's beard and gave him a crew cut.

"Juergen put on the uniform and tried to walk through the Friedrichstrasse crossing point for foreigners to Checkpoint Charlie. But he was arrested by border guards immediately."

Her pen pal, Juergen Vicari, a 24-year-old stagehand, was sentenced last month to six years imprisonment, said Miss Meissner (2387 Funston Ave., San Francisco.)

"Perhaps we were naive, but we were sure it would work," Miss Oeissner said.

"As Juergen headed for Checkpoint Charlie, I took the train back to West Berlin and rushed to Friedrichstrasse to be there when he came out.

"But when I arrived I was told an American soldier just had been arrested. Of course it was Juergen."

Amelia and Juergen were pen pals for three years before she came to Berlin on a visit last year. They fell in love and plotted to get Juergen past the anti-refugee wall built to keep East Germans in.

"Juergen always wanted to get out," Amelia said. "He wanted to live in freedom, to have freedom to travel, to speak freely without fear of spies. Meeting me gave him another reason to flee."

Prison black group gets go ahead

VACAVILLE, Calif. (UPI) — The California Medical Facility has decided to allow the resumption of the prison's Black Cultural Association, which played a key role in the formation of the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Superintendent T. Lawrence Clanon recently said the group's meetings had been suspended with the arrest of two nonprisoner members on charges they killed Oakland, Calif., School Superintendent Marcus A. Foster in November.

The SLA kidnaped Patricia Hearst, daughter of newspaper executive Randolph A. Hearst, in February. Six SLA members, including escaped convict Donald DeFreeze, were later killed in a gunbattle with police in Los Angeles.

Several civilian members of cultural association visited the prison regularly to meet with black inmates. Included were murder suspects Joseph Remiro and Russell Little.

"With a stronger administrative setup, I believe the (BCA) program or some parts of the program can be resumed," Clannon told reporters.

In time, he said, the association will be permitted to have outside members again. "It will take a couple of months to work out the program," he said. "It's quite possible the organization will keep the same name but there is some difference of opinion about that."

Vegetarian diet can be adequate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A vegetarian diet can be adequate nutritionally if it includes a variety of plant foods and certain nutrients, says the National Research Council's committee on nutritional misinformation.

In a four-page report, the committee said judicious mixing of lower-quality plant protein foods can provide about the same nutritional value as high-quality animal protein foods.

Milk and eggs should be added, especially for preschool children, to provide enough calcium, iron, riboflavin and vitamin B12. The committee also said fortified soybean milk or a vitamin B12 supplement is necessary for total vegetarians.

Russ missile effectiveness in Arab-Israeli war exaggerated

LONDON (UPI) — Military experts assessing last year's Arab-Israeli war have begun to change their minds about the effectiveness of Soviet missiles introduced in the fighting.

Initially the experts predicted the missiles would greatly inhibit jet fighter-bombers as well as tanks on future battlefields. Talk of "the death of the tank" as a fighting weapon filled the air.

Now the experts say the importance given to Soviet surface-to-air (SAM) and anti-tank missiles probably was exaggerated by overwhelming Arab superiority, and by the desperation tactics employed by the Israelis, in the first stages of the conflict.

The Institute of Strategic Studies (ISS), an international independent group which studies defense affairs, made the latest in a series of revised assessments now appearing in military journals around the world.

While the war was going on, the Institute said, battle indications were that "tanks are all too vulnerable to missile attack, from which there is little defense." But the tone changed in its Strategic Survey 1973, issued in May.

The later survey placed more emphasis on the importance of the Arabs' radar-controlled anti-aircraft guns and the RPG7 rocket-propelled grenade —an advanced bazooka-type weapon often encountered by the Americans in the Vietnam War.

"The Soviet anti-tank missiles were effective, but they are certainly no more so than NATO weapons and are less good than some being procured in Europe," the survey said.

Air Force magazine, another military journal, said many Israeli tank losses came when tanks charged past well-concealed Arab anti-tank positions and then were picked off from the rear.

Air Vice-Marshal Stewart Menaul, director-general of the Royal United Services Institute for Defense Studies, said in an interview he doubted that any army would ever again launch a tank assault before suppressing the opponent's anti-tank defenses.

"This could make a completely different story," he said.

In the air, recent assessments say the Arabs had nothing to compete with American-made Phantoms. U.S.-made M60A1 tanks were said to have performed better than the new Soviet T62 tank. The 105mm guns on British-made Centurians and American-made M48 Pattons also outranged the Soviet T54 and T55 tanks, which formed the bulk of the Arab armor.

Most journals credited the American "smart bomb" Maverick, introduced by the Israelis toward the end of the fighting, as the most successful weapon of the war. A U.S. Congressional Committee said even Egypitan President Anwar Sadat stressed its importance.

Post-war assessments also give the Soviet ZSU23-4 antiaircraft system—four radio-controlled guns on a tracked vehicle—equal billing with the SAMs.

SAM2 and SAM3 missiles, fired in prodigious numbers, accounted for only a few of the 105 aircraft and two helicopters lost by Israel in the 1973 war. SAM6 and SAM7 missiles and the anti-aircraft guns were more successful.

An American Congressional Armed Forces Committee headed by Rep. Samuel S. Stratton said SAMs of all types only knocked down nine Phantoms during the war. Anti-aircraft fire claimed an equal number.

The Defense Review and other journals said even these losses could be misleading. In the initial battles, the Israeli air force was launched against Arab ground forces without first suppressing anti-aircraft defenses. Their planes also did not have normal electronic counter measures (ECM) to baffle missile guidance systems and confuse anti-aircraft radar.

Air Force magazine said most Israeli aircraft were knocked down in the first three days of the conflict, when they were used without regard for losses to halt the Arab advance. They were successful, but the price was high.

Mona Lisa smile? she's pregnant, says physician

LONDON (UPI) — A retired London physician it is his considered medical opinion that the Mona Lisa is pregnant.

Dr. Kenneth D. Keale, a lifelong student of Leonardo da Vinci and his work, wrote in Nursing Times magazine, the Mona Lisa "probably portrays a pregnant woman whose smile betrays her secret satisfaction and whose full rounded face and figure and beautiful unjewelled hands reveal to a diagnostic eye the endocrine and electrolyte changes of pregnancy."

"It is important to realize that Leonardo was not sexually attracted to women, although he had a great fascination for their maternal characteristics," Keale said.

Stuffed pigeon to make her last flight in memorium

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Martha the pigeon will soon be winging her way home, not by flap of her own wings but by jetliner in hope her appearance might turn the tide for the California condor, the whooping crane and the Utah prairie dog.

It's too late for Martha. She is stuffed and mounted, having died almost 60 years ago at the age of 26. When she was gone there weren't any more like her nor will there ever be again. She was the last of the species known as the passenger pigeon.

Martha spent most of her years in the Cincinnati Zoo, where she was born in 1888 and where she died on Sept. 1, 1914.

At one time billions of passenger pigeons inhabited the East. Considered quite tasty as well as decorative on women's hats, they were killed off during the 19th Century. The extent of the mass extermination was not discovered until it was too late.

Now zoo officials and other friends of conservation are making a memorial to Martha in hopes other species now on the endangered list won't become extinct like martha's.

Robes remain

SYDNEY (UPI) — Attorneys in New South Wales will continue to wear "Batman" robes and curly wigs.

A move by Jim Stap robes an curly wigs.

A move by Jim Staples to end the wearing of legal robes failed at a meeting of the state's Bar Association.

Solzhenitsyn:

Nixon weak, advantage to Russ, allies

NEW YORK (UPI) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn says the Soviet Union and its allies are enjoying an unprecedented superiority over the West partly because President Nixon is "in such a weak position.

The exiled author also predicted in an interview that Communist rule will grow harsher in the Soviet Union, and he criticized Western newsmeen for what he called failure to report aggressively from the Communist nations.

Solzhenitsyn was interviewed by Walter Cronkite of the CBS network at his home in Switzerland.

"Never before has the superiority of the Soviet Union and the Warsaw Pact over the countries of NATO been so great as it is at the moment," Solzhenitsyn said.

"...never before has the President of the United States been in such a weak position as he is at the moment. He is now so weak that he does not have the strength to dictate to the Soviet Union."

Speaking as Nixon prepared for his third summit meeting with the Russians, Solzhenitsyn said that agreements on West Berlin and nuclear arms restrictions are being violated, and "your President does not have the sufficient strength to demand proper control of these treaties."

He also claimed —"according to the latest estimates of your experts" —the Communists hold superiority in nuclear weapons and missiles.

Solzhenitsyn drew a contrast between newsmen in Western Europe —"they pursued me everywhere" —and their counterparts in the Communist nations.

"What is strange is when this Western press gets to Moscow or to Eastern Europe, or even to China, for example,' Solzhenitsyn said.

"Here there's nothing sacred for them. They go at presidents, military, ministries and so forth, but there, if some miserable Bulgarian policeman tells them not to photograph a church, they stop. Or the Red Guards ... If they hang up some kind of leaflet and a correspondent comes up to read it and some wretched little Red Guard tells him not to read it, the correspondent turns and walks away.

"If the press has such freedom in the West then it must carry the same kind of freedom when it gets into the East," Solzhenitsyn said.

Some writers do pursue the news aggressively in the Communist nations, he said, but they are soon thrown out.

Asked about how it was in Russia before he left, the writer said, "The situation in the Soviet Union is getting worse."

He said Soviet authorities have this month "let out from there the last people who were getting in their way so as to reduce the pressure."

"In the future it won't be so easy to get out of there. And then they will be persecuting people more."

He added, "There is now a new concept in the Soviet Union —a friend of Solzhenitsyn is a criminal."

Overactive kids' drug curb urged

CHICAGO (UPI) — A psychologist urged physicians today to go slow in giving overactive children drugs to calm them because research shows youngsters become apathetic, listless and fail to improve scholastically.

It has been estimated that at least four out of every 100 grade school children are labeled hyperactive, but Dr. Herbert E. Rie said this is becoming a catch-all term regardless of cause for any child who can't be tolerated by teachers or parents because of his disruptive behavior.

"It is then defined as a medical problem and typically the first step taken is to try to control the behavior through medication," Rie said at a news conference before speaking at an American Medical Association panel on the subject.

Rie, professor of psychology at Ohio State University, said the drugs commonly used are stimulants such as amphetamines or methylphenidate, which for some unknown reason slow hyperactive children.

"The assumption is therefore made that once kids are calm, or attentive, they are going to be able to perform school tasks better and they are going to achieve more and all sorts of good things are going to happen," he said. "In our own research, we found there is absolutely no effect on actual scholastic achievement."

In a report on obesity at Monday's session of the AMA annual meeting, Stanford University psychiatrist Albert J. Stunkard outlined a four-point behavior modification program which he said has produced a 50 per cent improvement in helping overweight people lose unwanted pounds.

Dr. Stunkard said the revolutionary psychological approach avoids crash and fad diets and does not restrict food intake or tell people what to eat. Instead, it is designed to slowly make it more difficult for people to overeat by making it obvious what they are doing wrong.

One of the key aspects of the program is to have the overweight keep a detailed diary of what they eat, when, where, and how they feel when they eat. Other aspects of the technique are removing eating temptations, slowing people when they eat and rewarding them for following the regimen.

Stunkard said the program usually takes off a pound a week for 10 or 20 weeks. Most important, he said, is that people don't regain the lost pounds when therapy stops.

Rie, in discussing hyperactive children, said physicians should never prescribe stimulants to treat these youngsters until the child has been evaluated psychologically and scholastically. He said the doctor should refrain from giving drugs until other means of treatment have been tried.

Rie said the original definition of hyperactivity means the problem is caused by brain or nervous system abnormalities. But he said children often are labeled hyperactive when their problems are not medical but a result of environmental problems.

"If children are hyperactive for those reasons then all we really accomplish in utilizing the drugs is once again to obscure those causes of hyperactivity," he said.

Stockpile gas being used in allocations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gasoline from government stockpiles is being used to keep states at their designated June allocations, according to Federal Energy Administrator John C. Sawhill.

He said 4.4 million barrels were drawn from the 200-million-barrel stockpile to meet June allocations of at least 90 per cent of June, 1972, levels.

Because of short supplies, Alaska, Texas, Tennessee, Washington and Minnesota will get more than 100 per cent of their 1972 base allowance, Sawhill said. He said that where necessary, his office would step in in other areas to assure the public of adequate supplies if state officials could show a need.

Rattles & straws

Don't delete the expletives

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

Many political figures, judicial types and representatives of the assorted media would like to get their hands on the original "Watergate tapes," before secretaries had fallen asleep and busy Oval Room gremlins had edited.

One man would love to bend an ear to the untampered electronic ribbons for a unique reason. He wants to hear all of those deleted expletives.

Dr. Reinhold Aman, professor of medieval German literature at the University of Wisconsin, is a conoisseur of curses, an expert on expletives, a specialist in swearing. He can damn in 50 languages.

(When I was a young man with folly on my lips, I learned how to say "I have no money" in 11 different languages. I needed Dr. Aman's multilingual expertise when I was arrested for taking pictures of Adolf Hitler in Vienna in 1938. Fact. When a burly storm-trooper pulled me out of the tree and let loose a torrent of German, all I could reply was "I have no money." Not a big help at the moment.)

But back to Aman. "I personally swear," he says, "because there are so many things that bug me. That's why everyone swears." (I doubt if many people swear because of the things that bug Dr. Aman, but let it go.)

The professor sees profound psychological values in occasionally ripping out a thundering (expletive deleted) or a searing (expletive deleted) or a pungent (expletive deleted). Pressure valve type thing, right? When your wife crumples the fender on the car, a roaring (expletive deleted) may keep you from hitting her in the eye. If your kid breaks your favorite putter, an explosive (expletive deleted) may save him a broken arm.

Herr Professor from Milwaukee speaks wisdom. Enraged at a recalcitrant power mower—but conscious that my anguished (expletive deleted) would echo the length of my quiet suburban street—I hauled off and gave the balky machine a resounding kick. I was wearing tennis shoes at the time, and spent the rest of the afternoon getting two broken toes x-rayed and reset. An outraged (expletive deleted) would have saved me a week hobbling with a cane.

Dr. Aman has compiled dictionaries of billingsgate and published works on world profanity patterns. He feels that most people don't appreciate the finer points of cursing, as the American GI who uses more four-letter words than commas in an average sentence, a mindless, monotonous litany of little literary or psychological merit.

Politics aside, I seriously doubt that Dr. Aman would learn anything new from the untarnished Watergate tapes. From the tone of the unexpurgated portions of the record, there was little wit, inventiveness or imagination at work in the Oval Room, and I doubt if the erased obscenities and vanished invectives would have contributed much to Dr. Aman's anthology.

5 tons of mail to paper pulp?

ROME (UPI) — The district attorney's office said Thursday it is investigating a report that five tons of undelivered mail were turned into paper pulp.

A newspaper said a private delivery service working under contract to the post office department disposed of five tons of printed matter by taking it to a paper mill, where it was turned into pulp.

The Italian mails have long been under attack as slow and unreliable.

The Postal Ministry said this week there was a backlog of 70,000 or 80,000 registered and 120,000 or 130,000 unregistered letters at Rome's main railroad station alone.

The doctor comments

Pernicious anemia needs lifetime care

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is pernicious anemia and what can be done for it? I am 72 and have been doctored for high cholesterol. Have been getting B-12 shots each month. Do I have to continue these shots indefinitely? I did try pills, but they had no effect. Can anything else be done? I'm on a low-cholesterol diet.

DEAR READER — You are talking about two different problems. Your high cholesterol level and pernicious anemia have nothing to do with each other.

Pernicious anemia occurs because of a disorder of the stomach. That may sound strange to you, but your stomach forms a substance called "intrinsic factor." This substance flows with your food into the small intestine. It is used there to enable the B-12 in your diet to be absorbed into the blood stream. If you don't form intrinsic factor in the stomach, then you won't be able to absorb B-12.

Along with the failure of the stomach to continue to form intrinsic factor, there may be a decrease or absence of normal stomach acid formation. Just why a person's stomach quits forming intrinsic factor isn't known. It rarely occurs before age 35 and becomes more common thereafter. For some reason people with type A blood who are of northern European extraction are more likely to have the problem.

The lack of B-12 affects all of the body cells. It is a very important vitamin. It's main role is in the formation of DNA, the vital chemical in the nucleus of the cells essential to their ability to reproduce. This is why it causes an anemia. Did you know that your body forms three-million new red blood cells every second? This means you need a lot of B-12 to help form all those red blood cells. And, if you don't have it you develop an anemia.

The aneima is only part of the total picture. It shows up early because we need to produce more new red cells than about any other cells in the body. Digestive complaints are very common, too. The cells that line your small intestine are normally replaced every three days. If you don't have B-12 this process is also affected.

The nerve cells are also affected if you don't have enough B-12. This can cause degeneration of important nerve cells you need for function of the muscles in the legs and normal sensation. Mental changes can occur, too. This is why it is so important to correct a B-12 deficiency.

The only satisfactory treatment of real pernicious anemia is with B-12 shots. Some people can use liver shots that contain B-12. And, you have to take them indefinitely or for life. Just keep in mind that the body's entire regeneration process is dependent upon this vitamin and without it you will cease to have normal regenration process that are essential to keeping your body young or in good repair.

Being on a low-cholesterol or low-fat diet will not affect your need to take B-12. You can do both very handily.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on cholesterol, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Cholesterol" booklet.

3 school groups accept 5 per cent raise; teachers reject same offer

POMONA — Three employe groups in the Pomona school district Tuesday accepted an offer of a five per cent pay hike effective July 1, with the stipulation that an additional 3 per cent hike will be granted if and when additional state monies become available.

A similar offer was rejecetd by the Certificated Employes Council (CEC) of the Associated Pomona Teachers (APT).

CEC and the school board agreed to go to mediation. Schools Supt. Robert E. Wentz said at school board meeting that the California Conciliation Service had been contacted and that mediator Tom McCarthy would be present at the next session with CEC. That meeting will be held at 1:30 p.m. Thursday.

Employe groups accepting the 5 per cent offer were the Pomona Administrators Association, Chapter 14 of the California School Employes Association and Local 1080 AFL-CIO.

The school board granted Wentz the same five per cent increase, effective July 1, to his $33,550 salary. His contract, extended four years last year, was not extended this year.

The school board accepted the 1974-75 tentative budget which totals $24.8 million and reflects a 77.18 cent drop in the general purpose tax rate per $100 assessed valuation.

However, there are increases in the permissive tax rate, including a 10 cent increase in the earthquake safety building funds, which bring the cut in the total tax rate to 66 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

The tentative budget shows a drop in the total tax rate from $5.48 to $4.82 per $100 assessed valuation. It contains approximately $918 per pupil on projected enrollment, which administrators think will remain fairly stable. While the regular school enrollment continues to drop, it is made up by increases in adult enrollment.

The budget contains funds for the five per cent salary increases. It anticipates a four per cent increase in assessed valuation.

It cuts the general reserve fund to $25,000 and the reserve fund for appropriation for contingencies to $1.

"We may get raised eyebrows when this reaches the county," said Dr. Garrett C. Nichols, assistant superintendent of business services, "because that's not a usual pattern."

Ordinarily reserves account for two per cent or more of a total budget.

In other actions, the school board:

—Agreed to meet at 5 p.m. July 9, in the Education Center board room with City Council to hear a presentation on career education and review the joint city-school district recreation program. A regular school board meeting will follow at 7:30 p.m.

—Agreed to allow parents whose children attend Golden Springs or Armstrong elementary schools in Diamond Bar to transfer the children to the Diamond Poinnt Elementary School next year. Diamond Point has four empty classrooms. The other schools are overcrowded.

—Stated its intent to award an $831,913 contract to low bidder, W. D. Gott Construction Co., for construction of the Washington Elementary School project, subject to approval by the state.

It was announced that an executive session would be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. to further consider the naming of a person to the school board to replace Roy O. Day, who resigned June 10.

Income tax refund check finds rightful owner

In 1967 I was one of the owners of a company in Connecticut.

I filed my income taxes for that year and was expecting a return of approximately $350.

I have never been able to obtain the amount of money plus interest which is due me.

After many inquiries to the Internal Revenue Service I understand a check was sent to my former address in Burbank. Since I no longer live there it was returned to the IRS.

The people at the IRS are unable to locate the check. Can you help me get my money? —S.D., Claremont.

Your letter and the one we immediately sent to the Los Angeles district affairs office of the IRS were 5½ months old when we received a reply.

The answer, however, was good news. The IRS had verified the report you received that the check, including interest, had been sent to your old address and returned.

The check has been re-issued to you.

I am writing to see if you can get me the pattern I ordered or a refund.

The pattern was ordered a month and a half ago from Family Weekly at a Florida address. I sent a check for $1.50, which has cleared my bank.

Although I have written to Family Weekly I still haven't received my pattern. —J.C., La Verne.

Five days after we wrote to Family Weekly about your pattern you cancelled your complaint. You had received your order.

Then you received another pattern by air mail as a result of our inquiry.

You conscientiously returned the second package. Who needs two identical patterns?

I would like to know where I can buy book-bound albums for use in mounting photographs, documents, news clippings, etc.

In 1953 I bought eight of these albums manufactured by Hob-B-Bookcraft in Chicago. In 1965 I bought five more made by Educational Press in New York and called Book Shelf Scrap Book and Album.

All of these were the finest quality with excellent paper and thick, flat buckram covers.

They also had one tear out page for each permanent page to allow for mounted material.

I have written to both companies several times over the past three years with no response. The suppliers also have no information on these types of albums.

For the last two years I have checked several stationery stores, many camera stores, one wholesaler, book stores and one book binder.

Nothing but cheap quality, flashy looking and extremely expensive albums are supplied nowadays. —K. D., Claremont.

We asked in the valley and in the Los Angeles area for the type of album you want. Our luck was as nonexistent as yours.

Robert Framption, whose photographic studio is in your town, said he had gone through all his catalogues and watched the ads in his professional magazines but couldn't find anything resembling the albums you want.

"It seems that all manufacturers have been to the same schools as the automobile manufacturers and learned the value of 'planned obsolescence' as a way to build sales," he concluded.

Is there some way of finding the whereabouts of a lost relative who was last seen in 1915?

I was told that he was in the northern part of Missouri in 1969 but I didn't find him.

Any clue you might give me as to the proper procedure will be deeply appreciated. —Mrs. N. H., Pomona.

We sent you a list of tips last published in Action Line two months ago.

Long-missing relatives are getting to be a sizeable item in Action Line mail. It must be a phase of the nostalgia trend.

Appeals board for relocation recommended

POMONA — Creation of a seven-member Relocation Appeals Board is called for under a new city ordinance given initial approval by the City Council this week.

The board would hear appeals from such public bodies as the Community Redevelopment Agency concerning the eligibility for or amount of payments for relocation assistance to owners and occupiers of land acquired for public use.

The board after a public hearing would transmit its findings and recommendations to the governing body of the agency acquiring the property.

Members of the board, who would serve two-year terms, would be appointed by the mayor subject to council approval.

To avoid the expense of setting up an additional advisory group, the city is considering the possibility of appointing to the new board members of the Planning Commission and Redevelopment Commission.

YMCA outreach program to begin

POMONA — The Pomona YMCA Outreach Program's Day Camp for children 3 to 14 will start Monday at North San Antonio Eelementary School, 2181 N. San Antonio Ave.

Registration may be made by contacting the YMCA office at 623-6433 between 10 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Permission slips will be required.

The day camp will include learn-to-swim for 4 to 5-year-olds from 10 to 11 a.m., the same for 6- to 8-year-olds from 11 a.m. to noon, free swimming from 12:30 p.m. to 1 p.m.

There will also be sewing classes, art and crafts, movies, games and trips on Wednesdays.

Directors of the day camp are appealing to the public for the loan of sewing machines.

Workmen's compensation program

Montclair votes for self-insurance

MONTCLAIR — The City Council purchased $10 million of liability insurance coverage Tuesday and decided to self-insure its workmen's compensation program effective July 1.

Only three councilmen attended the special adjourned session. Mayor Harold Hayes and Councilman Nelson Gentry were on vacation.

The vote on the insurance actions was 2-0 with Tom McClure abstaining because of a possible conflict of interest in his role as an insurance adjuster and stockholder in the firm in which he is employed.

City Atty. Eugene Demchuk assured McClure that the action would pass because it represented a two-thirds vote of the councilmen present.

Jack C. George of Montclair, the city's insurance broker, presented the details of the liability coverage and workmen's conpensation. The adjourned session was initially to consider the city's handling a self-insurance program for both programs, but George recommended that liability be delayed until it becomes more marketable.

The $10 million coverage includes auto, general, personal injury and false arrest. The premium will be $40,609 from the time the new company picks up the expiring contract of the present carrier. The present underwriting firm handling Montclair is phasing coverage of cities out of its operation.

The coverage increases from $2 million to $10 million.

City Administrator Lauren Wasserman said that about $15,000 would have to be transferred from the contingency fund, but he foresaw no problem in meeting the need.

Tte workmen's compensation program will cost the city about $18,900 annually. That premium figure covers claim handling, excess insurance and safety engineering; and gives coverage of $5 million to handle specific incidents of $50,000 per incident.

The city has a lost payment fund of $105,000 that takes in legal and medical expenses in addition to the other items. For any claim in excess of that $105,000, there is an umbrella coverage of $250,000.

Lorin Saunders of Diversified Insurance Brokers, the consulting firm being used by George, told councilmen that the medical treatment would be set up after consultation with the city staff and council, and the insurance firm would then handle arrangements.

Gals on force have CHP wives unhappy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Wives of California highway patrolmen aren't too happy over a new program to admit women on the force.

CHP supervising inspector Ralph M. Walker said: "We've had more critical word from some of the officers' wives than from the officers themselves.

"A lot of them have said: 'I'm not going to have my husband working alone at night with some woman.'"

Shriners will have picnic

POMONA — The Old Baldy Shrine Club will open its summer program Saturday with a steak barbecue at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds Picnic Hill.

The program is open to Shriners.

Tickets may be obtained from club officers or purchased at the site. The cost is $6 per person. A social hour will start at 5:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7. Chet Wilkins of Ontario, the club's first vice president, is chairman of the fund-raising project.

City workers get pay hike

CLAREMONT — The City Council Tuesday night approved a general eight per cent across-the-board salary increase for all city employes, effective July 1.

But in addition the Police Officers Association signed a two-year agreement which includes an across-the-board increase in 1975-76 equal to a cost-of-living increase, with no limit, for the period of Feb. 28, 1974 to Feb. 28, 1975, plus another 1½ per cent.

Communications officers and police officers this next year will receive the eight per cent hike and an additional one per cent increase next March 1, 1975.

Detectives will get nine per cent, and the one per cent hike next March.

Officers also will receive an increase of $5.94 a month in dependency health insurance coverage, and an increase of $3 a month for clothing allowance.

Through their union, the firemen received an eight per cent increase, with an additional two per cent hike March 1, 1975, an increase in dependency health insurance coverage, and an increase of $5 a month for clothing allowance, effective July 1.

The major medical insurance coverage offered under the city's group health insurance plan will be increased from $30,000 to $250,000, with the cost of the increased coverage carried by the city.

The city also will provide $3,000 additional life insurance coverage for department heads and management and supervisory personnel, with department heads going from $25,000 to $28,000, and management and supervisory personnel going from $15,000 to $18,000.

Besides the general increase, various city employes such as assistant mechanics, groundsmen, maintenance men, and refuse crewmen received an extra one per cent hike, with a street sweeper operator getting an extra two per cent.

The council also approved a change in the employe sick leave policy. At present the amount of personal sick leave which can be used for either death or illness in the immediate family is up to five days a year.

The new policy states that no more than seven days of sick leave each calendar year may be taken because of a death in an employe's immediate family, and no more than three days each calendar year may be used in case of sickness or disability of a member of his immediate family.

The council raised City Manager Keith Mulrooney's salary from $25,020 to $26,775, and upped City Atty. William Bergman's pay $75 a month to $775.

Department heads were also granted new maximum salaries.

Rodeo planned for L.V. cyclists

LA VERNE — A bike rodeo and watermelon feed will be sponsored by the La Verne Recreation Department Friday beginning at 1 p.m. at Roynon School.

Each boy and girl is required to bring his or her bike well decorated to compete for prizes.

As a combined learning and fun experience, those participating will be involved in mechanical inspection, slow speed, figure eights, the slalom, board balance and the stop and proper signals.

Senior citizens complex coming before planners

POMONA — A proposal to build a senior citizen complex in north Pomona will be presented tonight to the Pomona Planning Commission.

Urbatec seeks to construct 110 one-bedroom units on five acres at 200 W. Drake St., near Garey Avenue and Foothill Boulevard.

The project, named Pomona Gardens, would seek low-income, elderly people as its tenants. The firm proposes to build three 2-story apartment structures, a single story community building, and four carports.

It will be constructed, financed and owned by private enterprise and will remain on the property tax rolls during its 20-year lease with the Los Angeles County Housing Authority, said the applicants.

Two elevators will serve all second-story units and 60 per cent of the units will have private balconies at the second floor or enclosed patios at the first floor.

The Planning Commission meets at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council chambers.

Other agenda items include:

Report on boarded up homes by Maggie O'Donnell, the city's housing coordinator; request by by the First Baptist Church to permit commercial coaches to be used as church school classrooms; and a request by Myron Jones to allow a dance hall, without alcoholic beverages, at 1475 W. Mission Blvd.

The real danger of impeachment

As the impeachment process grinds on, there is a considerable division in the public's reaction to the efforts to oust President Nixon.

California's recent primary has been considered a new high water mark in voter reaction against Watergate and against politics as a whole. The success, for instance, of Proposition 9 has been labelled an overwhelming demand by California voters for political reform.

That label can be disputed, because no real, coordinated campaign was mounted to enlighten the voters about the excesses and dangers inherent in the initiative. The title "Political Reform Act" was allowed to stand as a beacon to those who felt "something should be done."

The real question is: how deeply do the people of the nation really feel about impeachment, and do they understand its momentous implications?

New York Times writer William Safire made a very interesting point recently. He cited the fact that of the 11 Presidents who left office during this century, "10 left either feet first or with their reputation ruined." Consider the list:

McKinley—assassinated.

Theodore Roosevelt — turned office over to William Howard Taft, then ran unsuccessfully against him.

Wilson—collapsed and could not govern.

Harding—died in office.

Coolidge—chose not to run again.

Hoover—defeated by a reputation-ruining campaign.

Franklin Roosevelt—died.

Truman—chose not to run again.

Kennedy—assassinated.

Johnson—"like Truman, knew he had had enough."

Only Dwight Eisenhower completed his constitutionally allowed terms with reputation intact.

As Safire puts it, "most American Presidents close out their careers in three ways: by dying or being murdered; by being defeated; or by abdicating—refusing to run again because they knew they would lose.

"To these three means of ending political service," he continues, "we are now in danger of adding a fourth and fifth: impeachment and its inevitable companion, forced resignation."

Safire's concern is shared by many: what would the impeachment or forced resignation of Richard Nixon "for anything other than an indisputably 'high' crime like treason" do to the Presidency?

If such a precedent had been established, he ponders, would a move have been made against Hoover, Truman, Johnson? It would have failed, Safire reasons, but it would have been a strong way to hamstring a President. It would force a President whose popularity is waning to campaign more than govern.

Is the introduction into our political affairs of "a new and weakening element" worth it under today's given situation?

Many people, of course, say yes. But according to Safire, many others "who are neither sophists nor blind loyalists believe the presumed danger of not impeaching Richard Nixon is outweighed by the real danger of laying the knife of impeachment on the stage of very future presidential drama."

It is something to think about.

Thumbs down, not out

Hitchhiking is a year-round phenomenon in California, but with the influx of summer tourists it is bound to grow. And the California State Automobile Association is concerned.

CSAA Vice President and General Manager Alfred F. Frederico suggests "thumbs down on thumbs out." Hitchhiking, he says, is too great a gamble, especially for females. And it's no sinecure for drivers.

According to a recent California Highway Patrol study, "female hitchhikers are eight times more likely to be victims of crime than male, even though only one hitchhiker in ten is a female.

During the CHP's six month survey more than two thousands hitchhikers were estimated to have been victims of crime, half of them females. Most women were victims of sex offenses; the typical male was assaulted or robbed.

But the danger exists on both side. According to Frederico more than 800 motorists were assaulted or robbed by those they picked up.

Accidents, too, are the fate of many ride-thumbers and their benefactors. So, for safety's sake — both personal and traffic — CSAA urges a double negative: don't hitchhike, don't pick up hitchhiker .

JACK ANDERSON

New CIA Watergate link

WASHINGTON — CIA front man Robert Bennett, son of veteran Sen. Wallace Bennett, R-Utah, has conceded that he knew a White House burglary-bugging team was on the prowl in advance of the celebrated Watergate break-in.

A secret memorandum, written by his CIA case officer, states that the senator's son withheld vital information from the authorities.

In an interview with my associate Les Whitten, Bennett acknowledged he knew at least three days before the Watergate burglary that White House aide E. Howard Hunt and his second-story crew had plotted to break into the campaign headquarters of Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., and bug the place.

Instead of reporting the conspiracy to the police, Bennett kept his mouth shut. He also confided to his CIA contact that he had held back information from the original Watergate break-in.

Had Bennett informed the police of the plot to bust into McGovern headquarters, as the law requires, the subsequent Watergate caper would have been aborted and the course of history might have been changed.

This episode is another link in the mysterious CIA involvement in Watergate. We uncovered the first piece of the puzzle as early as April 7, 1973, when we reported that the CIA had "ordered its agents not to talk to the FBI about the explosive Watergate case." Thereafter, we published several reports about the CIA and Watergate, but the full story still hasn't been told.

The CIA used Bennett's public relations firm, Mullen and Company, as a spy front. On its payroll was none other than Howard Hunt, the Watergate conspirator, who came to the firm from the CIA and later moved over to the White House.

Bennett's nephew referred a Brigham Young University student, named Thomas Gregory, to Hunt who recruited the young man as a political spy. Gregory infiltrated into the campaigns of the President's two chief Democratic rivals—first, Sen. Edmund Muskie's staff, then Sen. George McGovern's staff.

But Gregory, a conscientious Mormon, became uneasy about his undercover work. He spoke to his bishop about it, who was concerned about the ethics of the job.

Then Gregory went back to Bennett and explained his misgivings. As Bennett related it, Gregory had been told by Hunt to work late one night at McGovern headquarters and leave a door open so the White House burglars could sneak in.

Gregory informed Bennett that Hunt was "reporting to someone higher up." Hunt's White House connections impressed young Gregory. Bennett said he also felt Hunt would do nothing illegal because "he had a full-time lawyer advising him." The lawyer, it turned out, was Hunt's co-conspirator, G. Gordon Liddy.

Bennett said he advised Gregory "to get out." The troubled student gave Bennett a letter of resignation to deliver to Hunt. Two days later, the Hunt-Liddy team broke into the Watergate.

Bennett was called in for questioning six times by the original Watergate prosecutors. He held back Gregory's vital information out of loyalty to the youth, Bennett claims.

But the prosecutors traced Bennett's long-distance telephone toll calls to Gregory. When Bennett learned this, he called the prosecutors and said: "Look, you've found Tommy. I'll tell you about Tommy."

This helped the prosecutors to break the Watergate case.

PENTAGON PUPPET: Once again, we have caught Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., playing Charlie McCarthy to the Pentagon's Edgar Bergen. Perched upon the Defense Department's knee, he opens his mouth and the military speaks.

A month ago, we reported that Hebert, the imperious chairman of the House Armed Service Committee, had presented to the House a report on military aid to Saigon which was copied, virtually word for word, from Pentagon testimony.

Now, the crusty, old congressional "watchdog" has done it again. Included in his committee report on the Pentagon's supplemental budget request is a section on the Navy's proposal for a permanent base on the Indian Ocean island of Diego Garcia.

It is practically a carbon copy of testimony offered by Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, the Navy chief, before a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on March 20.

Apparently, Hebert's only disagreement with the Pentagon is over grammar. He tinkered slightly with the Navy's paragraphing and punctuation. He also edited out some of Zumwalt's "I's" and "We's" and substituted a few "observers."

"I always knew Hebert and his boys were pushovers for the Pentagon," one of Hebert's committee members told us, "but I never expected them to prove it so decisively. I am ashamed to say that right now the committee is nothing but a rubber stamp for the Pentagon."

Footnote: Repeated calls to the committee for comment have not been returned.

RALPH NOVAK

A survival kit for presidents

A pair of young British writers, Raymond Hawkey and Roger Bingham, have published a new novel, "Wild Card," about an American president who faces turbulent domestic problems. To create a distraction, he organizes a team of scientists to create a simulated invasion from outer space and cause all kinds of havoc. Hawkey and Bingham finished writing the novel long before the current White House incumbent fell upon hard times, so the good timing of the release of their book and its relevance are only a happy coincidence for them. But as the old saying goes, if the carping criticism and insidious innuendoes fit, wear them.

So it may be instructive to consider some alternative plans of action for presidents in distress who might find the Martian invader route a little too far out. One might effectively district the populace, for instance, by:

Starting rumors that "Bridget Loves Bernie" is going to be revived on network television.

Nominating hints to the Washington Post that Henry Kissinger was not only responsible for the plumbers and wiretapping of government officials, but he caused the Civil War, the Great Potato Famine and Tom Seaver's slump, too.

Persuading the Pentagon to announce that radar installations were reporting huge swarms of 17-year locusts about to descend on the country, even if it was the wrong year for them.

Announcing gleefully that a new study of the White House tapes has uncovered a previously unreleased record of Enrico Caruso singing "Volare."

Running for Congress in California.

Arranging a marriage between King Timahoe and Lassie.

Using carefully calculated Keynesian economic policies and the services of the nation's top economists to create an inflation rate of 712 per cent per year while putting a freeze on wages, taking care to make certain that the price of milk rises to at least $26 a gallon.

Changing foreign policy to include plans to conquer Canada and Mexico and reclaim the Phillippines as an American colony.

Inaugurating a new weekly television situation comedy series called "All in the President's Family," with the real life cast spending a half hour making prejudiced remarks and acting paranoid.

Hiring an exorcist to work in the White House.

Pointing out that everything wrong with the country is in fact George McGovern's fault, since if he had known what he was doing he would have won the 1968 election and we wouldn't have any of these problems.

Impounding all copies of the Constitution on the grounds that the Founding Fathers really hadn't wanted it made public and only forgot to exercise their executive privilege.

Sending all sitting American judges to Arab countries to help them improve their legal systems.

And finally, one could cause all kinds of confusion by admitting absolute and unconditional guilt, pointing out that the devil had made one do it.

LETTERS FROM P-B READERS

As others see it . . . letters

Learn the language

In regard to the article about more bilingual classes for Spanish. Why? This is America and our language is English. When anyone from a foreign country comes here they should immediately learn the language and that begins with the adults so they, in turn, can teach the children and speak it at home. I'd rather see more classes in the adult education school.

My parents were from Poland and I grew up in a Polish community and they were so proud to be here they learned to speak English and we had to speak it at home. It was hard for them and all around and they spoke in broken English but proud of what they learned. By the time we went to kindergarten we spoke two languages.

There were all kinds of "D.P's" around (as all were called then), Polish, Hungarian, Italian and Russian and all in the same boat. We didn't call on the public school system to help us. We helped ourselves.

Here it seems the parents are here for years and don't learn English and want the schools to teach Spanish. I have no sympathy in this — I went through it. If you live in a country you learn the language. The parents must learn first. — Mrs. Lorraine Hildebrand, Diamond Bar.

Gossip for today

I see that the wheat farmers are delaying sales in an attempt to boost prices. This despite the certainty that the housewives of America are bound to arise, scream to high heaven and organize a wheat boycott.

But the wheat growers seem more than willing to take their chances with irate American housewives. After all, haven't they seen what happens when those housewives arise? —Although the gals put on a rousing meat boycott recently, a boycott that had the cattle hoarding livestock raiser wallowing in unsold beef, an all-benevolent government immediately granted the cattle interests a $3 billion government guaranteed loan to tide them over until prices once again go up.—

But somehow I have a feeling that this time the me-too wheat growers may be in for an unpleasant surprise. One should never underestimate the power of American housewives twice scorned. They may even be able to achieve what a Watergate investigation has thus far failed to bring about.

TOM TIEDE

Combat zone on the turnpikes

WASHINGTON — A driver traveling 55 m.p.h. on the New Jersey Turnpike recently was forced into higher speeds by the sight of a tractor-trailer truck rushing into his rearview mirror. The driver gunned to 60, then 65 and 70—but still the truck closed ground.

Finally, unnerved, the motorist hit his brakes and the truck wrenched past with an Armageddon roar while its driver, clearly visible in his lofty warroom, grinned, drank soda pop and waved a contemptuous middle finger from his window.

America's highways, never showplaces for reason or brotherhood, are today deteriorating even further toward total anarchy. The reduction of the legal speed limit to 55, while seldom observed by anyone, has created new and potentially tragic frictions between the highway's natural enemies: the cars and the trucks.

Terrible games of tag and bully are taking place at speeds enough to slaughter the participants—and anybody else hapless enough to be in the way.

The situation, says Ken Pierson of the Bureau of Motor Carrier Safety, here is nothing short of vehicular "tyranny."

He says the bureau, an arm of the Department of Transportation, is "receiving more and more complaints concerning the disposition of some truck and bus drivers to operate at excessive speed, to tailgate automobiles and other commercial vehicles, as if the highways were their private domain and automobiles were interlopers on a private preserve."

Pierson is not the only one receiving motorist flak. A New Jersey Turnpike tolltaker says protests at his booth go on all day, every day: "I remember this one guy, he said he got so mad at a truck he tried to ram it. Can you imagine? The guy had a little Volks and he was trying to smash an 18-wheeler. But you can't blame him; what I see on this turnpike is almost like combat."

As yet, casualty figures concerning the blacktop war are unavailable. At least one federal agency—the National Highway Safety Council—is supposed to be studying the safety impact of the 55 limit, but authorities there admit to inaction. Withal, there is no doubt as to the casualty potential.

The American Automobile Association says that games between cars and trucks are as onesided as lynchings; it reports that while tractor-trailer trucks crompise only 3.7 per cent of the road miles driven in the nation, they account for 6.6 per cent of the fatal accidents. So big are the rigs (the legal weight limit in interstate highways is now 73,280 pounds) that their "frequency of involvement in fatal accidents is 86.5 per cent greater than the car."

This is not to say, of course, that trucks are inherent road menaces. The American Trucking Association argues correctly that truckers overall are comparatively safe drivers and that combination trucks in general account for only 2.3 per cent of all highway accidents.

Nonetheless, there is growing unease even in the trucking industry that more and more drivers are becoming arrogant, careless and unlawful.

Sen. Harold Hughes (D-Iowa), himself an extrucker, estimates that 90 per cent of big rig drivers use pep pills; the DOT reports an increase in headphone stereo set use by younger drivers, "a safety hazard of incredible proportions"; and such is the temptation to overload trucks that the Pennsylvania Highway Patrol remembers nabbing one dolt driver with 200,000 pounds.

Given the more aggressive and insensitive driver, then, road tyranny is an unsurprising result. ("We got to make time," says one owner-operator, "I can't feed my kids on 55 mph.") The question is how to stop it? Local police around the nation insist that increased enforcement is not the answer. New Jersey Turnpike cops gave 1,000 more truck summonses in this January-May over last, but "that didn't hardly faze them." Even now the Teamsters Union is attempting to force companies to pay for such driver indiscretions.

So there may be no answer here save an unforeseen enlightenment of the violating truck drivers. And until and if such religion occurs, safety officials warn motorists to cool it. Trucker tyranny can't be remedied by the motorist revenge. Stay in your lane, at your speed, and let the big apes do the maneuvering. What the truck-car situations do not need are TWO damn fools.

Arsonists blamed for small fires

POMONA — Firemen say arsonists started four small fires Monday night and Tuesday.

A flammable liquid was thrown inside a door at A-1 Moving and Storage Co., 445 W. Commercial Ave., Monday night causing damage estimated at $500. Lawnmower equipment and paint were among the items damaged. No one was in the building at the time.

Two vehicle fires, in the 2500 block of Cathy Street and at 2575 Barjud St. caused damage estimated at $3,000. A 1973 Datsun was gutted on Cathy and a 1968 Plymouth suffered some damage on Barjud. Firemen said in both cases, a flammable liquid was tossed inside the cars.

Arsonists apparently also set a small trash fire in a garage at the same address on Barjud, within 20 minutes of the car fire, about 3:10 a.m.

Vacationers to receive phone bill reduction

POMONA — Residents planning an extended summer vacation may receive a 50 per cent reduction on their telephone service charge.

To qualify, a customer must plan on being away from home not less than 30 consecutive days, said Jack King, public affairs director for General Telephone Co.

All a person has to do is notify the nearest telephone company business office of the exact vacation dates and when normal phone service should be restored.

"During the customer's extended trip from home, the telephone bill will be only half the basic rate normally charged for the residence service," he added.

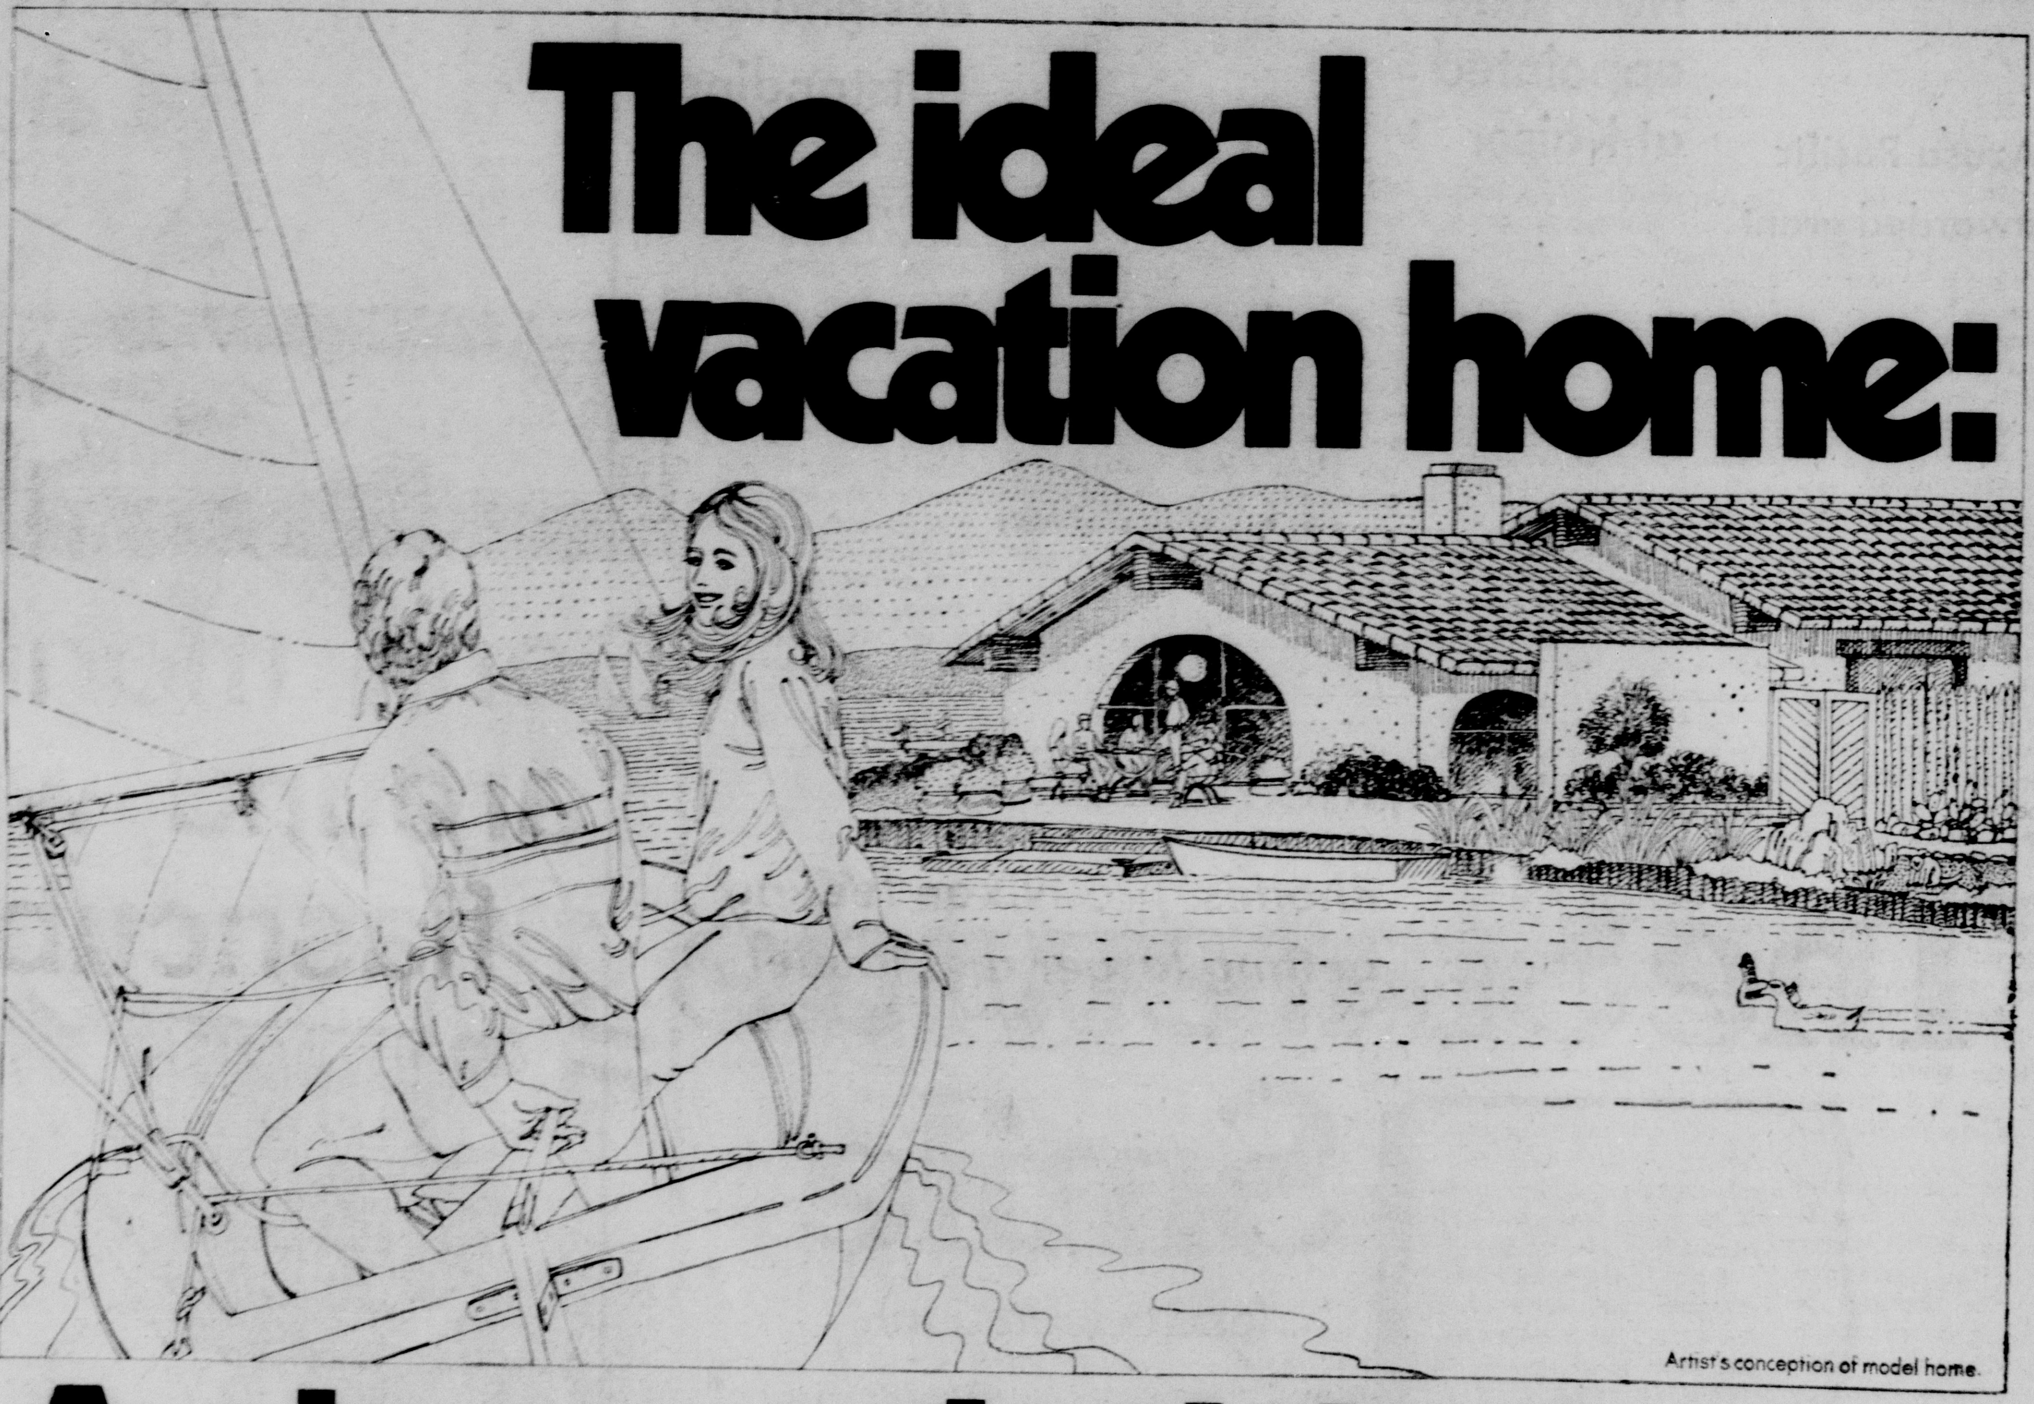
The ideal vacation home:



Artist's conception of model home.

A place on the lake in the middle of the desert.

With a vacation home at Silver Lakes in the high desert of the Mojave, your family's only problem will be what to enjoy first. Set against a backdrop of rugged mountain peaks in an oasis of sagebrush, cactus, and cottonwood, Silver Lakes is a multi-million dollar, water-oriented resort community centered around two shimmering blue lakes. The lakes are complete and ready for sailing. Or fishing. Or just living near.

27-hole Golf Course. Golf will most certainly rival water sports in popularity at Silver Lakes. By Fall 1974, there'll be three interlocking 9-hole courses ready for your foursome. By early '75, an adjacent public clubhouse and overnight lodge, privately owned and operated. The challenging 27-hole layout was designed by famed golf course architect Ted Robinson of Palos Verdes.

Silver Lakes

Entertainment Center. Our massive, million dollar Silver Lakes Racquet Club is already open and welcoming visitors. Right now families are enjoying tennis, swimming, whirlpool, shuffleboard, entertaining in the elegant restaurant and cocktail lounge. Also ready: beaches and launching ramps at both lakes; 30-acre Cottonwood Park & Wildlife Preserve.

Model Homes on Display. Five exciting model homes by David Jay Flood are ready for inspection, soon to be joined by others representing the work of the finest professional builders in the area. To the first buyers, a wide choice of view-sites, prices, and models, many oriented to the lakes or golf course.

Dart Industries Inc. Silver Lakes, in the historic Victor Valley, is just 113 miles from Los Angeles, or about a half a tank of gas away. For everybody but the home buyer

Closing—a nice cozy game

By LEW KOCH
(Second in a series)

When the average citizen gets "burned" for an extra few hundred or even thousand dollars in hidden costs in buying a home, he has little recourse except to complain about it over cocktails.

But when the same thing happens to a member of Congress, new laws start being drafted.

A congressional investigation into the high cost of settling real estate transactions found that some attorneys were involved in kickbacks, price fixing and a host of legal maneuvers designed to line their pockets and empty those of the poor guy who had just emptied his bank account in order to buy a home.

How does it happen? Well, let's say you're involved in a simple real estate transaction — the selling or buying of a home.

If you're the seller, the real estate broker will impress you with the fact that the both of want to get the highest possible price for the house. But when he asks you to sign a "standard" contract, the broker may neglect mentioning some of the small print covering (or not covering) such "petty" details as who can negotiate the selling price, multiple listings, fixtures, zoning restrictions, method of payment, default, title and when the broker collects his fee.

If you are the buyer, the real estate broker may urge you to sign a "standard" contract (prepared, of course, by the broker's lawyer). One fact the broker may not mention is that the contract will protect his interest — not your's. The contract may not detail such "Petty" items as financing, title, insurance, surveys, taxes, time of occupancy, etc.

If you're buying a house and think that the attorney for the institution lending you the money will check everything out — check again. If the mortgage institution (bank, savings and loan, etc.) doesn't get the highest possible interest, they may not be telling you about such "petty" details as what happens if you want to pay off the mortgage ahead of time, what's wrong with the title, special zoning ordinances and closing costs.

As Benny L. Kass, general counsel for the National Homebuyers and Homeowners Association in Washington, put it, "The mortgage industry is one of the most incestuous within our economy. Lenders refer borrowers to law firms and to title companies; real estate firms use their favorite law firms for settlement. And everyone sits on each other's board of directors, sharing the bounty.

"The net result is to deprive the homebuyer the opportunity to shop around for the best loan, the best survey, the best title search, and the best title insurance — at the least expensive price. Let's face it: there is no real competition in today's housing marketplace."

The broker, the lender, the escrow company and the title insurance company all demand and receive the best legal protection. Their attorneys protect them — not you.

One expense involved in buying and selling houses is created by the need to establish title (ownership). The title companies go to the expense of duplicating the usually chaotic public records and consolidate and index them.

These private monopolies (as some reformist attorneys call them) then turn around and, for an astronomical fee, they check (or allow to be checked) those duplicated public records which were originally designed to be used at no cost at all!

And their check usually protects only the institution who has lent you the money — not you, unless you pay an additional fee.

Thus, the different attorneys who have accompanied you through this typical homebuying experience, have not been your attorneys at all. They have been acting in the best interests of their first client (the broker, the lender, the escrow company and the title company) and with your interests a far second. The only way to categorize this kind of behavior is by calling it what it is: a conflict of interests.

The American Bar Association, quite properly is concerned about such behavior. They realize that if something isn't done about it, and quickly, Congress may pass some stringent legislation to rectify the matter.

Any system that has grown so complicated and so costly is also impossible to reform piecemeal.

Benny Kass offers, instead, one kind of massive and very realizable alternative: put real estate transactions under the same kind of "statute of limitations" that other legal actions fall under. Kass suggests that three years after a piece of property has been sold, no suit against the property would be allowed to be filed. Thus, in one fell swoop, those lengthy, costly 50-year title searches would become unnecessary.

There is another way for the average homebuyer to cut his costs: hire his own attorney, a lawyer who would put the homebuyer's interests first — and everybody else's last. Despite the fact that a few states require buyers to retain counsel, the majority of homebuyers are not represented by attorneys.

The only problem with that, though, is that many lawyers don't want to bother with that kind of petty business. There's far more money to be made working for the interest of the real estate broker, the bank and the title company.

But when enough congressmen feel they've been taken in buying a home, they just might turn around and pass some sweeping legislation which would make it less complicated and less costly to buy your own home.

(NEXT: Plea-Bargaining)

"It is my opinion that most American families, even the most sophisticated, find closing on a newly purchased home to be a bewildering and complicated experience. You can literally bury a family with closing cost information and still make this situation a most costly and complex endeavor. I think the basic question that this subcommittee is faced with is how to reduce the unconscionably high cost that American families are facing in closing on a mortgage and how to simplify the transaction."

— Congressman William A. Barrett, Chairman of the Subcommittee on Housing, in hearings on real estate settlement costs.

Chief Justice assails cost of real estate law

One important area of the law that sooner or later touches the lives of almost every American is the purchase of a home. One can hardly imagine an American who does not wish to own his own home. With our tradition of upward mobility, a family may repeat this process several times.

When I began to practice law, the newest associate in the firm was assigned the task of examining titles and closing real estate purchases, and he continued in that role until another new man came along. The cost at that time ranged from $15 to $30 for the purchase of the typical family home.

There is a growing practice of using title insurance either as a substitute for — or in addition to — the lawyer's title opinion. Today we know that in many states the incidental costs of acquiring a new home, even in the $40,000 category, can run into a very large sum. We know that the operating costs of lawyers have skyrocketed in recent years, but the very cost of the procedure today dictates that we examine the whole business closely.

The point I seek to make is that the basic system of real estate titles and transfers — and the related matters concerning financing and purchase of homes — cries out for re-examination and simplification.

In a country that transfers not only expensive automobiles but multimillion dollar airplanes with a few relatively simple papers covering liens and all, I believe that if American lawyers will put their ingenuity and inventiveness to work on this subject they will be able to devise simpler methods than we now have.

I suggest that it is a very high priority in terms of the public obligation of our profession to press for a comprehensive re-examination of the entire process of land titles and transfers, title insurance, the financing of real estate transactions, closing procedures and, of course, the costs of all these steps.

They are unduly complex and therefore unduly expensive today.

I urge you to help marshal the ingenuity of American lawyers to make these processes as simple and inexpensive as can be done. This will give meaning to the proud boast of our profession that we place public good ahead of private gain.

(Chief Justice Burger delivered these remarks before a recent meeting of the American Law Institute.)

Rhodes: pro-Nixon feeling getting larger and louder

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes said that pro-Nixon sentiment in the country has grown larger, louder and more solid in the past few weeks.

Rhodes told a news conference he reached that conclusion mostly from his mail. He declined to speculate what percentage of the populace supports President Nixon in his campaign to avoid impeachment.

"I think the hard core Nixon support has hardened," he said. "I think it is larger than I thought it was."

"In any event it's getting louder," he said.

Rhodes called the news conference to deplore news leaks concerning Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's role in wiretaps. The leaks are "morally wrong and unfair," he said.

As for Kissinger's emotional threat to resign, Rhodes said: "To me the wonderment of it is that he has done so well in so many things and perhaps in this one instance he may have faltered a bit."

Film corp. will lease Marineland

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. Monday agreed to lease Marineland of the Pacific from Hollywood Park Inc., with a option to buy the aquatic amusement park for between $6.5 and $9 million.

Under terms of the agreement, the film company will invest $3 million in the park to provide new facilities and theatrical acts to boost attendance.

In a separate transaction, Hollywood Park Inc., the holding company which operates the Hollywood Park racetrack and Marineland, announced the sale of 1,500 acres in the Santa Cruz, Calif., area for $1.4 million. The land was acquired when Hollywood Park, Inc. originally purchased Marineland.

Lewis Wolff, president of the 20th Century-Fox Realty and Development Co., said the firm does not expect much of an increase in Marineland's admission price. "We want to increase the number of people coming in," he said. He added that the current Marineland staff will be retained when the park changes hands.

Financier's fleet sold to cut debt

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — C. Arnholt Smith's Westgate-California Corp. has agreed to sell its tuna fishing fleet to Castle & Cooke Inc. of Honolulu for $35.8 million.

The Westgate-California Corp. is controlled by a court-appointed bankruptcy trustee, Curvin J. Trone Jr., who said the sale is one of many which have reduced Westgate's debt by $50 million since bankruptcy proceedings began Feb. 26.

The sale involves 13 tuna fishing vessels, a refrigerated tuna-carrying ship, a marine hardware company and a grocery company. Castle & Cooke, the largest Hawaii-based company, plans to incorporate the fleet into its Bumble Bee seafood operations.

MEETIN' & EATIN' at BETSY ROSS

by Gene Neighbors

Hi, Neighbors,

About 50 Lehigh Elementary children were in Pomona Valley Center Betsy Ross on Friday for ice cream cones. We didn't get the names of the accompanying adults, but wish to thank them for the orderly manner in which the excursion was conducted.

MARIE CRAWFORD, waitress at Claremont Coffee Shoppe, has advanced to the status of grandmother. Congratulations.

Don't forget to get your Nostalgic Place Mats with each guest check of $3 or more Monday thru Thursday. This is the last week, so we hope you have been able to complete your collection of five.

I finally found out what that congenial general contractor "Jerry" EDWARDS is good for beside building beautiful Betsy Ross buildings . . . World's greatest Marlin fisherman! Ask to see my pictures! (Ed. note . . . You don't really have to ask . . .)

Spotlighting this week: BETTIE SANDERS, of Glendora Betsy Ross. BETTIE is one of those rare mothers who is so involved in so many things that we wonder how she does them all. She has been with the Company four years, three of them at Upland, but was an opening waitress last year for Glendora. She served in PTA 12 years, as president 2 years, and is currently serving her second years as council vice president. She was a Girl Scout leader for five years and Campfire leader for two. BETTIE is active in YMCA, Little League, and an all-girl softball team. She is a member of the Upland Church of Christ, and has lived in California 20 years. Her three daughters and sons have every right to be justly proud of such a mother. We are grateful to have such an employee.

MTAC to hold convention in San Diego

SAN DIEGO — David Tischler, recently elected president of the Pomona Valley branch of the Music Teachers' Association of California, and Eloise Wilder, one of the directors, will be delegates to the 64th annual MTAC convention in San Diego Friday through Tuesday.

The convention program will feature concerts, master classes, recitals, demonstrations, lectures, exhibits, and performances by important artists.

Several students of local teachers will be among those participating at the convention, which will be held at the Sheraton-Harbor Island Hotel. Playing the piano in Friday's materials session will be: Suzanne Scott, Maryann Wilkinson, and Kathy Wilkinson, pupils of Marguerite Green; Ted Price and Simone Klitenic, pupils of Ralph Pierce; Janice Mills, pupil of Margaret Shelton; and Bonnie Carter, pupil of Eloise Wilder. Peggy Losh, whose teacher is Helena Johnson, will play a Brahms capriccio in the advanced materials program. In the composers today program on Sunday, Margaret Shelton will play the two compositions she wrote that won the top teacher-composer awards for this year.

The Music Teachers' Association, established in 1897, has over 50 branches in the state, and a membership of 2,600 professional music teachers. The purpose of the organization is to promote musical culture and maintain high standards of music teaching.

Other newly elected officers of the Pomona Valley branch are Marie Searles, vice president; Audrey Grigsby, treasurer; Sheryl McLain, recording secretary; Sylvia Barton, corresponding secretary; Genevieve Barber, membership secretary, and Helena Johnson, Charlotte Jacobs and Miss Wilder, directors.

The six-man Colorado band joins the fuel dragsters and funny cars in the program, a joint production with Pacific Presentations. The raceway has signed the Epic recording artists to perform between rounds of racing.

An aerial fireworks show is also included. Tickets are discounted one dollar if purchased in advance from a Ticketron or Liberty agency.

Dodgers and Braves both 'robbed'

Don Bradley
Progress-Bulletin
Staff Writer

Valley baseball proved excellent

In a column of his published earlier, Sports Editor Bill Langley made reference to the excellent quality of college baseball played in the Valley.

Final national statistics released by the NAIA office of Kansas City, Mo. verify this.

Biff Sherman, who returns to Pomona-Pitzer baseball next year, was third in the nation in batting with a .516 average.

John Verhoeven of La Verne, now playing professional baseball in the Angels farm system in Davenport, Ia., tied for 11th nationally in earned run average, 1.14, was second in percentage for his 14-1 (.933) won-loss record, and seventh in strikeouts (115 in 117 2-3rd innings).

La Verne's Mike Alonso, now with Wisconsin Rapids in the Midwest League (same league as Verhoeven) in the Minnesota Twins farm system, was among the leaders nationally in four different categories.

Alonso was fourth in runs batted in (57), third in hits (75), ninth in doubles (16), and tied for third in home runs with 15.

Azusa Pacific also had its share of heroes. Third baseman Ted Dominguez and second baseman Mark Rogers led in doubles with 19 each.

Dominguez and teammate Chuck Van Schoych tied with a number of others for eighth in runs scored nationally (49).

Van Schoych, now with New Westminister, in British Columbia, Canada in the Northwest League, was second in runs batted in (69) and 12th in hits (66) and fifth in home runs (14).

Dominguez was fourth in hits with 73.

So it is apparent this was a vintage year in Valley baseball. Three of the coaches are keeping it interesting during the summer.

Art Mazmanian of Mt. San Antonio College is managing Great Falls, Montana, Ben Hines of La Verne is managing Ogden, Utah and Larry Himes of West Covina is running the Idaho Falls, Idaho, team all in the Pioneer League.

Dean Taylor, who worked with classmates Tim Taylor and Mike Manning in putting out excellent District Three news releases while at Claremont Mens' College, is general manager of the New Westminister (British Columbia) club.

With the increasing number of top high school players signed by big league clubs, the day can't be too far off when Bill Singer, Rollie Fingers, Doug Bird, Rich Coggins, and Bill Campbell are joined in the majors by a a large number of players from Valley high schools and colleges.

The 1974 Dodgers have been from the start and are continuing to be an exciting and interesting team to watch.

Leftfielder Bill Buckner has now made eight sprinting, diving, one-handed stabs of balls that were labelled extra bases.

Steve Garvey, Jimmy Wynn and Ron Cey are belting the ball and remain among the leaders in runs batted in.

Wynn is an enigmatic centerfielder. The little guy runs very well, and is a fine outfielder. But, plagued by painful bone chips in his throwing arm, is a distinct liability whenever a ball is hit his way with a runner on second or third.

Jimmy himself admits his arm is "dead." He'll remain in the lineup as much as possible and have the ailing member operated on after the season ends.

Garvey, while receiving accolades for his power and hitting, has made himself into one of the league's best fielding first baseman in case you haven't noticed.

He makes Buckner, a first baseman by trade, look like a beginner in comparison. Buckner, in left field, one-hands everyting and also does not throw well. But "Buck" hits well, is surehanded on any ball that comes his way and runs extremely well although not possessed of great speed.

Joe Ferguson has shown signs of regaining the hitting form that made him a terror last year. He and Steve Yeager give the Dodgers two of the best catchers around. However, when put in right field, Fergie becomes a liability.

Bill Russell continues to make all the plays and an occasional error at shortstop. But Russell is one of the tops in the game at his position, errors or no.

Dodger pitching is good, especially with Don Sutton breaking out of his slump.

Mike Marshall is now showing why the Dodgers went after him. Marshall may be the best in the game now and could be the best for all time because of his amazing durability.

PROTESTORS AND PROTESTEES

L.A. thrives on miracles

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — The Dodgers were robbed Wednesday night. But then so were the Atlanta Braves.

Three armed robbers took something like $6,000 in gate receipts. Meanwhile the umpires "stole" one from the visiting Braves.

Call it poetic justice, fate, retribution or the revenge of Jimmy Wynn, whatever you want, but an eighth-inning judgement by second base umpire John Kibler deprived the Braves of at least one run and stifled an Atlanta rally.

The Dodgers went on to score two runs in the ninth on four hits and a walk and pull out a 2-1 decision.

The visitors scored their only run in the eighth. But they should have had more.

Shortstop Craig Robinson led off with the fifth hit, an infield single, off Andy Messersmith. Pitcher Max Leon (0-1) sacrified.

Ralph Garr beat out another infield hit and Robinson advanced to third. Messersmith got Rowland Office on a foul to Ron Cey for the second out. But Darrell Evans nudged the third infield hit of the inning to drive in the run.

That brought up Henry Aaron with runners on first and second and two out.

Aaron promptly produced the hardest hit ball of the inning, a sinking liner to centerfield. Wynn raced in, dived, slid on his stomach and held the ball aloft.

Kibler, who had gone out on the grass behind second base and to the first base side, signalled out. The Braves, led by Garr, Evans, third base coach Connie Ryan and manager Eddie Mathews raced out and surrounded Kibler screaming that Wynn had trapped the ball.

Kibler, one of the National League's shorter fused arbiters, took umbrage at the remarks passed by Ryan and Mathews and thumbed them out of the game.

In the clubhouse, Wynn was asked by grinning writers if he ranked the catch as one of his greatest. "Not really," he replied keeping his eyes averted.

"Did you catch the ball?" persisted the scribes. "I had it all the way," Wynn answered and then grinned, "I caught it, I caught it."

Ron Cey was more frank. "Jimmy really didn't catch that ball," he said. "He trapped it. But he did the only thing he could do. He held it up hoping the umpires would go for the fake and they did."

It was ironic. Wynn had been robbed of a three-run homer Monday night when Braves' leftfielder Ivan Murrell apparently jumped and fell three rows into the stands and caught Wynn's towering fly.

A Los Angeles newspaper Tuesday afternoon printed a series of pictures purporting to show that Murrell actually missed the ball and came up with it after it bounced away from fans.

The Dodgers rallied for two runs in the ninth without an out ever being recorded.

Bill Buckner led off with his third hit. Wynn followed with his first hit and the Dodgers then took advantage of Office's inexperience.

Buckner slowed going into second, rounded the base, and when Office was slow in getting off a throw, shifted to high gear and raced for third.

Office's hurried throw to third was off target slightly and Buckner made it safely. Wynn, who hadn't hesitated at first, sped to second. Danny Frisella replaced Leon.

Steve Garvey's infield hit scored Buckner and Wynn advanced to third. Willie Crawford was walked intentionally, loading the bases.

Buckner was the key. "I slowed going into second," he related. "If he (Office) comes up throwing, I have to hold (at second), if not, I might have a chance for third. As soon as he hesitated, I took off. It's a good play if you make it, a terrible play if you don't."

Mike Marshall (8-3), making his seventh straight appearance and 47th of the year, pitched the ninth and got his fourth win in five days.

DODGER DATA — Don Sutton (6-6) and Carl Morton (9-2) were slated to pitch in today's 1:15 p.m. Businessmen's Special.

Garvey now leads the league with 58 runs batted in. Wynn has 57 and Cey 52.

Messersmith has to be the hardest luck hurler around. His ERA now is down to 2.09.

Squealing girls following Borg

LOCAL - NATIONAL
Sports

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Someone must have turned out the primary schools Tuesday for hundreds of squealing girls poured into the Wimbledon Tennis grounds demanding that their idol, Bjorn Borg of Sweden, be delivered up to them.

And Billie Jean King and Rosemary Casals were delighted. Well, it was audience participation wasn't it, they said. And that was what their World Team Tennis back home was all about, everybody getting noisily involved in what was happening on court.

But what was happening at staid Wimbledown has never happened in WTT.

The stampede towards the players dining room where the 18-year-old Swede had taken refuge caught the stewards by surprise. One of them gasped, while pushing back the throng: "Imagine what it would be like if he could also sing."

The chants of "We want Borg"—unprecedented in the birthplace of tournament tennis —brought a storm of shushing from the older generation, to no avail.

Despite the approval of top-seeded Billie Jean and fourth-seeded Rosemary, Wimbledon plans to go on as it has been doing since 1877 with no applause during rallies and no cheering at any time. And if World Team Tennis has any doubts that this policy pays here there were 27,000 admission Tuesday—a two-day total of 52,000, many of them at the $8.00 top.

"It's funny to hear the umpire ask for quiet on the courts," Rosemary insisted.

As far as the box office goes this will be the richest of the 88 Wimbledons so far. It has to be to pay prizes totalling $234,480. The quality of play Tuesday did not reflect this golden standard, but for connoisseurs there was one absorbing match in which age, wielding a rapier, disarmed youth armed with a cutlass.

In other words, Ken Rosewall of Australia, 39, the ninth seed, moved into the last 32 of the men's singles by beating Vijay Amritraj, 20, of India, 6-2, 5-7, 9-8, 6-1.

Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill, the third seed, took up where he left off because of fading light Monday night and won the fourth set and match from big Ove Bengtson of Sweden, 6-1, 7-9, 6-2, 6-4.

Connors, who wore a sweater throughout in the cloudy, chilly day, said, I'm glad to be playing again. I'm quite satisfied with my game."

He was barred from the Italian and French championships because he took part in the WTT tour.

Billie Jean made a 33-minute appearance in center court to beat Kathie May of Los Angeles 6-1, 6-1 and open her campaign for a sixth Wimbledon singles crown. Miss Casals took only a little longer to dispose of Britain's Penny Moore, 6-2, 6-1. Another of the American delegation, eighth-seeded Arthur Ashe also had an easy win over Hans Kary of Austria 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

Defending champion and sixth seed Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia was one set down and 1-4 in the second to powerful Leif Johansson of Sweden before he found the range and plodded into the last 32 of the singles 3-6, 7-5, 6-3, 6-4.

Today's program will fill up the last 32 of the men and women's singles. Second-seeded Chris Evert of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., will play her first match of the tournament against the wily Lesley Hunt of Australia.

Lloyd, Muniz fight Thursday

LOS ANGELES — World Welterweight contenders Billy Lloyd, no. 10, and Mando Muniz, no 8, will weigh in for the public Thursday morning at 10:30 in the main ring at the Olympic for their 10 rounder later in the evening.

Neither fighter is expected to have any trouble making the 150 pound limit.

Angels try to prevent series sweep by A's

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland A's try to make it a sweep over the California Angels in an afternoon tilt at the Coliseum today.

Jim Hunter stopped the Angels 6-1 Wednesday night to grab his 10th win of the season while Frank Tanana was knocked out in the fourth inning to absorb his 11th setback— highest in the American League.

Both clubs have injury problems. Reggie Jackson stayed out of the Oakland lineup with a pulled back muscle, and Lee Stanton had to leave the Angel lineup after injuring his left ankle and knee sliding into second base in the second inning.

For the second straight game, Sal Bando and Angel Mangual got big hits for the A's. Mangual, taking over for Jackson in the cleanup spot, singled home the first run of the game, and Bando's two-run double snapped a 1-1 tie in the third.

Gene Tenace cracked his ninth home run of the year in the fifth inning and ignited the first fireworks explosion of the season at the Oakland Coliseum. An A's spokesman said the Oakland fire marshal finally gave permission for detonations and that they will continue for the rest of the year —after every A's home run and victory.

Starter in today's series matinee finale were Bill Stoneman, 1-6 for California this year, and Dave Hamilton, 4-1 but winless in June.

Brian Winters signs multi-year Lakers' contract

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Lakers signed their No. 1 draft pick, 6-4, 185-pound guard Brian Winters of South Carolina, to a multi-year contract Tuesday.

Terms of the pact were not released.

In his three varsity seasons at South Carolina, Winters shot 49.9 per cent from the field and 79.8 per cent from the foul line while averaging 13.2 points per game. He averaged 20 points a game last season as the Gamecocks compiled a 22-5 record.

Laker general manager Pete Newell said Winters, the 12th player picked in the 1974 draft, was "the 1974 college crop's best outside shooting guard."

A native of Rockaway, N.Y., Winters said he looks forward to joining Jerry West, Gail Goodrich and Jim Price in the Laker backcourt.

"The only way you become a better player," Winters said, "is to play against the best. I'll have the opportunity here to play everyday with Jerry West and the others. That has to make me a better basketball player."

Mediator not optimistic

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A pro football players' strike loomed all-but-inevitable even in the eyes of a federal mediator who called both sides in for another round of bargaining today.

Mediator James Scearce emerged from a 5½-hour negotiating session with player and owner representatives Tuesday to report: "I can't be overly optimistic even though a mediator is supposed to be optimistic.

"There are tremendous differences between the two sides and they've got to get moving to close the gap."

A player strike has been called for Monday if no settlement is reached.

Bill Curry, president of the NFL Players Association, left little doubt that the second football strike since 1970 would occur just before the NFL teams open training camps in July.

"It looks very much as if it's going to happen," the Houston Oilers' center said after Tuesday's session, charging the owner representatives were "shadow boxing" in the collective bargaining talks. Still untouched were the so-called "freedom issue" demands by the players on reserve and option clause terms of their contracts, which the owners contend would lead to "anarchy."

Curry also accused the owners of trying to "intimidate" rookies and free agents into reporting for pre-season camps and of using them as "pawns" and "strikebreakers."

John Thompson, executive secretary of the owners' Management Council, which is on the other side of the table, tried to sound a more hopeful note.

"We're still shooting for a settlement and are optimistic it can be reached to avoid trouble before it really counts," he told newsmen. This presumably would be prior to July 26 when the College All-Star team plays the Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins in a nationally televised game in Chicago.

"We're not presuming a strike and we don't intend to lock out the players," he commented.

The first strike manifestation would become evident in San Diego where Charger rookies have been summoned to report July 3.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the players' group, already has arranged for NFLPA veterans to man a picket line in San Diego and the association has made a determined effort to persuade rookies and free agents to boycott pre-season camps until a new contract is signed.

Thompson reported that the owners offered the players new pension and insurance benefits which would liberalize payments, but Curry, citing inflationary cost-of-living increases since 1970, termed the proposal "a joke."

Junior boxers compete in AAU bouts at Chino

CHINO — The AAU Junior Olympic district boxing championships will be held Saturday at the El Rancho Grande Restaurant in Chino.

The first of 30 championship bouts will go on at 4 p.m. in the restaurant's parking lot.

The district winners will advance to the AAU regional championships July 11-12 at the Latin American Press Club in Pico Rivera.

The regional champs will go to the AAU Junior Olympic nationals in Peoria, Ill., August 1-3. Last year the team representing the Los Angeles area won the AAU national crown.

Several Pomona boxers will be in action in Saturday's district competition.

Representing the city in the 75-lb. class will be Ricky Samudio. Carlos Perez will box in the 80-lb. class, with Bobby Rizo entered as a 90-lb. contestant.

Danny Samudio, who went to the nationals last year, will try to repeat in the 100-lb. division. Pomona will be represented in the 106-lb. class by Bobby Montoya, with Gilbert Maldonado heading up the 118-lb. division for the locals.

Also representing the valley in Saturday's action will be David Perez and Kido Rodriguez.

Strike halts Seattle work

SEATTLE (UPI) — A strikelockout in the construction industry Tuesday halted work on the King County domed stadium.

The stadium is about 60 per cent complete with another year's work scheduled before it is finished.

The stadium project was one of about 750 in western and central Washington affected by the dispute involving 45,000 construction workers.

The dispute began Monday as a strike by the laborers' union and selected picketing of eight contractors. Members of the Associated General Contractors, representing employers, in turn, invoked a lockout.

Attempts have been made to obtain a no-strike, no-lockout pact involving the stadium.

Contractors recently began to build the domed roof and that task will take 10 months to complete.

Pekarcik, Votaw earn CIF honors

Only three valley athletes were named to the All-CIF 3-A baseball teams, which were released today by the Citizens Savings Athletic Foundation.

Larry Pekarcik, the Most Valuable Player of the San Antonio League, and Tony Votaw, the Most Valuable Player from the SAL champion Upland team, were two of the three valley players named to the post-season teams.

Both were placed on the second team.

Rowland High's Al Emeterio was a third team selection. The Raider outfielder batted a fierce .480 during the season.

Pekarcik, of Damien High, pitched the Spartans to a tie for second place in league, posting a 12-1 record on the mound while only giving up an average of one run per game during the season.

The Spartan righthander, who was drafted in the 15th round of the June baseball draft by the Kansas City Royals, allowed only nine earned runs in 65 innings this past season, while fanning more than 85 batters.

He not only pitched well, but he also was his team's leading hitter in league play with a .454 batting average.

Votaw set four team hitting records this past season for the Highlanders, who reached the quarterfinals of the CIF 3-A playoffs. The powerful hitting outfielder set a club record for runs batted in during league play with 15 and during the season with 24. He tied with teammate Stu DuVall for most home runs hit during league play (four) and set a record for most homers in a season with six.

Ralph Botting, senior pitcher for coach Bill Kelley's Burbank Bulldogs, has been acclaimed the Player of the Year in 3-A competition.

Botting, a member of last year's 3-A All-Stars, compiled a remarkable mound record at Burbank over three varsity seasons.

In those three years, the Bulldog ace won 34 games while losing only eight. This past season he was 8-0 in Foothill League play and had a 3-1 playoff record. In the semifinal game against eventual 3-A division champion Lompoc, Botting was charged with one of his season losses on three unearned runs. Prior to the semifinals, Botting had bested San Gabriel (8-3), Leuzinger (2-1) and Cabrillo (4-3).

Overall in 1974, Ralph was 12-2 with a 0.96 earned run average. He struck out 151 in 94 2-3rds innings, batted cleanup and led his team in RBI's. He batted .400 in league play, .353 for the season.

San Antonio joins NASL

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The North American Soccer League said Tuesday it would add a franchise in San Antonio next season, expanding to 17 teams.

Commissioner Phil Woosnam, winding up a league meeting, said the San Antonio franchise had been awarded to a group of businessmen in that Texas city headed by H. Ward Lay, a construction executive.

The NASL, which operated with 15 teams this year, awarded a franchise last week to Tampa.

With 17 teams the league will be back at the strength it was in 1968. Twelve of those cities dropped out that year and the NASL has built itself back up from five franchises in 1969.

CIF counting on Porter

By looking at the overall height and the average in the scoring department, the CIF, Southern Section High School All-Star basketball team should have a slight advantage over the City All-Stars in the Southern California Coaches Basketball Classic on July 10 at Cal State Fullerton.

The only valley player who will be competing for the CIF team will be Ganesha's Cleve Porter, the valley's athlete of the year for 1974.

And CIF coach Ed Goorjian is counting on Porter and CIF's Co-Player of the Year in 3-A, Mike Santos of Morningside.

"They'll really have to do a job on the boards," Goorjian said of Porter and Santos, who stands at 6-foot-7 as compared to Porter at 6-foot-6. "We're not big."

But according to the statistics, the CIF has a slight advantage over the City team. If you count all 14 members of the rosters, the CIF averages slightly over 6-foot-4, while the City is slightly under that figure. And the combined scoring average for both teams has the CIF leading with a 22.4 average—paced by Troy High's Mark Wulfemeyer's 36.5 output—while the City averages 20.3 per individual.

Both coaches, Willie West for the City and Goorjian, have indicated that they'll retain their 14-man roster until almost the eve of the game. Two alternates will then be named, with 12 players in uniform for each team at game time.

Four 4-A first team selections and two first team 3-A picks are on the Southern California team, while the City will be paced by almost every player who was named All-City this past season, including City Player of the Year Ivory Ward of Fremont High.

The City has won three of the previous four confrontations with the CIF.

The tipoff is scheduled for 8 p.m. in Cal State Fullerton's 4,000 seat gymnasium.

Tickets are now on presale for the lower level at $2.50 at the Anaheim Convention Center and from many Southland prep coaches. Tickets at the gate will cost $3. Upper level tickets will be sold game night for $2.

LaVerne wastes chances to score

FULLERTON — La Verne Post 330 couldn't come up with the big hit here Tuesday evening in suffering a 3-0 loss to host Fullerton in a non-district American Legion game.

La Verne had runners on third base three times but failed to score against Fullerton pitchers Peter Chapin and Mark Wulfemeyer.

Losing pitcher Richard Ortega hurled the distance for La Verne. He also led Post 330 at the plate with two hits in three at-bats.

Chapin doubled in the second inning to account for Fullerton's first run of the game.

La Verne, now 18-10, will play the Walnut Thorobreds in a 5:30 p.m. game Thursday at Mt. San Antonio College.

Tuesday night's game between Ontario and Pomona Post 30 at Welch Park was cancelled.

Ken Norton's victory moves him up ladder

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Ken Norton took a step toward another shot at the world's heavyweight crown Tuesday night when he pummelled 10th-ranked Boone Kirkman to the mat to win an eighth-round technical knockout.

Norton, ranked fifth among the challengers to the crown, had it all his way after the first round, but he didn't open up until the seventh. When he did, Kirkman stood helpless against the ropes until Norton backed off for a moment. Then Kirkman went down with a crash.

Referee Pat McMurtry took one look at the Renton, Wash., bartender and signaled finis. The books will show that Norton, at 218½, won an eighth-round TKO because Kirkman failed to answer the bell for that round.

Kirkman had pinned a lot of hopes on this fight. The 29-year-old veteran figured if he could get past Norton, 28, he might get another shot at champion George Foreman. Now, Norton figures he might get a chance to take on the champ. Foreman has beaten both Kirkman and Norton.

Kirkman, who weighed 212, went in aggressively at the opening bell and won that round on most cards. But from then on it was Norton all the way under the 10-point must system. Norton just stood back and flipped his left at the bull-like rushes of Kirkman. And when they got in close, Norton put his left uppercut to work.

Sports news in brief

CRAIG STADLER, the USC senior, leads the state amateur golf tournament at Pebble Beach with a 146. Stadler had a 73 Tuesday. Closest to him are 1973 champion Mike Brannan of Salinas and veteran Dick Runkle of Los Angeles, last year's runner-up, each with 149.

AL BIANCHI Tuesday signed a three-year contract to continue coaching the ABA Virginia Squires. Bianchi will work under new owners and begin a job of rebuilding the shattered team.

LEROY KELLY of the Cleveland Browns has been placed on waivers. Several other clubs have expressed interest in the veteran running back. Kelly, 34, has played with the Browns since he was drafted eighth in 1964. Last year he averaged only 2.9 yards per carry but caught 15 passes for 180 yards, a 12-yard average.

JUAN MARICHAL, the ailing Boston Red Sox pitcher, has shown sufficient improvement and apparently will not need surgery on his back. A neurological surgeon said Tuesday that Marichal may be able to pitch again this year.

SPARKY ANDERSON, Cincinnati Reds manager, entered a Cincinnati hospital Tuesday night for examination and treatment of a chronic stiff neck and back.

Halftime of football classic

Shriners offer skydiving

PASADENA — An eight-member skydiving team will kick-off the halftime show at the 23rd annual Shrine All-Star Football Classic on July 27 by jumping into the Rose Bowl.

The charity game, whose entire proceeds go to the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children in Los Angeles, will feature 56 of Southern California's finest pre-college football players. Kickoff time for the contest, which has produced 27 All-Americans and three Heisman Trophy winners, is scheduled for 7 p.m.

The Rumbleseat Parachute Team, a Southern Californa-based squad, will dedicate their halftime jump to Bill Parsons, the team leader, who was injured seriously in a dive in Nevada in May. Parsons, 39, is still in a coma at Long Beach Veterans Hospital.

Jumping from 7,500 feet, a three-man team of Dick Johnson, Bonnie Cameron and Lyle Cameron will dive carrying American and Shrine flags and will free dive 5,000 feet and land on the Rose Bowl 50 yard line.

This will be followed by a quintet of Bill Plye, Jim Ackerman, Ron Durham, Alex Pena and Frank Carpenter, who will form a star.

Members of the International Freefall Association, Bonnie Carmeron won the 1969 World Accuracy Championship and has jumped in international competition in Europe and South America. Another Rumbleseat member, Bob Loughbom, will narrate the jumps.

The game sponsored by the Al Malaikah Shrine Temple, helps support the $1 million raised annually for the Los Angeles Shrine Hospital, which has 1,400 needy crippled children currently under treatment.

Tickets for the game, priced between $2.10 and $5.15, can be obtained locally by contacting Frank Zwisler at home at 621-2557 or at work 985-1933.

Persons interested may also obtain tickets from the Shrine Football Office located at 655 W. Jefferson Blvd., Los Angeles (749-0166) or at 801 Elm Ave., Long Beach (432-3407).

Top finishers from Cal 100 compete at SGV Speedway

IRWINDALE — The stars of Southern California NASCAR sportsman stock car racing return to the San Gabriel Valley Speedway in Irwindale this Friday night with two of the top finishers in the recent "California 100" race signed to compete.

Four-time San Gabriel Valley Speedway champion, Ivan Baldwin of Highland, and veteran driver, Ray Johnstone of San Bernardino, finished the Riverside Raceway event in second and third places.

Baldwin, driving a 1966 Chevelle, came up from 25th starting slot to challenge winner, Hershel McGriff of Portland, Oregon all the way home, but a bad clutch left him in high gear in the closing laps ending his chances of victory.

Going into June, Baldwin had scored two main event victories on the demanding San Gabriel half-mile and was leading in points while Johnstone had failed to score, but had a second place finish to his credit in the fast action.

Some 60 NASCAR stars are expected for the competition on the 4900 Rivergrade Road oval Friday night starting at 7:30 p.m. with time trials set for 6:30.

The hobby division, ministocks and modifieds will join the sportsman drivers in the 12 event speedfest.

OCIR hosts unique 'Nitro-Jam'

IRVINE — The addition of live rock 'n roll music to the seventh annual Nitro Championships has prompted Orange County International Raceway to rename the summer classis "California Nitro Jam." Scheduled for next Saturday, the popular event retains a proven cast of 16 dragsters and 18 funny cars — all burning large percentages of "nitromethane" — along with the traditional aerial fireworks display.

But new this year is a between-round music show headlined by Flash Cadillac and the Continental Kids. Nationally famous for their contemporary treatment of rock 'n roll hits from the Fifties and Sixties, the Epic recording artists will perform from a sound stage now under construction beside the racing surface. General Manager Blaine Laux has also signed a second, rock-country band to a show designed to provide more than three hours of continuous entertainment, beginning at 7 p.m.

This continuity is difficult to achieve during drag race events because, explains Laux, "These cars need at least 40 minutes' cooling time after every run. We've been looking for some form of entertainment to fill in the gaps, and rock music is a natural with our audience and this particular facility."

The six-man band has been hailed as one of the best visual attractions on today's music scene. Dressed in bowling shirts and rolled-up jeans or leather jackets and tennis shoes, their onstage antics unclude "the splits" and leaps upon each other's shoulders. The group has achieved nationwide notoriety through a pair of albums for Epic Records and a 1973 appearance as "Herbie and the Heartbeats" in Francis Ford Coppola's much-acclaimed "American Graffitti"; for which they wrote and performed the movie's only original music.

Their two scheduled sets are sandwiched between the racing performances of dragster superstars like Jim Dunn (La Mirada), Sush Matsubara (LA), Frank Bradley (Napa), Larry Dixon (North Hollywood) and defending Funny Car champion Bob Pickett (Van Nuys). In all, over 60 Top Fuel and Funny Car entrants will battle for qualifying positions beginning at 12 noon on June 29. The quickest 16 in each division will return at 7 p.m. for the first of four elimination rounds. Fireworks will accompany Flash Cadillac's opening set at 8:30 p.m.

All tickets to the "California Nito Jam" are discounted $1 if purchased in advance from any Ticketron or Liberty ticket agency.

Upland High on entry list for motocross

CORONA — Over 150 riders will be on hand this Friday night at Corona Raceway in the first annual Inland Empire High School Motocross Championship, beginning at 7 p.m.

The eight top high school motocross teams in the Riverside and San Bernardino Counties will be ccompeting on 1.1 mile course inside the half-mile stadium of Corona Raceway.

The eight teams include North, the winner of two high school motocrosses this season, Rubidoux, Ramona, Bloomington, Redlands, La Sierra, Riverside Poly, and Upland.

These eight teams were slected by finishing in the top two places in separate motocrosses during the months of May and June.

Many of the top riders in Southern California will be ccompeting this Friday at Corona, such as Rubidoux's Dave Williams, Steve Bauer of Ramona, North's Kevin Callaway, La Sierra's Charlie Guinn and Pat Killilea, Kim Palmer of Redlands, and Bloomington's Greg Byers.

Other top riders include Kelly Callaway, Jim Cupp, and Lee Rosenberry (North), Russ Hadley and Tom Baltazar (Rubidoux), Blake Bunnell and Dave Kelley (Riverside Poly), Bruce Willeams and Dennis Sewell (Redlands), and Ray Obermeyer of Ramona.

The battle of the evening should be between Williams of Rubidoux and Bauer of Ramona, as each rider is one of the top 125cc experts in the SoCal area.

General admission will be $2.50 with students $1.50 and children (8-12) just 50 cents. Practice begins at 6 p.m. with the first race at 7 p.m.

Carabello wins

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Jose Carabello, 141, Hartford gained an easy decision over Beau Jaynes, 148, Lowell, Mass., in an eight round feature event Tuesday night.

Southland racing

IRWINDALE — Mike Bast and Bill Cody, two of the hottest Speedway motorcycle riders around these days, have seen their torrid pace catch up with them of late.

Both will be back in action Thursday night at Irwindale Raceway tuning up rebuilt bikes for their coming invasion of Europe in quest of the one starting spot allocated Americans in this summer's World Championships.

SAUGUS — General Manager and Speedway Promoter, Marshall Wilkings has scheduled a Giant Figure 8 Open Competition race for Saugus Speedway Saturday night. Three 25-lap main events each paying $400 to win with a total purse of over $3000 guaranteed.

VALENCIA — Professional speedway racing for the lightweight, alcohol-burning motorcycles rockets onto the new one-sixth mile clay oval Saturday at Indian Dunes Park near Saugus.

Initiating a season of Saturday night events, a large turnout of riders, under sanction of Speedway Racing Assn., is expected to be ready for the close action when the first heat zips from the starting line at 8 p.m.

SAN BERNARDINO — With his first victory now history young Don Harkey of Highland will be out to score another win in this Saturday night's NASCAR stock car racing competition at Orange Show Speedway in San Bernardino.

The racing program will get underway at 7:30 p.m. on the fast South "E" Street racing oval with 17 events of sportsman and hobby division competition scheduled.

IRWINDALE — Three former winners will challenge the leaders in claimer stock car racing competition at San Gabriel Valley Speedway in Irwindale Saturday night.

The program of speed will take the starter's flag at 7:30 p.m. with trophy dashes, heat races and main events for claimer stock cars running on the quarter-mile oval. Figure eight racing tops the evening.

The challenging trio, Bill Swailes of Covina; Ray Kelly, West Covina and Gary Ebeling of Ontario, will challenge point leader, Bill Harry of Covina in the 25 lap oval track main event.

CORONA — Over 300 mini bike riders will be competing this weekend in the California State Mini Bike championship at Corona Raceway beginning at 9 a.m. each day.

This year's event will be the second annual, as last year the championship was held at Saddleback Park and was a big success. The officials of the championship felt that Corona Raceway would be an excellent facility for their annual event, as the riders would then have to compete on all three motorcycle courses (Flat Track, T.T. Steeplechase, and Motocross).

GARDENA — The return of the American Motorcycle Association's touring riders, a sprint-car "Firecracker 50," and two events ccomplete with fireworks will combine to give Ascot Park a comprehensive holiday program spread over 10 days.

Not only will riders like Dave Aldana of Santa Ana be back in the West to compete in the $55,000 AMA summer series on the half-mile this Friday night and next, but the Southern California Side Hack Association will share billing with them for special TT races.

On Saturday night the California Racing Association sprint cars stage their annual 50-lap "Firecracker 50" for a $3,000 purse. They will return for another show, Saturday, July 6.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — "For the first time in the last year and a half some signs have started to appear that we are within three to six months of a long-term market bottom," says Rosenkrantz, Ehrenkrantz, Lyon & Ross Inc. It cites evidence based on indicators of major bear market bottoms in the past: the topping of commodity prices, the jump in short term intesest rates pressing a bottom within one year after they near long-term rates, and the fact we are at the brink of a recession when bottoms have usually occurred. "The bear market, at worst, appears 70 to 75 per cent over," it adds, "with a slightly better than breakeven possibility of one more intermediate term leg down in the third or fourth quarter of 1974."

"A few key long-term indicators —which usually set the stage for bull moves rather than actually rising the curtain —still look promising," according to Indicator Digest of Palisades Park, N.J. But it urges investors to be cautious and wait until the market has clearly reversed itself.

Classic study of 2,500 persons

Doctors take 1st close look at eye problems of elderly

BOSTON (UPI) — A team of doctors is examining 2,500 people in nearby Framingham, Mass., in the first major search for factors leading to four of the most common causes of impaired eyesight among the elderly.

The unique research project is taking advantage of a treasure of medical data recorded on 5,000 Framingham residents during the past 5 years in a classic study that helped pinpoint some of the contributing factors of heart disease.

The four year study, financed by the National Eye Institute, is seeking any relationships between the vast medical measurements made in heart research and eye disorders that have developed among people examined in the heart study.

Cholesterol

"For example, we can try and see whether high cholesterol in the blood has anything to do with senile macular degeneration," said Dr. Mohandas M. Kini, a Boston University Medical Center ophthalmologist directing the project. Macular degreneration is the deterioration of the part of the retina that controls sharp vision. It is a major uncurable problem for those over 65.

The other eye diseases under investigation are senile cataracts, which Kini said probably are the major cause of visual difficulty, glaucoma and diabetic retinopaathy, a disorder of the blood vessels in the retina which occurs as a complication of diabetes.

First research

Kini said there have been no similar large-scale eye research projects, primarily because there have been no selected populations which have been carefully followed for such a long time.

"This is the beginning of the beginning," he said in an interview. "Even negative evidence would be of value." That would narrow the search for the causes of these eye disorders.

Of the 5,000 original heart study participants, about 4,000 are still alive. Kini estimated 2,500 to 3,000 will take part in the eye study. Each is being examined without charge at a special eye clinic in Framingham.

The tests began last year and the participants then ranged in age from 55 to 82 —the ages when most of the eye problems would be expected to develop. About 1,700 people have been examined so far and the initial results should be available in a year or two, Kini said.

Three problems

He said, however, that three very serious problems already have been detected and corrected. In one case, a building contractor already blind in one eye was found to have a detached retina seriously threatening his other eye. An operation corrected the problem.

The other two cases involved acute glaucoma, a rare form of glaucoma which can cause blindness quickly if not treated. One victim was Manuel Burnham, a 58-year-old school custodian who had no idea of his problem. It was discovered during a routine examination at the eye clinic and doctors said he could have lost his eyesight within days.

"It's scary," he said. "I could have gone to sleep one night thinking nothing was wrong and woke up the next morning blind."

5 surviving Stanek tots 'spoiled'

By PETER M. KELLY

DENVER (UPI) — Ten-month-old Stephen Stanek stood up the other day and discovered that he didn't know how to sit back down.

His three brothers and sister were no help. Jeffrey, John and Catherine were down on the throw rug working on their crawls —an art that Nathan still was thinking over.

Stephen, now the heavyweight of the five survivors of the sextuplets born last September to the wife of a suburban Denver accountant, made it down to the rug finally with the help of a neighbor who was babysitting.

Best eater

"Stephen is considered the best eater because he is so much bigger than the rest," said Mrs. Beth Sarriugarte, the Staneks' next door neighbor. "He's over 16 pounds now. Nathan is the lightest. He is about 11 pounds.

"They don't act alike, look alike or even have the same personalities," said Mrs. Sarriugarte. "They aren't identical and they have individual characteristics. They are just like five different babies that are the same age."

Like all members of the diaper set, the Stanek children are good-natured as long as they get what they want, she said.

"They're all spoiled," said Mrs. Sarriugarte, "believe it or not. We have to do what they want."

Enough food

Afew days ago, Mrs. Sarriugarte was feeding Nathan cereal when he decided he'd had enough.

"I guess he just decided he wasn't going to eat his food," she said. "He stuck his tongue out at me. I couldn't outfox him. He makes you do what he wants you to do."

The children, who learned to crawl in a modest three-bedroom home in suburban Lakewood just outside Denver, will learn to walk on new turf. Their father, Eugene, bought a larger home in south Denver to accommodate the five infants and their older brother, Greg, 5.

Mrs. Sarriugarte and other neighbors on Kendall Avenue helped with the move but their hearts weren't in it.

"We really hated to see them go," said Mrs. Sarriugarte.

"But it's easy to understand the reason for the move. They need more room. They only had three bedrooms and a half basement that would have been fine for two children.

"But there are a lot more than two children now."

Fertility drugs

Edna Stanek, 35, who took fertility drugs before pregnancy, gave birth to John, the eldest of the sextuplets in terms of minutes, a short time after midnight last Sept. 17. The remaining five children were born within four minutes, all by Caesarian section, less than an hour later.

Mrs. Stanek underwent injections of the drug Pergonal when fertility pills didn't work. Three months before the sextuplets were born.

Expert's study deals blow to women libbers

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The male and female anatomies apparently differ in more than one way, despite the protests of women liberationists.

An expert in ergonomics — the study of work capacity of muscles — said here that women are physically less capable than men to handle some industrial jobs.

Steven Snook, project director in ergonomics for Liberty Mutual Insurance Co., Hopkinton, Mass., said studies of maximum weights and workloads acceptable to factory workers showed "statistically significant differences between men and women in their ability to perform manual handling tasks."

However, he said, in "walking and seven-foot sustained pulling tasks" women factory workers equalled their male counterparts.

"Caution is advised to insure that these results are not used for discriminatory purposes," he added.

The tests, which compared 15 male and female workers to 16 housewives were designed to learn of "sex differences demonstrated with traditional laboratory tests would occur with actual manual handling tasks in industry."

He said men outperformed women in most tests and that "housewives were able to handle significantly less weight and workload" than either male or female industrial workers.

Snook's remarks came in an address to the Professional Development conference of the American Society of Safety Engineers.

Oahu saves 1-man rescue operation

HONOLULU (UPI) — A voluntary one-man rescue operation credited with saving hundreds of lives has been rescued from financial disaster by a grateful state.

For decades Edwin "Buddy" Adolphson has been a familiar figure whenever there was disaster in the remote, mountainous terrain or giant surf of the island of Oahu's north shore.

The 57-year-old Adolphson, bearing hope and comfort in his old Jeep, has become an island legend in his own time.

In the 30 years that Adolphson has been patrolling the north shore first as a policeman and now as a volunteer, he has saved hundreds of surfers and swimmers, rescued countless stranded hikers and snuffed out dozens of fires.

Risking his life has become a way of life for Adolphson, who started rescuing when he was a teenager on a surfboard and saw his friends in trouble.

Swimming out among sharks and huge surf to rescue a bather, keeping the victim afloat until a helicopter arrives, hanging on to sharp ledges in search of a missing hiker and singeing his clothing in a fire are all part of a day's work for Adolphson.

"I have been so close to death so many times," he said. "But when I raised my hand to take the policeman's oath back in 1939, I meant what I said.

"I promised to protect life and property, but no one ever told me where to draw the line."

So Adolphson, armed with a uniform, gun and radio in Oahu's rural north shore communities, started spending his own money for rescue equipment to become a search and rescue operation in addition to his crime fighting activities.

Since the area he was assigned to spanned many miles of beaches and mountainous, jungle-like terrain, Adolphson decided the best way to carry out his self-appointed mission was by being mobile.

Adolphson estimates he spent more than $25,000 on his first Jeep, which eventually collapsed, and then a second one into a helf-contained lifesaving unit.

"The vehicle carries four floodlights, an engine mounted generator, chain saw, megaphone, winch, flares, rope, fresh water, resuscitator, and coffee maker," Adolphson said.

"I'm equipped to monitor police, fire department, Coast Guard and citizens band radio networks. I also carry a stretcher and a motorized surf board."

Adolphson went deeply into debt to buy equipment and keep it in repair. The high cost of saving lives was way ahead of his policeman's retirement salary. Adolphson borrowed against his house and his car. But the one-man, volunteer, doit-yourself search-and-rescue mission was grounded.

For a month the Jeep that had become such a welcome sight to islanders in distress sat in a garage with the body coming apart and the doors falling off.

Word of Adolphson's plight spread from the local citizenry of the north shore who worried abouc letting their children surf when Adolphson wasn't around all the way to the halls of the state legislature.

When lawmakers learned how Adolphson had gone into debt and never asked a penny in return, they chipped in and came up with $520. Then donations started pouring in from grateful citizens, many of whom were saved by Adolphson.

"Oahu wake up," wrote one man along with his check. "The next person Buddy saves might be you. Or God forbid, me!"

More than $2,000 was raised, enough to put Buddy and his Jeep back on the road again. With this vote of confidence behind him, Adolphson is more determined than ever to keep the north shore safe.

Women at new low; 2 train as coal miners

PAWNEE, Ill. (UPI) — Annette Brantley and Jeannette Beemen are in training to go underground — as coal miners.

They went on the payroll this week at Peabody Coal Co. Pawnee No. 10 mine at $42 a day, and the company says so far as is known they are the first female coal miners in Illinois.

No. 10, located south of Springfield, is known as the largest underground coal mine in the world. Some miners are already grumbling that the pit, employing 872 persons, will nver be the same.

"Some of the men frankly don't like it," said D. C. Hall, Peabody senior vice president in charge of operations, "But the federal government says women must have equal opportunity and the law is the law."

Hall is hoping for the best. "I think that statistics show that women are safer drivers.

"Two that we have employed have quit," said Hall. "I think some of them will be surprised at the work they will have to do."

Diver finds it all, even the kitchen sink

GREELEY, Colo. (UPI) — Richard A. Slater could open a pawn shop with the litter he finds while swimming.

The oceanographer has spotted two airplanes, trucks, cars and even a kitchen sink.

"I found the kitchen sink about 400 feet off San Diego,' he said. "It was just a regular old kitchen sink out of somebody's house with a faucet and water taps."

Slater is an assistant professor of oceanography at the University of Northern Colorado in Greeley, located more than a thousand miles from either the Atlantic or Pacific oceans.

But he has made more than 350 dives in submersible crafts and has dived a thousand times with scuba gear.

There's a tremendous amount of stuff on the bottom of the ocean," he said. "Whenever I dive beneath the areas worked by Japanese fishing boats, I always find a lot of rubber shower shoes.

"And beer cans are classics. Anywhere you have fishermen, you are going to have beer cans. There are beer cans as deep as a thousand feet in every body of water I've dived. And I've found them (in lakes) 13,000 feet high in the Colorado Rockies."

Slater said he found the two airplanes off the California coast. He said one appeared to be a Japanese Zero of World War II vintage but the wreckage was in such bad shape that confirmation was impossible.

The second plane was "one of those World War II Navy Hellcat fighter planes in perfect condition. It had been ditched by its pilot and they brought it up. The machine gun was taken out and still worked."

He plans to sign on this summer for a federally sponsored search off the coast of New England for deep water lobster. Slater said shallow water lobster enjoyed in restaurants were nearly fished out in the area.

Slater said litter in the ocean is not especially harmful to sea animals and often serves as habitates for fish.

"I found a truck once in deep water with all its tires on that was inhabitated by thousands of crabs," he said. "An octopus likes rubber tires for some reason. They hide inside the tires."

Japanese top list of Philippine tourists

MANILA (UPI) — Japanese topped the list of tourists who visited the Philippines in the first five months of the year, the Department of Tourism said.

A spokesman said 56,288 Japanese came during the five-month period beginning January. The figure was almost four times last year's 17,281 during the same period, he said.

Overall, the spokesman said, 150,000 tourists visited the Philippines as of the end of May, double last year's figure for the same period.

Home sealed with woman crying inside

SHEFFIELD, England (UPI) — Workmen hammering doors and windows shut drowned out the cries of Katherine Godfrey inside her home.

When the workmen went away after boarding up the doors and windows with heavy timbers, they left the crippled Mrs. Godfrey, 75, in almost total darkness and with no way out.

Officials said she could have died there. But by chance, a relative arrived three hours later and rescued the widow.

The workmen had turned her home into a tomb by mistake, the Sheffield Council said. They were ordered to seal up houses being readied for demolition— and had been given the wrong address.

'A hand will be severed'

Golda Meir recently intoned a public warning that the hand of the terrorist would be severed. A chilling threat, most particularly to the Arabs, I think. Over many generations, the penalty for stealing in Saudi Arabia and elsewhere thereabouts was the loss of a hand at the wrist.

CONSIDER land-bound living things. How far they travel depends on how much they weigh. By land-bound, I mean to exclude flying insects, birds and fishes. This leaves everything from ants to elephants. Man long ago became the great exception with his horse, car, train and plane. But ordinarily in natural life, the heavier the critter, the more widely said critter roams. A scholar told me that.

West's play case of honor

By Oswald & James Jacoby

One of the general rules of play that everyone is taught is "Cover an honor with an honor."

Like all general rules you will do better if you follow it every time rather than never follow it. But you will do best if you learn when to follow it and when not to.

South wins the first club, or ducks and wins the continuation. It doesn't matter much. He has to lose two clubs and one diamond and success or failure depends on whether or not he loses a trump trick.

Opening lead—♣K

With eleven trumps the correct per centage play is to try to drop the king. It will work exactly 52 per cent of the time. So, all else being equal the expert will play for the drop.

However, all else doesn't have to be equal. Any good player will lead the jack of spades. If West has been taught to cover an honor with an honor on each and every occasion he will clatter up with the king and south will make his contract anyway.

If West sees that this is not the time to cover (it isn't) but goes into a huddle before ducking, South will finesse in the theory that West's huddle meant that he was thinking of covering.

However, if West just plays his six spot unconcernedly. South should rise with dummy's ace. After all, that is a 52 per cent chance. East will show out and another contract will bite the dust.

Girl, 15, has sex question

By JEAN ADAMS

SE: (Q.) I have been taught that sexual intercourse is for reproduction only and should be practiced for that purpose only. Have I been taught right? — Girl, 15, in Texas.

(A.) No. Sexual intercourse has a number of purposes, rewards and values besides reproduction.

Your school counselor, your family doctor, and any religious leaders in your life should be helpful in explaining worthwhile aspects of sex that you'll need to know about and understand as you mature into womanhood.

FRIENDS: (Q.) When I met Terry I thought I had found the friend I was looking for. I was wrong.

Terry has another friend who is just about my age. I am jealous of him because I know Terry favors him more than me.

I believe two friends should do things some time by themselves and alone, like go over to someone's house and throw a baseball around.

I don't think Terry can do that with me. I don't think he cares enough. — Nobody in New Jersey.

(A.) It is good to be alone with a friend on occasion, but you must not be selfish about Terry's other friends. It is healthy to have more than one friend, and if you will accept this fact you can keep Terry as a friend and maybe make friends of his other friends too.

And you are not a nobody. Nobody is a nobody.

Facts about pots

Teapots tend to be low and wide because tea leaves rise and expand in hot water. Coffee grounds, on the other hand, tend to sink to the bottom of the pot, leaving the pure clean brew at the top; thus coffee pots are generally tall and narrow.

Rape law for estranged wife defeated in Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill subjecting a husband to rape penalties if he forces intercourse with his estranged wife was rejected Monday by the Assembly after opponents contended it could worsen marital conflicts.

The measure (AB4173) by Assemblyman Ken Meade, D-Berkeley, was defeated Monday on a 11-45 vote.

Meade said current law—which exempts married couples from rape laws—was "archaic and unrealistic." He said his measure was fashioned after the philosophy that "a woman has an absolute control over her body."

Assemblywoman Pauline Davie, D-Portola, one of the two women in the legislature, asked rhetorically: "Are you saying that if a woman says 'no' she can't hold her own?"

Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles, opposed the bill because it would also apply when the couple decided to live separately. He said it should not apply until the couple took some legal action to end their marriage.

Result of diet may be increased muscle

By Dr. Frank Miller

DEAR DR. MILLER: Snowball, my Samoyed, has been on a low-calorie diet and believe me, I've been counting her calories for two months now. As per her doctor's instructions, I've been gradually increasing her exercise so she's now running several miles a day on the bike trail behind my bicycle. I'm very discouraged because even though she looks better, she weighs the same as she used to, after all this work and effort on her part and mine! Why? — J. V.

Dear J. V.: If she looks better, you shouldn't be too discouraged. It's very possible she has actually burned up a lot of fat along the way and replaced it with muscle. Muscle weighs more than fat so she could lose fat, look better and still actually weight the same because of increase in muscle size. (Without heavy exercise and a genuine dieting effort, this fat-for-muscle switch does not occur.)

DEAR DR. MILLER: Pinky's had her first litter and I want to give them away before we become too attached to them. So at what age do young mice eat and drink on their own? — V. T.

Dear V. T.: At two weeks of age young mice will begin eating and drinking on their own, although they can't eat hard pellets until they're 18 to 20 days old. They may be weaned as early as 16 days, though giving them the boot this early might set them back slightly, so that they may never completely gain normal weight. To wait 18 days is better.

That extra 48 hours enables them to handle the switch nicely and they can be completely weaned and on their own without any setback. Pinky would probably prefer her kids to be out on their own by 21 days. If they're going to loiter around home much longer than that, consider moving them out of Pinky's quarters.

South Korea hotel to be replaced

SEOUL (UPI) — The Bando Hotel, once the largest hotel in South Korea, was closed down June 20, ending 37 years of operation.

Built and opened by the Japanese in 1937, the Bando served as headquarters of U.S. occupation forces at the end of World War II, the U.S. Embassy before the Korean War of 1950, and the main center of domestic politics in the 1960s.

The eight-floor hotel will be torn down later this year and replaced by a 44-floor, 1,000-room hotel to open in July, 1977. The new hotel will be called the Lotte Hotel and is to be built by a Korean

Beetle creating havoc in ponderosa forests

DENVER (UPI) — A small black insect only a fraction of an inch long is creating havoc in the ponderosa pine along Colorado's Eastern Slopes and the Black Hills area of South Dakota and Wyoming.

George Downing, branch chief for forest pest control in the U.S. Forest Service, estimates that more than one million trees have fallen victim to the mountain pine beetle in the past three years.

The Forest Service and forestry people from the infested states are taking all possible steps to halt the infestation, which Downing describes as the worst he has ever seen.

"I don't know how it would compare with some of the outbreaks they had 20 or 30 years ago' but it's as bad as anything I've seen in recent years," Downing said.

"We've got probably a gross land area involved of maybe a million acres along the front range involved here," Downing said. "It extends all the way from Colorado Springs to the Wyoming border. It encompasses about two-thirds of the ponderosa pine along there.

"Up in the Black Hills, we're saying 440,000 infested trees this year there," he said. "At least that many and perhaps more. In the Black Hills, it's over a gross land area of more than a million acres also."

The beetle, only about three-sixteenths of an inch long, does its damage by flying on the tree bark, boring into the tree and planting its eggs between the bark and the sap.

When the eggs hatch, the tiny larvae then feast on the tree until they too become adults and move out to lay their eggs in other trees.

"They attack kind of en masse all at one time," Downing said. "Usually the attacks are complete within a couple of days on a given tree. For all practical purposes, that tree is dead. But one of the things that fool a lot of people is that the trees, even after they've been attacked, will remain green for as long as a year."

Downing said conditons have been ideal for the beetles over the past three years.

The weather has been favorable for the beetle population, and trees have been allowed grow in a dense condition over much of the area, making them more susceptible to attack.

"If nature were left to run its course, you would have periodic fires sweeping through the country, and this would knock the beetle population down, Douglas said. "Also, it would mean that you would get new stands of trees following the fires.

Better Managing Needed

"Of course, we wouldn't want that now. We manage by keeping fires under control. But at the same time, we have not been managing these areas the way we should to keep the beetles under control."

Downing said the Forest Service was trying to retrieve some value from the infected trees by having them logged.

"On the other hand, we're not always able to do that," he said. "Many of the trees are more scattered or they're relatively inaccessible."

In the South Dakota-Wyoming area, the Forest Service has been harvesting by logging, hauling out the dead trees with helicopters and in some cases treating infected areas with chemicals.

"Along Colorado's Front Range, we have fewer opportunities to haul the trees out and log them," Downing said. "The main control work is by use of chemicals."

Downingsaid there were two methods for controlling the beetle before the infestation begins, incIuding use of a chemical spray which still is being tested.

"And that would be a protective spray for high value trees, not the whole forest," he said. "That would be impractical and undesirable probably, too. But if you have high value trees, one approach is to spray them and we have two or ttree compounds ttat oar researchers have been working on."

Downing said the other approach —and the one that most likely will be used over large areas —is to thin out the trees in dense forest stands.

"If you space the trees out, thin them, the trees then grow in a more vigorous condition a d the beetles will not build up in those stands," he said. "The idea then is to get all of the forests under management as rapidly as possible. If you don't impose any kind of management out there, they just grow up and stagnate over the years."

Automation speeds sale of tobacco

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Summertime for a North Carolina farm boy used to mean hours in a musty tobacco barn, waiting in the stifling August heat while his father's sheets of flue-cured tobacco were sold.

Under an automated auction system being put into commercial use for the first time in the state in July, the time from the back of the truck to the issuance of a sales check has been cut to as little as 30 minutes.

Under development since 1966, the system was designed by Albert Graves, a U.S. Department of Agriculture industrial engineer attached to North Carolina State University.

Through a combination of motor-and gravity-driven conveyor belts, tobacco is taken from the truck, run through weighing scales and past federal graders, and then on by an auctioneer who controls the speed of the belt.

Once past the auctioneer, the tobacco moves to the final portion of the belt, where firms pick up their purchases.

Tobacco officials say everyone wins with the system. The buyers get fresher tobacco. The farmer gets in and out of the warehouse faster. And the warehouseman handles more tobacco during a sales season.

"The tobacco moves past the people instead of the people past the tobacco," said Graves in a recent interview.

The system costs about $100,000, and is custom-designed by Graves for each warehouse installing it. All the machinery is purchased from commercial suppliers.

The Five Points Warehouse at Fuquay-Varina, N.C., 15 miles southeast of Raleigh, will be the first warehouse in the nation to use the complete system. At least five others, including ones at Rocky Mount, N.C., and Lake City, Fla., have expressed interest in acquiring it.

Farmers designating their tobacco for sale at the Five Points Warehouse under the new program, which requires designation to qualify for federal crop support payments, will be told when to arrive and then will tell warehouse officials how much tobacco they will be bringing on a given day.

"The tobacco is on the line about 10 minutes. The growers can come in, watch it sold, and if he doesn't want to reject the price, have his check and be gone in an average of 30 minutes," Graves said.

Under the old auction methods, farmers brought their tobacco to the warehouse of their choice, without prior designation, unloaded it, then waited for it to be weighed, graded and auctioned before collecting their checks.

Because auctioneers move slowly down the rows of tobacco lining the floor of dark warehouses, it sometimes took a full day for the entire process.

During its testing phase, he said, the system won wide acceptance from growers, and indications are that despite the fact it may produce idle warehouse floor space, warehousemen are also keen on the idea because more tobacco can be sold in a given amount of time.

One warehouse, working six hours a day, could handle as much as 26 million pounds of leaf during a sales season, he said.

Different casserole to please the family

By AILEEN CLAIRE

A different casserole with tuna, cheese, ripe olives, onions, celery and tomatoes proves attractive, appetizing and less expensive when the ingredients nestle in a bed of crepes. The crepes may be frozen to use with other recipes or for a duplicate of the Tuna Crepes Casserole, so make a double batch.

TUNA CREPES CASSEROLE

1 recipe crepes
1 (6 ounces) can pitted ripe olives
¼ cup finely chopped onion
¾ cup finely chopped celery
2 tablespoons margarine or butter
1-3rd cup sifted flour
¾ cup sifted flour
¾ teaspoon salt
1-16 th teaspoon white pepper
1-16 th teaspoon tarragon, crumbled
1½ cups thin cream
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons ripe olive liquor
1 (7 ounce) can tuna, drained
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
3 tablespoons shredded Parmesan cheese
4 tomato wedges

Bake crepes and set aside. Drain ripe olives, saving 2 tablespoons canned liquor. Heat oven to 350-degrees. Melt margarine. Add onion and celeery and cook until soft but not browned. Stir in flour, salt pepper and tarragon. Slowly stir in cream. Cook, stirring, until sauce becomes very thick. Stir in lemon juice, ripe olive canned liquor, drained ripe olives, tuna, parsley and 2 tablespoons Parmesan cheese.

Arrange 4 crepes in 10 x 5 x 2-inch baking dish so bottom is covered and allowing crepes to hang over sides. Top with remaining 4 crepes to make a double layer. Spoon hot filling into casserole. Fold crepes over filling leaving center open. Sprinkle with remaining tablespoon cheese. Bake in a pre-heated oven for 20 to 25 minutes until hot. Garnish with a tomato wedge in each corner. Makes 4 servings.

CREPES

2 eggs
2-3rds cup milk
2 tablespoons salad oil
2-3rds cup butteermilk pancake and waffle mix

Mix together the eggs, milk, oil and pancake and waffle mix and blend until smooth. Lightly grease a 9-inch skillet. Heat over moderate heat until few drops of water dropped onto pan will jump around. Pour 3 tablespoons batter into pan, for each crepe, and rotate pan to cover bottom. Cook until lightly brown on one side. Turn and brown on other side. Makes 8 large crepes (7 to 7½ inches in diameter).

Sugar not robbed of valuable nutrients

NEW YORK (UPI) — Food faddists misinform consumers when they promote a theory that refining robs sugar of valuable nutrients, says the Sugar Association.

The trade organization said sugar is a carbohydrate and a nutrient that supplies energy, but it contains little or no added nutrients.

Refining does not change sugar's nutrient value, the association added. Some brown sugars contain slight traces of iron, calcium and vitamin B due to their molasses content. But the amounts are minimal and are not considered contributions to daily needs for these nutrients.

The British are fond of tuna pastries

The British may call them "tunnies," but as one American put it, "it's plain tuna fish to me." However, Tuna Pastries are not plain and are far from the familiar tuna fish sandwich. These partries make good appetizer servings which may be eaten with the fingers or may be served in quantity as an entree.

TUNA PASTRIES

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1 can (6½ or 7 ounces) tuna in vegetable oil
1 cup cooked peas and carrots
1 can (8 ounces each) refrigerated flaky buttermilk biscuits
1 egg yolk beaten with 1 tablespoon water

Melt butter in saucepan. Blend in flour and salt; gradulally stir in milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens and comes to a boil. Remove from heat; stir in tuna, pease and carrots. Separate each flaky biscuit into 2 parts and roll or stretch into 3-inch circle. Place 1 tablespoon tuna mixture in center of each biscuit round. Fold half of biscuit over filling to make half-circle. Seal edges with fingers or by pressing down with rim of glass. Place on lightly greased baking sheet and brush with egg yolk. Bake in a 475-degree oven 8 minutes, until golden brown. Makes 40 appetizer servings.

Stuffed tomatoes with a new twist

A fresh look at an old standby recipe often turns it into a surprising new treat. Take this new approach, hot stuffed tomatoes, a recurrent favorite on many menus.

In this recipe, fish fillets are substituted for the usual stuffing of tuna or egg salad. The filling turns out to be a truly delicious innovation—and a hot one, at that.

A marvelous melange of finely sliced mushrooms, onion, celery, tomato pulp and diced fish are cooked together in a skillet. To this is added a spirited new bottled creamy garlic dressing which imparts a subtle flavor of garlic and a perfect blend of seasonings to the filling. There is also a slight accent of the new dressing in the toasty bread crumb topping that is sprinkled over the filled tomatoes at the last moment.

This distinctive new creamy white dressing with its appealing zesty flavor is remarkably versatile. You can also use it as a sauce for many hot vegetables.

Meanwhile, try it in this quick, off-beat tomato treat that takes probably twenty minutes to create. You'll have to agree it makes a fine catch for an easy Saturday luncheon.

STUFFED TOMATOES IMPERIAL

4 large tomatoes
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup finely sliced mushrooms
½ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup finely sliced celery
1 cup diced fish fillets
½ cup creamy garlic dressing
Bread Crumb Topping

Cut thin slice off top of tomatoes and remove pulp, reserving 1 cup. If desired, cut edges into petal shapes.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In medium skillet, melt butter and cook mushrooms, onion, and celery until tender. Add fish and pulp; cook 10 minutes or until fish flakes. Stir in creamy garlic dressing and heat through.

Fill tomatoes and sprinkle with Bread Crumb Topping. Place in shallow baking pan and bake 5 minutes.

BREAD CRUMB TOPPING

In small bowl, combine 1 tablespoon creamy garlic dressing with ¼ cup bread crumbs.

Ragout just fancy name for a stew

Few countries are without some form of a stew which began as a peasant's dish and is now accepted as a glorious discovery by those who like good, basic, properly seasoned dishes. These are dishes without pretension which evolved as the housewives threw whatever vegetables were in season in the pot.

In southeast France, the sunny, light-hearted Provence offers a profusion of fresh vegetables. From here comes a Ragout Mistral which has the basic ingredients of garlic, tomatoes and olives — and then whatever ingredients the cook wants to add.

Those who want to serve a wine with this stew may follow the example of the Provencal homemaker who often uses a dry white wine to prepare this dish, and serve a dry white wine — not red — with it. Suitable would be a Meursault from south of Beaune, for example.

Iced tea and lemonade devotees will find their summer favorites also go with this hearty French import. For dessert serve cheese and local fresh fruit in season.

RAGOUT MISTRAL
(French beef stew)

¼ cup butter
1 clove garlic, chopped
1 cup chopped shallots, leeks (or onions)
3 pounds lean chuck, cut into 1-inch cubes
Salt and pepper
Flour
2 cups dry French white wine (or beef broth)
1 can (10½-ounces) condensed consomme
3 tomatoes, peeled and chopped
3 zucchini, cut into 1-inch thick slices
1 can (15-ounces) baby whole carrots, drained
1 can (14-ounces) hearts of celery, drained
¼ cup coarsely chopped olives

Heat butter in a Dutch oven or kettle. Saute garlic and shallots until golden. Sprinkle meat with salt and pepper and roll cubes in flour. Brown meat cubes on all sides in Dutch oven. Add wine, consomme and tomatoes. Cover and simmer gently, stirring occasionally, for 1½ hours or until meat is tender. Add zucchini and cook 10 minutes or until zucchini are tender. Add carrots and celery cut into halves, and olives. Reheat until bubbly. Serve with baguette (bread). Makes about 6 servings.

Sauerkraut and ham make a good combo

Ham and sauerkraut make a good dinner combination which offers few problems in cooking. During the upcoming summer holidays why not try a Ham 'n' Kraut Planked Supper?

Although this may be cooked in aluminum foil in the oven, anyone with a barbecue grill can put this combination close to hot charcoal coals, to heat through for 15 to 30 minutes depending upon whether there is a cooking breeze. Those with smoker cookers may want to put the ham steaks and kraut on a wooden plank, with aluminum foil surrounding the ingredients to hold them on the plank but open at the top. For the grill, oil plank with cooking oil and check occasionally to see that it is not charring.

HAM 'N KRAUT PLANKED SUPPER

2 pounds fully cooked ham steak
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup chopped onion
1¼ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
¾ teaspoon caraway seeds
2 tablespoons honey
3½ cups well-drained sauerkraut
½ cup chopped green pepper
1 large red apple, cored and diced
Squash Mixture

In large skillet brown steak on both sides in butter; remove ham to wooden plank. Saute onion in drippings until lightly browned. Stir in seasonings, honey, kraut, green pepper and apple; toss well. Spoon kraut around ham. Cover with foil and bake in 375-degree oven for 15 minutes or place over hot coals of barbecue until hot. Pipe Squash Mixture around edge of ham and serve immediately.

SQUASH MIXTURE: Combine 2 packages (12 ounces each) frozen cooked (mashed) yellow squash, ¼ cup butter or margarine, 1 teaspoon salt and a dash pepper in saucepan. Cover and cook for about 8 minutes, stirring occasionally. Uncover and cook until squash mixture is thickened; stir frequently. Makes 6 servings.

Center gives Down's children special help

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — Little Brady put some rumpled old clothes in one box and toys in another. It took him two tries.

"Oh, Brady, you did it!" his teacher said excitedly. She quickly checked something on a sheet on a clipboard in front of her, then gave him a big hug and a kiss.

At another table, Malindi, 3, was shown two Raggedy Ann dolls and asked to point to the big one. She did and got the same kind of rewards.

Brady, Malindi and the others, squirming in their seats waiting their turns, were being taught things that normal kids their age pick up by themselves or with a little help.

They are Down's Syndrome (formerly known as mongolism) children or are handicapped mentally, in some cases, physically for other reasons.

Their school is part of the University of Oregon's Center on Human Development, which wants to help every Down's child of pre-school age living in the Eugene area or close enough to be driven in every day.

If a federal grant is approved, the center also will begin treating newborn Down's infants —four weeks and older—by sending someone to the homes to work with the parents.

"We are interested in the long run in finding very young children," said Robe Schwartz, the center's director. "When a Down's child is born, we'd like to know. We hope to have something to offer the families."

"We feel we have evidence that kids have made great progress at ages two, three and four," added Nonda Stone of the center's staff, "so if we can start earlier we can make much more progress."

That's in the future, however. Now, pre-schoolers come to the center to learn a lot of basics like colors, the concepts of up and down and large and small, how to brush teeth and wash hands, identifying common objects —the list goes on and on.

Down's Syndrome means a child has a genetic imbalance or was born with an extra set of genes or an extra chromosome. Researchers say one baby in 640 has Down's Syndrome.

The classroom program for pre-school age Down's and other handicapped children has been going for about two years. Usually 18-20 kids attend each day.

The staff includes certified teachers, university student aides and people trained in physical therapy and physical education. There's support from the Eugene schools and the Lane Intermediate Education District.

"We feel we work very nicely with local schools," Schwartz said. "This is not an ivory tower program."

The classrooms look like any nursery school —busy with toys, little furniture and bright colors everywhere.

A small slide illustrated the concept of up and down, and balls and blocks became round and square.

Coffee cans, paper bags and spoons were the objects of a lesson in identification. There seemed to be pairs of things, one large and one small, to illustrate size differences.

Much of the furniture was specially designed; chairs are low and tables look as if bites were taken out of them so the children could pull in closer. The teachers work with two or three kids at a time and keep records of each learning situation.

Each classroom has a darkened observation room sealed off by a window but equipped for listening. Microphones in the classrooms over the children pick up what's happening audibly.

While watching her daughter from one of these rooms, Chris Helm talked enthusiastically about what Malindi was learning and about the experience of having a Down's child.

"We were living in Coos Bay when Malindi was born," she said. "We came here when she was 15 months old so my husband could go to school." Mike Helm teaches at Spencer Butte Junior High School.

"We were sort of disheartened about what we were going to do with her," Mrs. Helm said. "We didn't know anything about Down's Syndrome, so it looked like there was no future for Malindi.

"Then I heard about this program, came one day for a look and got her in. That was a year ago last October. Within a month, well, it's just been tremendous! Malindi can recognize colors, count to five — these are just some of the things she has learned."

Mrs. Helm, who is 27 and a teacher herself, tried to observe as much as she can "to know what they're doing." She added, "Sometimes she is doing things you don't realize so you can demand a lot more of her if you know she's capable."

She said most people accept Malindi "as a pretty normal child because that's what we accept her as. She's retarded, yes, but when I say normal I just think of her as slower.

"She's capable of doing things eventually. Well, maybe not everything but she can feed herself, dress herself and do many more things perfectly.

"It's no good to treat her as different. I think this is a thing that people have to realize. Handicapped people have to be treated much more normally than they were treated in the past because the longer they are treated differently, the longer they're going to act in a different way."

Researchers minimize use of fertilizers

MANILA (UPI) — The International Rice Research Institute (IRRI), which with its "miracle rice" helped double rice crop yields in Asia and elsewhere in the 1960s, now is growing rice with a minimum use of fertilizer.

The idea is agriculturally revolutionary and economically important since fertilizer is one of the products most hard-hit by the oil crisis.

The technology, developed by the 700-man staff of the institute in Los Banos, 40 miles south of Manila, has cushioned the crippling blow of the oil crisis on the Asian farmer. IRRI's experiment on fertilizer use, incidentally, began in 1968 —long before any hint of the coming oil shortage.

"We confine fertilizer to a very judicious use, to make sure farmers apply it only where and when necessary," said Dr. Mano D. Pathak, IRRI chief entomologist since 1962 and one of the world's most eminent rice scientists.

The institute's experiment was pegged on finding out whether there was any significant difference in yield from traditional rice varieties using fertilizer and from modern varieties (which were bred to be responsive to fertilizer) grown without any application of the plant nutrient.

Miracle strains test out

IRRI chose the traditional variety Peta 8 and the "miracle" strains IR8 and IR20. Each year since 1968, researchers planted all three strains in three experimental stations, with only Peta 8 getting fertilizer. Although IR8 and IR20 were not fertilized, they yielded an average of 3.8 and 3.9 tons per hectare (2.47 acres) respectively, as against Peta 8's 3.2 tons.

The latest breakthrough is proving a boon to farmers in the rice growing nations of Asia, Africa and Latin America, many of whom, IRRI officials say. In point of impact, IRRI's fertilizer technology is just one of the many radical farm innovations successfully developed by the institute.

Established in 1960 by the Rockefeller and Ford Foundations in cooperation with the Philippine Government, IRRI gave the world the first "miracle rice" (IR8) in 1966. To date, 25 IRRI rice selections have been named and released for commercial cultivation by various nations.

Expands training program

IRRI now receives cash grants from seven sources, including the two foundations, the United States, Japan, the Netherlands, the United Kingdom and Canada. Australia in 1973 donated a $900,000 phytotron, a huge experimental greenhouse that can simulate any climate desired for rices studies.

FIGS AND CREME CARAMEL

Remove stems from 1 cup firmly packed dried figs and cut figs in half if desired. Pour 1¼ cups boiling water over figs and let stand while melting sugar. Place 1¼ cups sugar in heavy saucepan and stir over low heat until sugar melts and turns golden brown. Remove from heat and spoon 2 or 3 tablespoons melted sugar into 1½-quart charlotte mold or metal bowl. Tip mold so that syrup covers bottom and set aside. Carefully add water drained from figs to melted sugar remaining in saucepan. The mixture will steam and sugar will harden. Add a dash of salt and stir mixture over low heat until sugar dissolves and mixture becomes a clear, thin syrup. Add drained figs and chill thoroughly. Beat 6 eggs, 6 egg yolks, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup sugar and 1 tablespoon vanilla in a large bowl until well-mixed. Scald two cups half and half and 2 cups milk in saucepan over medium heat. Stir into egg mixture. Pour into mold with caramelized sugar on bottom. Set mold in pan of hot water and bake at 350 degrees 65 minutes or until knife inserted comes out clean. Remove from pan of hot water and cool. Chill eight hours or overnight. To serve, loosen top edge of custard with knife and shake mold gently. Invert serving dish over mold, then reverse both mold and dish. Pour a little caramel syrup over custard and garnsh with some figs. Serve the custard with the remaining sauce and figs.

Using the freezer can cut food bills

Rising prices, along with threatened shortages of commercially processed fruits and vegetables, have sent millions of Americans back to the soil this year. Hoping to save on future grocery bills by growing their own produce in home or community gardens, they've put a sudden strain on supplies of seeds, fertilizer, and gardening tools.

Also affected are sales of home freezers, as well as those of canning and freezing supplies, according to Pauline Church, home service advisor for the Republic Molding Corporation, Chicago, manufacturer of Freezette food containers.

"The nation's freezer manufacturers expect to ship a total of 2,305,000 chest and upright freezers in 1974, according to the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers," she noted. "This figure is lower than last year's whopping 2,415,000, however, because material shortages resulting from the energy crisis have limited production."

The comination of increased demand and restricted raw materials output is also putting many freezer supplies on the hard-to-get-list. Whether you're growing your own produce to freeze, watching for seasonal specials at market, or both, you need a carefully drawn up freezer food plan to get the most savings and eating pleasure from your efforts, Ms. Church emphasized.

''Just as you allocate ground in a garden according to family likes and dislikes, so should you assign freezer space to suit your eating needs in future months," she suggested. "Allow for some flexibility so that you can take advantage of a bountiful harvest or unexpected good buys. But don't get carried away by bargains to the point of crowing out more essential foods."

Generally speaking, freezer efficiency depends on adequate turnover of contents. While some foods can be stored safely for over a year, there's also the cost of keeping them frozen to consider. For each pound of food stored in a conventional 16-cubic-foot freezer for a full year with no turnover, for instance, the freezer operating cost adds up to about 10 cents. If all contents were consumed and replaced three times within that year, this figure would drop to around six cents per pound. If yours is a no-frost freezer, increase both costs by two or three pennies.

''To accurately measure savings, in other words, you'd have to compare the combined costs of the food itself, packaging it, and maintaining it at sub-zero temperatures with what you'd pay for the same item for immediate use," Ms. Church pointed out.

"But since no one can predict what prices will be six months from now, or even what will be available, even this rule is losing some of its validity," she admitted.

One area where you can count on saving money in the long run is in your choice of freezer packaging materials and containers.

While square or rectangular packages make more economical use of freezer space, some foods seem to 'work better' in round containers," Ms. Church noted.

Since fresh produce should be processed, packaged, and frozen as quickly as possible, it pays to organize your equipment ahead of time, according to the home service director. Make sure the freezer has been defrosted and cleaned, if needed, before you're ready to put up that first batch of green beans or strawberries. And be sure your supply cupboard contains the needed number of containers in convenient sizes, so you won't have to waste valuable time shopping when you should be packing and freezing.

Bad breakfast better than none at all

NEW YORK (UPI)—A bad breakfast is better than no breakfast at all, says nutritionist Margaret D. Simko.

But a good breakfast doesn't have to be routine bacon and eggs or even cereal.

Mrs. Simko, chairman of the home economics department of New York University, believes in matching breakfast menu to life style. If your teen-agers want to start their day with a meal of cold chicken or muffins and cheese, let them.

Or satisfy a child's sweet tooth with rice pudding, baked custard, oatmeal cookies with raisins or steamed rice with brown sugar and milk. A grilled cheese or peanut butter sandwich is good, too. Milk or citrus juice is optional.

Any of these makes a better starter than instant breakfast mix, diet drink, toaster pastries or enriched sweet rolls, Mrs. Simko said in an interview.

"Even though they contain 'all nutrients,' they often don't really equate breakfast. Some mixes are high in fat or very sweet."

They also can be boring. They lack the satisfaction of chewing. And they develop bad food habits by giving children the idea that all fat and sweet foods are good for them, Mrs. Simko said.

"But they generally are a better choice than no breakfast, and they must be evaluated in terms of individual needs and intake for the whole day.

"Nutritional deficiencies don't arise from one meal missed, but from poor food habits continued over a period of time."

She said the ideal breakfast provides one-fourth to one-third of a person's daily nutrients — protein, fat, carbohydrates, vitamins and minerals.

If breakfast calories come entirely from carbohydrate foods like Danish pastries, coffee cake, doughnuts or sweet rolls, they're empty calories.

Upside-down cake tempts all appetites

Homemade upside-down cakes are treats that linger in many memories. So, why not make such a delightful dessert more than a memory? A Honey-glazed Apple Ring turns out as a sheer delight for the baker and for the eater. This is the type of cake that lures all ages to the refrigerator for a late night snack, with milk, and also is good for breakfast.

HONEY-GLAZED APPLE RING

Topping:
2 Golden Delicious apples
2 tablespoons butter, melted
5 tablespoons honey, divided
1-3rd cup coconut
1-3rd cup chopped walnuts
¼ cup wheat germ

Cake:
⅓ cup shortening
2-3rds cup honey
2 eggs
2¼ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon allspice
2 or 3 Golden Delicious apples, pared, cored and chopped to measure 2 cups

To make topping:

Pare, core and cut apples crosswise into rings, ½-inch thick. Combine butter and 3 tablespoons of the honey; spoon into bottom of a well greased 10-inch tube pan. Arrange apple rings over butter mixture. (Any left-over apple can be chopped and used for cake). Combine remaining topping ingredients with 2 tablespoons honey. Spoon in-between apples, pressing down slightly.

To make cake:

Cream together shortening and honey. Beat in eggs (batter may look slightly curdled at this point). Sift flour with salt, soda, baking powder and allspice. Fold into creamed mixture along with chopped apples. Spread butter carefully over apples in pan. Bake at 350 degrees 50 to 60 minutes or until cake tests done. Let stand 10 minutes before inverting onto serving plate. Serve warm.

(Note: For a smaller cake, divide recipe in half and bake in a 3-½ cup ring mold).

Sauce makes succulent spareribs

Succulent spareribs are best enjoyed with good friends. These are the ultimate in finger-licking food and should be eaten without worry about a "sauced" chin. A different sauce for spareribs comes with the use of whole-berry cranberry sauce. You can simmer the ribs in advance and refrigerate them until ready to bake, which makes this a dish that takes little last-minute fussing for a truly holiday meal. Have plenty of napkins on the table and bowls of warm water and a slice of lemon to rinse greasy fingers.

CRANBERRY SPARERIBS

4 pounds spareribs, cut in serving-size pieces
1 can (10½ ounces) beef gravy
1 can (8 ounces) whole berry cranberry sauce
½ cup orange marmalade
3 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon

In large heavy pan, cover spareribs with water. Simmer 1 hour; drain. Arrange in shallow baking dish (13x9x2 inches). Meanwhile, in saucepan, combine remaining ingredients. Cook, stirring, until slightly thickened; pour over ribs. Bake at 450 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes or until ribs are tender. Spoon sauce over ribs occasionally. Makes 4 servings.

CURRIED GRAPE SAUCE

Colorful, fresh grapes are a boon to menu planning and are used to the cook's advantage in this Bombay Curry Sauce. In a pan, combine 1¼ cups firmly packed brown sugar, 1¼ cups white vinegar, juice of 1 lemon, 1 cup applesauce, 1 large onion, chopped, 1 clove garlic, 1 tablespoon salt, 2 teaspoons ginger and 1 or 2 teaspoons curry. Bring to a boil and cook over medium heat until slightly thick. Add 1 pound Thompson seedless grapes. Keep sauce warm while preparing rice ball. To make rice ball, wash thoroughly 2 cups pearl rice. Drain and place in pan. Cover rice with an inch of cold water and let stand several hours. Bring to a boil over medium heat and cook 3 minutes. Cover pan, reduce heat and cook 5 more minutes. Turn off heat and let stand, covered, for 10 minutes. Turn rice onto plate. When cool enough to handle, press into oiled rice ball mold or into 2 6-inch oiled bowls, or shape into a ball with hands, keeping hands wet and sprinkling salt on them. If mold is used, it can be prepared in advance. Steam the rice ball to reheat before serving with the Bombay Curry Sauce.

Fight inflation with pasta party

Pasta parties help stretch the food dollar. In planning a menu for a large family or for a number of guests consider serving spaghetti with a different twist. Top the pasta with a stuffed beef role — 1½ pounds of ground beef makes eight servings. Top with a tomato sauce and serve with a large salad and fresh fruit for dessert.

SPAGHETTI WITH STUFFED BEEF ROLL

1 egg
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
Salt and pepper
½ cup beef bouillon
1½ pounds ground beef
½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
4 carrots, halved and cooked
1½ cups sliced celery, cooked
½ cup chopped parsley
2 slices bacon, diced
½ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 tablespoon dark brown sugar
½ teaspoon thyme leaves
2 cans (8 ounces each) tomato sauce
1 cup water
1 pound spaghetti
2 tablespoons salt
4 to 6 quarts boiling water

Beat egg in large bowl with mustard, 1 teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Add bouillon, beef and bread crumbs. Mix until combined. Turn onto large sheet of waxed paper. With moistened hands pat into a 14 x 10-inch rectangle. Arrange carrots and celery over the meat; sprinkle with parsley. Roll up jelly-roll fashion, peeling off waxed paper while rolling. Place seam side down in shallow roasting pan. Seal ends of roll. Bake in 350-degree oven 1 hour. Meanwhile, prepare spaghetti sauce. Brown bacon in large saucepan over medium heat; remove with slotted spoon and set aside. Add onion and garlic and saute in drippings until lightly browned. Pour off excess fat. Stir in sugar, thyme, tomato sauce, 1 cup water and bacon. Bring sauce to a boil, reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes more. Brush some of sauce over beef roll during last 10 minutes of baking period. Keep remaining sauce hot to pour over spaghetti. During last 15 minutes of baking time, cook spaghetti. Gradually add spaghetti and 2 tablespoons salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Serve spaghetti with sliced beef roll and sauce. (Note: Allow meat to stand 5 minutes for easier slicing.) Makes 8 servings.

QUICHE LORRAINE

Shortcrust pastry
8 ounces plain flour
Pinch of salt
4 ounces butter
A little cold water to mix
Filling
2 eggs and 2 yolks
2 ounces grated cheese (gruyere, cheddar or similar)
salt and pepper
½ pint cream (or milk)
4 ounces bacon
1 onion
½ ounces butter

Make the shortcrust pastry and line into an 8-inch flan ring or shallow cake-tin with removable base and partially cook in oven. (To keep the bottom from puffing up, line with grease-proof paper or foil and fill with dried beans. The weight of the beans will hold the pastry against the tin during baking).Bake in preheated 400-degree oven for 10 minutes, until pastry is set. Remove paper and beans. Prick pastry with a fork and return to oven for 3 to 5 minutes more. Lower heat to 375 degrees. Meanwhile prepare the filling by beating the eggs and yolks in a bowl, adding the grated cheese, salt and pepper and cream. Melt the butter in a small frying pan, add the bacon, diced, and the onion finely sliced. Cook slowly until just golden in color, then turn the contents of the pan into the egg-mixture. Mix and pour into the pastry. Bake at 375 degrees, until it has puffed and the top browned. A knife plunged into the centre should come out clean and the quiche is ready to serve. It will stay puffed for about 10 minutes in the turned off hot oven with the door open. As it cools, it sinks down. It may be reheated but will not puff again.

LOS ANGELES SMOKING & CURING CO.

Salads from foreign lands

Salads are served differently in varying parts of the world. They are eaten before a soup and entree, after the entree and before dessert or with the meal. Dieters find that a salad of fresh greens and vegetables in season makes a less painful way to cut down on calories.

A salad visually is appealing and offers a variety of taste sensations depending upon what you select to dress the salad bowl. As refreshers try Avocado-tomato, Watercress-endive or the classic Ratatouille. These may be mixed in quantity and enjoyed as leftovers.

AVOCADO-TOMATO SALAD

1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 ripe avocado, peeled and diced
2 medium-sized tomatoes, peeled, seeded and cut into small pieces
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
¼ cup peanut oil
2 tablespoons white vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
Generous dash pepper
Crisp salad greens

Sprinkle lemon juice over diced avocado. Add tomato, onion and parsley. Combine peanut oil, vinegar, salad and pepper in a small jar. Cover tightly and shake until well mixed. Pur over avocado mixture; toss gently. Chill thoroughly. Serve on crisp salad greens. Makes 5 servings.

WATERCRESS-ENDIVE SALAD

6 heads Belgian endive, cut into bite-size pieces
1 bunch watercress, stems removed and torn
½ cup peanut oil
3 teablespoons white vinegar
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash black pepper
⅛ teaspoon paprika
2 teaspoons minced onion

Combine endive and watercress in salad bowl. Set aside. Combine peanut oil, white vinegar, salt, paprika, pepper and onion in a jar with tight fitting lid. Cover tightly and shake until well mixed. Pour over salad greens and toss. Makes 6 servings.

RATATOUILLE SALAD

1 small eggplant, peeled
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup peanut oil
2 medium zucchini, sliced ½-inch thick
1 medium green pepper, cut into strips
1 large onion, sliced and separated into rings
1 large clove garlic, minced
⅛ teaspoon pepper
5 medium tomatoes, cut into wedges
1 tablespoon chopped capers

Cut eggplant into 1-inch slices; sprinkle with salt. Place eggplant between 2 plates. Let stand about 30 minutes to drain. Heat peanut oil in large skillet. Add zucchini, green pepper, onion, garlic and pepper. Cook over medium heat about 5 minutes; stir occasionally. Cut eggplant into cubes. Add to skillet and continue cooking until vegetables are just tender. Stir in tomatoes and capers. Pour into large bowl. Chill thoroughly. Makes about 8 cups.

Nectarines spice up fresh salads

Next time you serve your own special super-duper hamburgers, light up the meal with salads filled with brilliant, ruby-gold fresh California nectarines. These bright salads are so simple to put together, you'll wonder why you haven't made them before.

While the meat is grilling and the buns are warming, select the handsomest fresh nectarines from your fruit bowl, cut them in half and remove the pits. If the nectarines is one of the freestone varieties, the pit will lift right out. Even if it's a cling, the pit is easily removed. Just cut around the pit, through the stem end with a grapefruit knife; then either pull the pit out with the knife through the stem end or slice around the fruit and lift the pit out.

Using one nectarine for each person to be served, set the two halves on a crisp bed of shredded iceberg lettuce and pass the tangy, toasted pine-nut dressing. You may find you have a double bonus, because for many of the diners, especially the dieters, the natural sweetness of the nectarine may even let your salad double as dessert.

NACTARINE SALAD

1-3rd cup salad oil
1-3rd cup tarragon flavor wine vinegar
½ teaspoon seasoned salt
¼ teaspoon crumbled tarragon
¼ teaspoon grated lemon peel
¼ cup toasted pine-nuts chopped
6 fresh California nectarines
3 cups shredded iceberg lettuce

Combine oil, vinegar, salt, tarragon, lemon peel in small jar. Cover and shake well. Add pine-nuts and shake again before serving. Halve, remove pits and arrange 2 nectarine halves for each serving on shredded lettuce in individual salad bowls. Spoon on dressing.

Makes 6 servings.

To toast pine-nuts, spread in shallow pan and toast 5 minutes in moderate oven (350 degrees F). Cool.

Just a little steak can go a long way

You can serve steak at your next barbecue and still keep your financial ship afloat. Plan judiciously and watch how a little steak can go a long, long way.

Here's a new idea that will help. Steak Sticks let your stretch a pound of round steak into six servings.

Cut the round steak into narrow strips or sticks, and, for a glamorous touch, wrap the sticks in bacon and brush with a tangy baste of prepared yellow mustard and pineapple juice. Then grill and serve on frankfurter rolls.

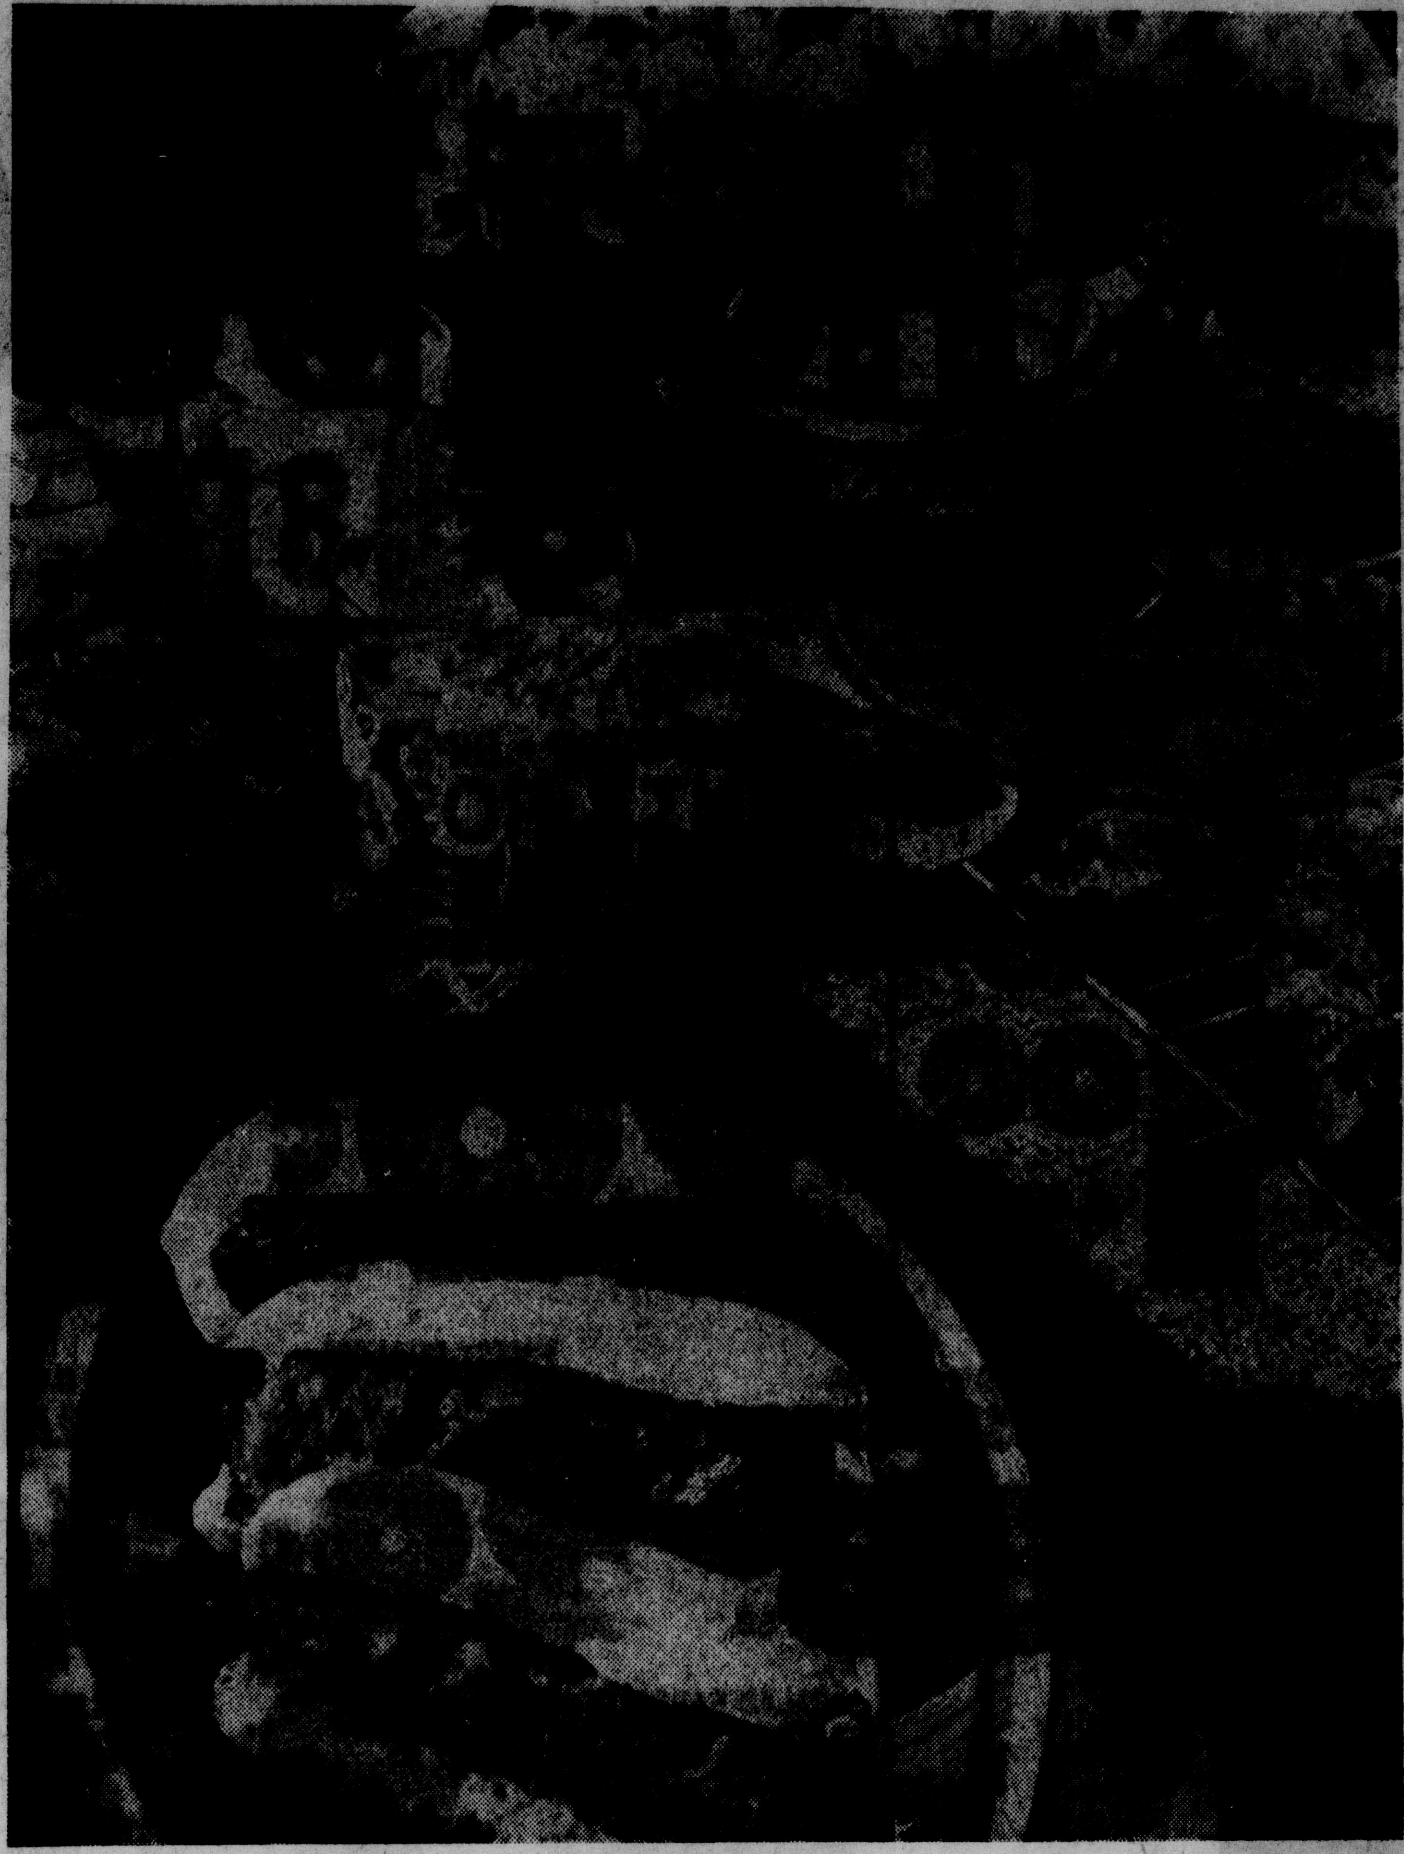
Accompany the sticks with Patio Pilaf, very elegant but very easy, relying on a package of precooked rice and an envelope of brown gravy mix. Prepare the pilaf indoors, then keep it warm outdoors by placing it on the edge of the grill.

An appropriate menu would include a tossed salad, fresh strawberries and cookies, and iced tea, coffee or fruit punch.

STEAK STICKS

1 to 1½ pounds round steak
6 to 8 slices lean bacon
¼ cup prepared yellow mustard
¼ cup pineapple juice juice
1 tablespoon brown sugar
6 to 8 frankfurter rolls, split and toasted

Cut steak into 6 to 8 strips, 1-inch thick; wrap each with bacon and fasten with wooden picks. Stir together mustard, juice, and brown sugar; brush over steak sticks. Grill over hot coals about 10 minutes, turning frequently and brushing with additional mustard mixture. Remove wooden picks and serve on toasted rolls. Makes 6 to 8 servings.



STEAK STICKS

PATIO PILAF

1 green pepper, chopped
1 tablespoon oil
3 cups water
1 envelope (¾ ounce) brown gravy mix
½ teaspoon garlic salt
3 cups packaged pre-cooked rice
¼ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons chopped pimento

Cook pepper in oil in large sauce pan until tender. Stir in water, contents of gravy mix envelope, and garlic salt; bring to a boil. Remove from heat. Stir in rice, mayonnaise, and pimento. Cover; let stand five minutes. Whip lightly with fork. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Townspeople feel anger over grant

NICODEMUS, Kan. (UPI) — This small town in the wheat farming country of northwestern Kansas was founded more than 100 years ago by exslaves. During the late 1880s the town had several cultural organizations, two banks, a hat shop, general store, newspaper, post office, and a school.

Over the years, however, most of its people have moved away, and today there are only 10 houses left. But the 50 residents who remain in the all-black farm town are not down and out.

They are preparing to replace an old Baptist church built 100 years ago, and the town hall, built of native beige-colored stone, is neatly kept. In addition, they asked for and got a $240,000 grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) two years ago to build a 10-unit housing project for the elderly.

The townspeople, dreaming of restoring their lost prosperity, said it would help get their friends and relatives to come home to spend their retirement years.

But the black people are angry now because they could not get a builder to construct their proposed housing unit for $240,000 and they have been unable to get any more funding from the government.

The town leaders subsequently decided to go ahead and build what they could with the money they have, starting in July, but they are not happy about it, and suspect they were discriminated against.

"There's a mouse in the meal somewhere up and down the line," said Ora Switzer, a member of the Township Board. "Everywhere you look they've lost our papers and this, that and the other."

The town's housing authority applied to HUD for an extra $32,616, the smallest sum contractors said was needed to complete the projece as planned. But the application was held up in Kansas City for almost a year, and by the time it reached Washington, the government had imposed a blanket moratorium on supplemental funds for any housing project.

"We've made so many trips up and down the road and they've had us go this place and that place. We hate to be denied this when we've had such a great hope," Mrs. Switzer said.

Accusations of racial discrimination were brought up after nearby Hill City, the larger and more prosperous county seat, won approval for extra funds for a 25-unit public housing project. Applications for similar funds from the two towns were sent in at the same time.

"We feel it was definitely discrimination, and we're hopping mad," said Lois Alexander, director of the Nicodemus Housing Authority. "We're still going to fight, not so much for the buildings or anything, but to see what happened to our request."

Starving cat becomes top award winner

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, Ohio (UPI) An abandoned cat, once nearly dead from starvation, is now a veteran feline beauty contest winner and is vying for the top spot in the All-American Glamous Kitty contest.

The all-white mixed-breed cat, named Snowball by his owner, Gail Lucas, 14, of Washington Court House, has already won more than $100, a television set, a personalized cat collar and two trophys in various contests.

"He was almost dead when we got him," Miss Lucas said. "He was real skinny and everything. I had gone to the animal shelter to get a cat and when Snowball licked my hand through the cage bars I knew he was the one."

Miss Lucas, who says she wants to be a "pet doctor," nursed the kitten to health after purchasing him for $4 from the shelter in October of 1972.

If the nearly 2-year-old cat is among finalists selected in the contest sponsored by a kitty litter firm, he will go to Miami Beach in July for the final judging.

"I'm really proud of him," said Miss Lucas. "Beside winning all the contests he's really a smart cat. He sits up and rolls over on command."

15% of urban children eat paint chips

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — As many as 15 per cent of young children in urban areas have dangerous levels of lead in their bodies from eating paint chips, the Allegheny County Health Department reports.

Effects range from slow learning and misbehavior to severe brain damage and death. 3

WHAT'S IN STORE...
NO MAGIC IN MARGINS

I'm sure that by now most consumers are totally confused about the meat supply and price situation with the many varied reports by the media. One of the main purposes of the recent conference in Washington was to help the livestock industry find ways to stimulate sales of meat. The narrowing of the margins between the price the farmer receives and the retail price for meat was another stated objective. It was proposed that "red hot" meat specials be advertised by the retailers so the consumers could take advantage of this "low price" meat.

But then it was announced that the government would buy $100 million worth of beef and pork for the fall school-lunch program. Immediately, the wholesale prices went up, leaving meat buyers uncertain what would happen next.

Let me explain what I can about the situation today. Despite news reports to the contrary, lower farm prices are being passed on to customers now — at least at Alpha Beta. In checking our current list of meat and poultry prices against those of a year ago, it is interesting to note that many meat cuts are almost 20 cents a pound lower than a year ago. Turkey prices have dropped dramatically this summer, and chicken is down an amazing 34% from a year ago. This is in spite of the fact that there has been an increase in labor, transportation, and rent costs — and everyone knows what has happened to their own utility bills. These are all factors which add to the margin or difference between what the farmer receives and what the consumer pays. That margin increase is not magic.

I must tell you, honestly, even our best meat authorities can't predict exactly what the future will bring. We know there are fewer cattle being placed on feed for the fall and winter market, which could mean another round of shortages and higher prices. We hope not. We can add our voice to those who tell you that meat is a good buy right now.

Festive foods for traditional July 4 observance

For a bang-up celebration of the Fourth of July this year, start July 2 and continue through July 8, covering all historical bases.

The Continental Congress approved the resolution of independence from Britain July 2, drafting the Declaration July 4. The declaration was not, however, read publicly until July 8. Observers of these first years have left reports of a "festive and uproarious celebration of the first anniversary in Philadelphia spread to other cities and states."

Although the community turnouts are not the massive affairs they were 50 or even 25 years ago, the tradition is still strong among Americans of a day of freedom and feasting on some of the most typically American foods, from hams to hot dogs, from homemade pies to watermelon and ice cream.

GRAND SLAM FRANKFURTER ROLL

Split a loaf of French bread the long way, butter it with garlic butter and toast lightly on grill. On the bottom half arrange sliced tomatoes, sliced onions, sliced cucumbers, franks which have been split and grilled, and mayonnaise. Add cheese if you like. Top with the other half of the loaf. Cut through in thick slices the round way. Serve with radishes and green onions.

BLACK FOREST BARBECUE

For 6 people, take 12 bratwurst and slice them down the middle. Mash ½ pound of liverwurst and combine with 2 tablespoons of grated onion, ½ cup of sour cream and a dash of Tabasco sauce. Stuff the bratwurst with this mixture, brush with mustard and roll two each in foil. Cook in the foil on the grill for 12 to 15 minutes, turning them twice during the process.

BALL PARK CHOWDER

4 all-meat franks
1 can cream-style corn
3 slices West Virginia bacon
1 can milk

Dice bacon and brown until crisp. Drain on paper towel. Cut franks into ¼-inch slices and brown lightly in bacon drippings. Pour corn and milk in a saucepan. Add frankfurter slices, 3 tablespoons bacon drippings and diced bacon. Simmer 10 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

CHINESE DRAGON FRANKS

½ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons corn starch
⅛ teaspoon cloves
2 tablespoons onion chopped fine
1 can (13½ ounces) pineapple chunks
1 cup pineapple juice
1 tablespoon vinegar
3 tablespoons soy sauce
1 beef bouillon cube
1 pepper cut in 1-inch square pieces
2 carrots cut in thin strips
8 all-meat franks cut in bite-size pieces
1 tablespoon butter

Brown franks in butter. Set aside, mix in saucepan onion, brown sugar, corn starch, and cloves. Add pineapple juice (if not 1 cup, add water to make 1 cup), vinegar, soy sauce and bouillon cube. Cook, stirring frequently, until mixture is thick. Add franks and butter, carrots, peppers and pineapple chunks to sauce. Simmer 15 minutes only. Serve over rice or Chinese noodles. Throwing a party?

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Party-giving this summer can be a breeze, with some help from the pros.

The following suggestions were gleaned from Hospitality, a restaurant industry magazine.

— Cool off with an all-salad buffet. Green, vegetable, rice, macaroni and meat salads, for instance, with a fruit salad for dessert.

— Or feast on soups, some hot, some cold. Start with Spanish gazpacho, cold tomato soup with chopped or diced raw vegetables for garnish. Serve a meat and vegetable soup as main course, Middle Eastern cucumber-yogurt soup in lieu of salad and Danish chocolate soup for dessert. If recipes for the more exotic ones aren't in your cookbooks, try the public library's cookbook collection.

No soup tureen? Substitute any large, pretty container, from a punch bowl or salad bowl to enameled Dutch ovens.

Edible Centerpieces

— Place little dishes of garnishes — crumbled bacon, minced fresh chives or parsley, whipped cream, grated cheese, popcorn and chopped egg — beside the soups they complement best.

— Make edible centerpieces for a sit-down meal. Fill a clay flowerpot with styrofoam and plant it with skewers full of fresh vegetables — green pepper chunks, cherry tomatoes, raw mushroom slices, and tasseled celery and scallions.

To make tassels, cut narrow slits in both ends of short pieces of celery and scallions; soak them in cold water in the refrigerator until the ends curl.

— For out of hand eating, serve scoops of ham salad or similar types in ice cream cones.

— Hollow out a large cabbage to make a bowl for cole slaw.

Edible Bread Basket

— Serve chopped or pureed green vegetables in hollowed out tomatoes. Mixed vegetable salad with mayonnaise dressing would be good this way, too.

— Make a bread basket for tiny sandwiches: hollow out a loaf of unsliced bread. First, slice off the top to use as a lid.

— Party pears make a spectacular looking dessert with very little effort or cost. Place canned pear halves cut side down on a platter; frost them with whipped cream cheese thinned with a little water, then cover the frosting with halved grapes.

— Frosted grapes in bunches are an edible centerpiece; little clusters make a pretty garnish for meat and poultry platters. To frost them, coat with lightly beaten egg white and sprinkle with sugar or a mixture of sugar, cinnamon and ground cardamon. Dry on a rack.

Cheese Crock

— A restaurant-style cheese crock is easy to copy. Whip a cheese spread with a little curry, then stir in chopped chutney and roasted diced almonds. Sprinkle a few almonds on top for garnish.

— Hold club sandwiches together with skewers. This idea is great for cookouts and picnics where guests often need an extra pair of hands to assemble all their food on one plate and get it safely to a table.

— Use parsley bouquets in mustard pots or small glasses or cups as centerpieces for small round tables.

— Cut barbecued spareribs into individual riblets and arange them around a platter or tray of drained canned pear halves dressed with Polynesian-style sweet and sour sauce. The sauce also makes a good dip for the ribs.

USDA revises its grade standards for dry peas

Revised grade standards for whole dry peas will become effective July 1, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has announced. The revised standards will be substantially the same as proposed in the March 21 issue of the Federal Register.

The name "dry peas" will be changed to "whole dry peas" to differentiate the commodity from split peas. Also, official graders will no longer classify dry peas by their variety name. Instead, graders will classify them as Smooth Green, Smooth Yellow, Wrinkled, Winter, or Mixed Dry Peas. At the applicant's request, however, the certificate of grade will carry the applicant's statement as to the variety of the peas.

Certain other changes were made for the purpose of clarity.

Official grading of dry peas is provided by USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, upon request and for a fee.

The revised standards are scheduled to be published in the May 29 Federal Register. Copies are available from the Grain Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, USDA, 6525 Belcrest Road, Hyattsville, Maryland 20782.

Now is the time to take advantage of fresh golden, plump apricots. The U.S. Department of Agriculture reports that most fresh apricots are marketed in June and July with a limited supply available in August and September.

To help you enjoy this delicious, vitamin A-rich fruit, here are some tips from USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service.

Apricots develop their flavor and sweetness on the tree, and should be mature but firm, when they are picked.

In buying apricots select those that are plump and juicy looking, with a uniform golden-orange color.

Ripe apricots will yield to gentle pressure on the skin.

Yellowish-green apricots are not fully ripe but will quickly ripen at room temperature.

Store ripe apricots in the refrigerator and use within 5 days.

Apricots average about 12 to a pound but this will vary according to size and variety.

Try this simple but delicious apricot dessert:

BAKED APRICOTS

12 fresh apricots, peeled
½ cup boiling water
¼ cup sugar
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons brown sugar
whipped cream garnish, optional

Halve apricots and remove pits. Arrange fruit, hollow side up, in a shallow baking dish. Combine water, sugar and lemon juice. Pour over fruit and sprinkle with brown sugar. Bake uncovered, until tender — about 20 minutes in 400 degree oven. Garnish with cream, if desired. Serves 4-6.

Traditional dishes for the holiday

Stir together sugar, water, corn syrup, lemon juice and rind in small saucepan. Bring to boil over medium heat and boil 5 minutes. Cool. In blender container place lemon syrup, gin, lime juice, cherry juice, peaches and ice cubes. Blend on medium speed of blender until consistency of snow. Serve in chilled glasses with maraschino cherry and peach slices on a skewer, if desired. Makes 4 drinks.

Sues hospital over loss of his dentures

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Ronald O'Banion figures $15,250 should compensate for the "humiliation and embarassment" he suffered for 33 days after his false teeth were lost.

O'Banion filed a suit for that amount of money recently against Jewish Hospital, where his false teeth disappeared with his meal tray.

He said he had just returned from surgery, was heavily sedated and placed the dentures on a food tray before falling asleep. O'Banion said when he awoke, the tray was gone and so were his teeth.

Royalty enters the fashion world

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prince Egon von und zu Furstenberg, 28, studied investment banking all of his life so he could keep an eye on the family fortunes but one day he decided banking was like having a rock in his head and he turned men's wear designer.

He was brooding at his desk at Lazard Freres and Co., a Wall Street investment bank, when something snapped. Next thing he knew he was working days at an E.J. Korvette discount store as an as- his and her fashion show. attending classes in design at the New School at night.

It was only a short time until he was able to follow in the footsteps of his wife, Princess Diane, who started her own business five years ago and has been immensely successful as a designer. They have been separated for a year but remain good friends and recently put on a joint his and hers fashion show. Both were widely acclaimed.

The hits of his show were leather jackets in a wide variety of style and cut and in many colors, a brilliant red shirt jacket of double-faced wool, shirts and sweaters in brilliant are decor designs reminiscent of the tower on the Chrysler Building in New York and some brilliant brushed denim. Hers were for chic and flattering dresses.

Swinging Couple

Some other highlights of his collection: Cabretta leather coats cut like blazers or zippered or inlaid with knit, and in short battlejacket sizes; suede jackets with an American Indian pattern influence, sweaters with an all over turtle design for good luck, machinewoven sweaters manufactured wrong side out to give a hand made look, a brilliant array of printed sports shirts, one with an art deco design that showed an all over pattern of nudes arising from the sea against a flaming sunset.

Diane dropped her title for business reasons and so did von Furstenberg. They even took out the "von" which to Europeans denotes nobility but put it back in for esthetic and other reasons. He also dropped the "und zu" since the whole name and title is a mouthful.

The von Furstenbergs had a mild reputation for swinging and once posed nude for a New York magazine before magazines were using nude centerfolds. But von Furstenberg modestly grabbed a towel at the last minute and the magazine contented itself by showing Diane from the waist up.

The gossip columns have linked him in recent weeks with Minnie de Beauveau-Croan, granddaughter of Antenor Patino, the Bolivian tin king and one of the richest men in the world. Von Furstenberg's family includes the Fiat automobile empire and there were suggestions Egon and Minnie could join forces and produce tin lizzies.

"We're just good friends," he said of the gossip column reports. "Diane and I separated three months ago but not legally. Divorce? It's really just a trial separation and there are no lawyers yet. The children, Alexander, 4, and Tatiana, 3, are with her. We are trying out how it is to live alone after 10 years when you haven't really made up your mind what to do. Minnie? She lives in Paris."

Not a Playboy

Von Furstenberg was born in Venice, the son of Prince Tassilo von Furstenberg and Clara Agnelli, sister of the chairman of the board of the Fiat Motor Works. There was school in Venice, boarding school in Switzerland, college in Geneva where he met Diane on the third day of school and a year's service in Burundi on a sort of a Swiss peace corps observing the Watutsi and Hutu tribesmen, which was better than military service.

The von Furstenbergs came to New York six years ago and attended all the proper parties where they cut a swathe. However Egon said he never considered himself a playboy because he did not like to dance and did not have a fast car or a yacht, never showed off.

"I'm really into my work," he said. "It is fascinating to start my own company and see it grow like a child. My clothes are already in many of the big New York department stores. I always wanted to design but was told that investment banking was the only proper thing to do. It was in my head like a stone. Now I walk down the street in New York and see some one wearing one of my creations and I'm happy."

Boston costs higher than other cities

BOSTON (UPI) — It costs more to live in the Boston area than any other city in the continental United States, according to figures released by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The greater New York area ranked second. Hartford, Conn., was third.

The Bureau said an average family of four in Boston would require $14,893 to live on an "intermediate" level —$2,267 above the average of 37 other mainland cities surveyed.

Only Anchorage, Alaska, and Honolulu were more expensive with figures of $16,520 and $14,937 respectively.

The report showed the average cost of goods and services jumped 9.7 per cent between the fall of 1972 and the fall of 1973 when the survey was conducted.

The survey included taxes as well as "those goods and services making up the day-to-day necessities of life" — food, housing, transportation, clothing and medical care and other "family consumption costs."

A hypothetical family in the survey was made up of a 38-year-old husband employed full time, his "non-working" wife, a 13-year-old boy and eight-year-old girl.

Boston had the highest housing costs, the second-highest food bill and the highest personal income-tax payments, according to the report.

Living costs in the greater New York area and nearby northern New Jersey averaged $14,448. The same family in Hartford needed $13,721, the report said.

San Francisco was fourth at $13,378 and Buffalo, N.Y., was fifth at $13,223.

The 1973 Statistics showed a 12 per cent jump in food costs and a 3.2 percent increase in housing costs over 1972.

Wendell D. Macdonald, head of the Labor Department's Boston office cited the city's heavy dependence on real estate taxes, a shorter than average building season and higher construction and fuel costs as reasons for expensive housing.

Te said the necessity of importing food from outside the region accounted for the high cost of eating.

He used melon to rob a bank

CHICAGO (UPI) — Police arrested Stanley Glover recently after he allegedly robbed the Illinois State Bank armed with a half-eaten watermelon.

Police said Glover, 23, an unemployed ex-serviceman, robbed the bank of $12,000, then began distributing the money on the street. He was carrying $8,970 when apprehended, police said.

Officers said Glover got the money by threatening a teller with a "bomb" in a brown paper bag. Police said they found only the watermelon inside.

Dentist saw trouble ahead in Nixon's smile

HONOLULU (UPI) — President Nixon's problems with the Internal Revenue Service and Watergate didn't surprise Dr. Robert M. Gibson a bit.

The dentist claims he knew Nixon's presidency wouldn't be smooth once he had seen him smile.

Gibson, who contends that smiling is a basic form of body language, said he knew Nixon would defeat Sen. George McGovern for the presidency because "Nixon has a big smile, and McGovern has a rather bland one."

"Nixon's smile showed strength," Gibson said, but a "threatening cuspid, the pointy tooth three off the center shouldn't be quite as pointy as President Nixon's, "indicating to Gibson there was trouble ahead.

"A slightly rounded cuspid takes away the sharp look," Gibsos said. "It's friendlier. Nixon has a big smile, but it isn't necessarily a sincere one."

The 46-year-old dentist who specializes in capping teeth said he became interested in smiles years ago when he saw that his patients weren't displaying his work to the best advantage.

"For years I've been doing cosmetic reconstruction," Gibson said. "I can understand people covering up poor teeth, but even after the work was done, many patients still weren't showing their teeth when they smiled."

So Gibson started explaining to his patients during their treatments "how important smiles are, how they are a way of showing others the best in you."

"A good smile comes from the inside out," he said, "starting way deep down in your heart and ending in the smile in your eyes."

While capping the teeth, Gibson would tell his patients about the techniques he has developed to improve a smile. Many were pleased with the results of his advice, word spread and soon local politicians started asking Gibson for suggestions on how to improve their smiles.

"You want your smile to reflect the best in you," he said. "You can say what you want about yourself through a smile.

"At first, of course, people are very self-conscious when they practice smiling. But after a while they get the hang of it and what a difference it makes.

"I tell my patients that every morning after they've finished brushing their teeth, they should smile up a storm.

"Stand in front of the mirror, start with a small smile, and work up to a big wow of a smile," Gibson said with a big full smile lighting up his face.

"Start with a little smile, the one you use when somebody opens a door or stands aside to let you go first," Gibson said. "Make a good arc with your lips and show the tips of your upper teeth."

A basic rule of a good smile is "show your teeth," Gibson said. "People who smile without showing their teeth tend to be secretive."

Gibson recommends that during practice sessions, hold the small smile for 10 seconds, then move up to the "half smile, the 'I'm glad to see you smile.'"

Then comes the big moment, the full smile, the "you have just won a trip to Paris smile," Gibson said.

"Watch to see that you are smiling evenly, that both ends of your mouth are going up at the same angle. An uneven smile can look like a sneer."

Teeth suggest all sorts of personality traits to Gibson, who is in the midst of writing a book about smiles. Correcting or capping poor teeth, he emphasises, can convey a positive outlook where a negative impression was left on others before.

"A thin upper lip stretched over the teeth is a hostile smile," Gibson said, even though the person may not want to reveal that he is angry.

"A chipped tooth suggests aggression. Small, square teeth have done a lot of grinding and suggest a tense, determined, even stubborn person.

Gibson considers John F. Kennedy the president with the best smile, followed by Dwight Eisenhower and Franklin D. Roosevelt. The best living smilers in Gibson's opinion are Princess Grace of Monaco among women and skier Jean-Claude Killy among men.

It takes about a month for Gibson to complete a capping job, and he recommends that his patients practice smiling daily during that time.

But Gibson cautions that if a person can't learn to smile attractively in 30 days in a natural way, that he stop the exercises because he'll develop a phony smile by overtrying.

New volleyball record claimed by 24 girls

CASPER, Wyo. (UPI) — Twenty-four Casper high school girls today claimed the world's record for playing 225 consecutive hours of volleyball.

The girls passed the previous record of 168 hours last Friday set by Kirkby College of Further Education in Liverpool, England. They continued play to stay ahead of a group of Illinois students also attempting to break the record.

The marathon was started May 31 by the girls to raise $2,500 in pledges for athletic uniforms and equipment at the Natrona County, Wyo., high school.

Should you buy no-lead gasoline?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Should you buy no-lead gasoline for your car?

The question is pertinent because many service stations are already offering such gas. By July 1, under new federal regulations, it should be available to motorists in about 110,000 stations across the country.

That figures out to about two in every three stations in city areas and roughly enough other station in rural sections, according to estimates from the Environmental Protection Agency.

Stations are being required to carry the gas because 1975 model cars —which will start appearing in showrooms in September —won't run on anything else without destroying their expensive new exhaust control devices. To force the issue, these new cars will be equipped with smaller necks in the intake line under the gas cap which will fit only narrowneck nozzles on the new no-lead gas pumps.

But the new nozzles obviously will fit older cars with the standard intakes, so the question comes back to whether the driver should try no-lead gas.

The answer is that you can, in general, if your car is a 1971 model or later, up through the current '74 models. Earlier models have high compression engines requiring gasoline with more octane than the no-lead gas has.

Even that is not a hard and fast rule, however. Chrysler turned out some models in 1971 and 1972 which required an occasional tank of leaded gas to keep the engine running properly. In addition, cars tend to develop their own octane appetites with prolonged use. If there's any doubt, consult your owner's manual and your own experience.

"Regular" gas contains lead, incidentally, though not as much as "premium." The octane rating of most no-lead gasoline will be about 87 under the formula now being used on those stickers placed on the face of gas pumps. That level of octane, in general, is not sufficient for pre-'71 model cars.

There is also the matter of price to consider in no-lead gasoline. The EPA estimates it will cost about five cents more than regular. The industry thinks it will be more like two or three cents.

If an oil company is not now turning out no-lead gas, government rules allow it to charge up to the price of premium for the product once it starts offering it. Some companies already carrying it, however, are not charging premium-equivalent prices, so it is possible the pressures of the marketplace will keep the price below that of premium.

One final point: The automobile industry has been worried that people will shy away from buying '75 models because they may fear no-lead gas will be hard to find, particularly in rural areas. The EPA doesn't think there will be much of a problem. That remains to be seen, but experts believe drivers of '75 models will be able to use a few gallons of leaded gas in a pinch wthout ruining the anti-pollution device. And both EPA and the automobile industry seem to agree that next year's models will get quite a few more miles to the gallon on no-lead fuel than those of the current or past few years because of the switch to the new exhaust control device.

In the hints for the helpless department, one appliance manufacturer recommends dumping an occasional tray of ice cubes through your garbage disposer, and grinding them up with it, of course, to keep the blades sharp. Bones apparently do the same thing.

We'll be happy to try to answer consumer questions or solve problems. While we can't promise to answer every letter, we'll do our best. Let us know care of Buyers Billboard, UPI, 315 National Press Building, Washington DC 20003.

3 white Bengal tigers born at Cincinnati Zoo

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Three white Bengal tigers were born at the Cincinnati Zoo Thursday, raising the known population in the world to 33.

The three cubs were born to Kesari and were sired by Rawana, who died Monday of a kidney disorder. Both tigers were on loan to the Cincinnati Zoo from the National Zoo in Washington D.C.

Ed Maruska, zoo director, described the three cubs as "pink-nosed, pink-pawed, with ash grey and black stripes and icy blue eyes."

Maruska said the three cubs increased the number of white tigers in American zoos to five. The other two are in the National Zoo.

He said their color will lighten with maturity. They weighed three pounds each at birth.

U.S.-Sweden relations seem to be improving

By JOHN F. BARTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration officials hope that relations between Sweden and the United States, seriously strained in the latter days of the Vietnam war, are on the mend.

The sharp public criticism of U. S. policy in Vietnam by Sweden's outpsoken Prime Minister Olaf Palme was a constant irritant to officials here.

Relations between the two countries reached an all time low in the closing months of the war when Palme compared President Nixon's policies in Vietnam to those of Adolf Hitler in the World War II.

Dr. Jerome Hall was recalled from his post as U.S. Ambassador to Sweden and the United States asked Sweden to delay sending another ambassador here.

Now that American involvement in Vietnam has ended, a thaw in relations between Washington and Stockholm is apparent.

Officials here are suddenly recalling that, after all, Palme attended Kenyon College in Gambier, Ohio, and toured the length and breadth of the United States as a young man.

Palme has frequently stated that he obtained many of his political ideas from his observations of American life during that tour.

A recent ceremony in the White House marked what administration officials view as a turning point towards more positive relations with Sweden: President Nixon formally received the credentials of Swedish Ambassador Count Wilhelm Wachtmeister.

Neither the President nor the ambassador made any mention whatever of the recent strain in relations between the two countries. Instead, both stressed the principles that the nations have in common.

In his formal remarks, Nixon said when the contributions that American citizens of Swedish descent have made to this country are considered, "one realizes that the foundations upon which to build a lasting structure of friendship between our two countries are broad and solid."

"It will be most worthwhile for our two countries to build upon those foundations," Nixon said. "By working together in the years to come on our shared interests and concerns, not only can we revitalize our bilateral ties, but we can move ahead to find solutions to problems that will help make the world a better place in which to live."

In his remarks, Wachtmeister noted that Sweden has had strong ties to the United States since its Revolutionary War.

'Swedish - American friendship has a long history," he said. "I am glad to recall the fact that Sweden was present at the very beginning. Swedish volunteers fought in the war of indepedence."

Postal Service offers reward in bomb case

PASCO, Wash. (UPI) — A reward of up to $10,000 was authorized by the Postal Service recently for information leading to conviction of the person who mailed a pipe bomb that killed state Superior Court Judge James Lawless.

Lawless, 50, was a Superior Court judge in Benton and Franklin counties for 16 years. He was killed June 3 in his chambers when he opened a mailed package containing a four-inch bomb.

Nearly all the pieces of the exploded bomb were sent to the service's laboratory in Washington, D.C., for examination.

Modern society needs spiritual nourishment

By BART KINCH

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Lewis R. Wolberg, founder and board chairman of the Postgraduate Center for Mental Health, believes that modern society is suffering from spiritual malnutrition.

"Food for the soul, the need for self-expression and creativity, is just as vital as bodily nourishment," Wolberg said recently.

The eminent psychiatrist believes that the hobby of photography is one of the best avenues available for individuals to fill this need for creative expression.

"It is the most valuable leisure time activity I know of for personal growth," he said. "When individuals take up photography, they start becoming creative naturally. When they see that they can create pleasing pictures, they want to go one and do more with their cameras.

Darkroom set up

"Our society neglects this need for self-expression and this spiritual malnutrition often manifests itself in boredom, depression, feelings of futility, pervasion, anxiety and even psychosomatic illnesses," he said.

A serious amateur photographer himself, Wolberg, with the assistance and guidance of Popular Photography magazine publisher Sidney Holtz, recently set up a research darkroom at the center, one of the world's largest mental health training and research facilities, to study how the hobby of photography contributes to personal growth.

Wolberg concurs with Holtz' view that photography has values that transcend the average hobby and they hope the research darkroom experiment will prove to have sociologcal values.

"Unlike other hobbies, with a camera you can produce a finished product that can be satisfying even if you are a beginner," Wolberg said. He also noted that "photography is sufficiently flexible so that as an individual gets more involved, he can expand into more complex dimensions which demand greater skill.

"The individual can adapt photography to his own needs and moods," Wolberg said. "And as these change, he can change his photographic activities accordingly.

"I know of no other leisure time activity that is so flexible and so suitable to people's needs."

Wolberg, clinical professor of psychiatry at New York University Medical School, was critical of public school systems where, he said, "creativity is somehow hammered out of children early in life.

"It has often been observed," he said, "how wonderfully creative children are in the early grades of elementary school. But by the time they reach the third grade, they've been trained to be just like dowels."

Experimental laser process has scientists both excited, fearful

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — An experimental process known as laser isotope enrichment has nuclear scientists and government leaders both a little bit excited and fearful.

Successful development of the process would represent what one physicist has labeled a "staggering advance" in obtaining cheap nuclear reactor fuel.

It would also mean more countries could easily acquire enough enriched uranium to build their own nuclear weapons.

A group of Washington State University chemistry students plans to do preliminary research work this summer on what would be the process's key component—the dye laser.

The dye laser, like other lasers, emits a fine beam of light, but is unique in that it can be tuned to very precise frequencies through the use of a dye solution.

"We're going to study the properties of dry lasers," says Dr. M.W. Windsor, chairman of the WSU chemistry department. "By learning more about their behavior we will aid in their possible use in isotope enrichment."

Windsor will supervise a handful of students during their 10-week research project, which will result in a report available to scientists doing more involved research on laser isotope enrichment. He emphasizes that WSU students will not themselves be attempting laser enrichment.

At present, a process known as gaseous diffusion is used to enrich the fissionable istope U235, which makes up only 0.7 per cent of natural uranium.

This concentration must be increased to between 2 and 3 per cent for use in conventional fission reactors.

Diffusion, however, is a remnant of World War II, explains Windsor, and requires massive structures to house the necessary equipment and equally massive amounts of power to operate it.

The diffusion plant at Oak Ridge, Tenn., for example, has cascades of diffusion cells filling buildings as large as 60 acres and a half-mile long.

The three diffusion plants in the U.S. consume about 6,000 megawatts or about 1.5 per cent of the ration's total electrical output.

The new laser process would reduce the cost of obtaining fissionable U235 by as much as one half.

Basically, the process involves use of tunable dye lasers, which can theoretically excite atoms or molecules of one isotope of a particular element without exciting other isotopes.

The excited isotope—in this case U235—could be ionized and separated by electrical or magnetic forces from the remaining natural uranium, says Windsor.

Prisons improving

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

Former Attorney General Richard Kleindienst, the first Cabinet alumnus since 1929 to be convicted of a crime, recently escaped serving a jail sentence because of a lenient judge.

Long before he had any legal problems of his own, Kleindienst showed a special interest in prison reform. Some of his former colleagues who served in the Nixon Administration and became entangled in the Watergate affair may reap the benefits of his efforts. When he was in office, Kleindienst called prison reform "one of the most important social and law-enforcement programs of the '70s."

In 1969, the Federal Government started a 10-year program to improve the federal prisons. Fortunately, for those already convicted in the Watergate conspiracy, the Federal prisons have already taken on a new look.

The fear of homosexual molestation and brutality is a major concern of most men, especially young men, faced with serving a prison term. Because Federal prisons now emphasize privacy, the dangers of homosexual attack or rape are much less than in old-style prisons where, according to former prisoner and labor leader, James Hoffa, homosexuality was rampant and condoned by many prison guards. Much of the pervasive fear in prisons results from homosexual jealousies that often lead to stabbings and murders. Increased privacy affords a place of retreat where tempers can cool. If violence is to be avoided, this is essential in any situation where there is overcrowding and confinement.

While he was Attorney General, Kleindienst encouraged volunteer efforts to help inmates and former offenders. Partly as a result of this, many community organizations, including the Junior Chamber of Commerce, have established in-prison chapters. The Junior Chamber of Commerce has over 250 prison chapters, with 13,000 dues-paying members inside, and thousands of Jaycees outside ready to come to their aid if needed.

In a statement made while he was in office, Kleindienst said of prisoners and those accused of criminal offenses, ". . . the walls of prejudice crumble if we get to know them (the prisoners) as flesh-and-blood individuals." He may have been thinking of this when tears of gratitude and relief streamed down his face as Judge Hart gave him a 30-day jail sentence and a $100 fine and promptly suspended both penalties.

McNeill, Donaldson vows said

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Donaldson of Pomona. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Hector McNeill of Santa Monica.

The newlyweds are honeymooning for three weeks in the Pacific Northwest. They will reside in Brentwood.

Vacation tips

Whether your vacation will be 100 miles away from home or 5,000, you still must do certain things before you leave.

Use your imagination. What would happen if you were burglarized or if the house caught fire? Does a neighbor have your key? Do the police know you are away?

Have you stopped the delivery of your papers? Newspapers allowed to pile up are an invitation to burglars, as is uncollected mail. If your local paper is going to report your trip (and this is always news), suggest that they do it upon your return rather than before you go so that your absence is not advertised.

When you leave the house, be sure that all household appliances that heat up are disconnected. Put your valauable jewelry and important papers in your safe deposit, and don't leave valuable knickknacks within view of windows. Don't trust locked closets or drawers—these are an invitation to pilferage. It is better to leave your fur coat with your cleaner.

If you make your house really difficult to break into, burglars are discouraged. Discuss with a locksmith your present arrangement as to door locks and window guards. Make the house as secure as possible—then go with peace of mind.

Don't overlook the garage. Many burglars make a specialty of things like lawn mowers and tractors in poorly guarded garages.

Most prowlers are afraid of light. Consider an electronic eye thet turns a lamp or two on at dusk. It uses little energy and is an excellent safeguard. Don't leave notes saying when you'll be back, although you can write something like this to put on the kitchen table: "Joe, there is a steak in the freezer for you. We'll be back soon, but you can fix it yourself." You could also add, "Uncle Ned is asleep on the top floor, so please be quiet."

Some people leave the radio on all the time they are gone. This uses energy but also makes it seem that somebody is in the house, so you have to weigh the value of this ploy against its extravagance.

Don't draw your shades or shutter your windows while you are gone as this is a "no one home" announcement to anybody going by.

If possible, have a neighbor check your house once a day to see that no one seems to have been attempting a break-in. Try to get such a person to come at different times, not always the same time, in case anyone is watching.

Do you have suggestions on how houses are best guarded? Letters, please.

"DEAR MISS VANDBERBILT: In a recent column you did not completely answer a question. What do you think about women guests taking their handbags into the living room instead of leaving them with their coats? —Mrs. E.R., St. Paul, Minn."

In Latin America it is considered a terrible breach of etiquette to take your handbag with you, rather than leave it with your coat. Presumably, this might indicate to the hostess that you don't trust her servants.

In this country, however, I feel it is no breach of etiquette to take your handbag along with you, but you should not clutter up the dinner table with it unless it is very, very small indeed. Most women either keep their handbags in their laps or put them on the floor next to their chairs—but not where anyone will fall over them.

From a practical standpoint, it is convenient to have the bag in case one wants to get a handkerchief or something else. Also, many women who smoke prefer to use their own brand and, increasingly, hostesses are not offering cigarettes at the table.

Alta Loma boy shot in police chase

UPLAND — Upland police shot and critically wounded a 17-year-old Alta Loma youth after he attempted to run a vehicle roadblock in a high-speed chase this morning.

Wayne Edward Saddlemier, 17, of 9185 Old Ranch Road was listed in "very critical" condition at San Antonio Community Hospital with shotgun wounds to the shoulders and back of the head.

The youth was shot, according to Upland Police Chief Dave Wessely, after he led officers in a high speed car pursuit from Sinclair Avenue and Seventh Street north through the city to 20th Street and Wilson Avenue, where he tried to drive around a road block.

During the pursuit, said Wessely, Saddlemeier hit a police car driven by Sgt. Gary Hart and drove through a busy hamburger drive-in stand at Mountain Avenue and Arrow Highway in an attempt to evade officers.

Just before the shooting, Saddlemeier turned into a rough field at 18th Street and Mountain Avenue and went cross-country to Wilson Avenue, the police chief said. Saddlemier, in a small Datsun pickup truck, saw the police roadblock manned by officers Luis Morales and Steve Wilson at 20th Street and made an attempt to go around their police cars blocking the road, said Wessely.

As Saddlemier turned to go around the police cars, Wilson, holding a shotgun, and Morales, holding his service revolver, opened fire. The shotgun blast shattered the pickup truck's rear window, and Saddlemier was hit. The small pickup continued another 25 to 30 yards before it crashed into a ditch on the south side of 20th Street.

Wessely said the pursuit began when Sgt. Hart saw Saddlemier's truck travelling at a high rate of speed at Seventh Street and Sinclair Avenue. Hart turned on his red light and siren when the youth failed to pull over. When the youth still failed to halt, other Upland police units were called into the pursuit.

Wessely said at least five Upland police officers were involved in the pursuit. Hart said that once he managed to get in front of the truck and tried to force it off the road. The driver of the truck began driving into Hart's police car, forcing Hart to halt. At another point the truck, travelling at a high rate of speed near Mountain Avenue and Arrow Highway, went through a service station driveway, turned and went through a field coming out through a driveway in the drive-in restaurant and back onto Mountain Avenue.

Wessely said that the officers involved in the incident are now completing their reports and the case is still under investigation. Wessely said he believed that the officers "had to use extreme force in the incident because lives were endangered."

Doctors at the Upland hospital told police that they were immediately unable to operate to remove the bullet from Saddlemier's head because it had lodged in a sensitive area of the skull.

It was the second time in a year that Upland police have had to resort to gunfire to end a high-speed auto chase. In the previous shooting, a 17-year-old driver fleeing officers was slain, but a coroner's jury agreed that the officers' action was necessary. Morales also was involved in the earlier case.

'Won't sacrifice allies'

Nixon to press for end to arms race with Russ

BRUSSELS (UPI) — President Nixon told America's European allies today he will push for progress in stopping the nuclear arms race during the Moscow summit and at all times will keep the NATO alliance's interests in mind.

"We will never sacrifice the interests of our allies to achieve agreements," White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler quoted Nixon as telling leaders of 14 other members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization during a two-hour closed meeting.

Nixon said that during his week-long summit beginning Thursday with Soviet leader, Leonid Breshnev he would seek a ban on underground nuclear weapons tests, but said there were many roadblocks in the way. U.S. officials have said a full, permanent agreement would not come during the Moscow talks.

Ziegler said Nixon covered the whole range of U.S. relations with European allies and his summit during the closed session. Nixon pledged the United States will maintain its military strength in Europe and would not reduce forces without a similar move by the Soviet Union.

Following the closed meeting, Nixon signed a declaration reaffirming commitment of the NATO alliance, had lunch with King Baudouin and held private talks with several European leaders.

Nixon appeared fit and free of any hindrance from the phlebitis —swelling of the veins in his left leg —that struck him during the Mideast visit two weeks ago. He even walked the half mile from his residence to the palace where he had lunch without any notice of a limp.

Ziegler said today Nixon was not experiencing any pain although the leg was still swollen. He said Dr. Walter Tkach was checking the President daily and was satisfied with the progress. For his part, Tkach indicated he wished the President would take it a little easier.

In Moscow, women in white scarves and orange smocks took up shovels, hoses and lawn clippers today to cut grass and patch potholes in streets in preparation for Nixon's arrival Thursday. He will hold his first meeting with Breshnev in the afternoon.

In separate sessions today with European leaders, Nixon met first with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, then with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Italian Prime Minister Mariano Rumor.

Nixon told the NATO leaders that "the alliance stands stronger and more united than ever before," and then in public smiled as he signed the new agreement that NATO General Secretary Joseph Luns said assures all member countries of being "stronger and more secure."

Hot weather will linger for five days

The unseasonably hot weather that has kept afternoon temperatures in the high 90s all week is going to continue through the weekend, the weatherman says.

A low pressure area that was expected to move in today from the coast has now "fizzled," according to the weatherman and Pomona and other valley areas can expect hot days and warm nights the next five days.

Today's high temperature is expected to reach 96 degrees and will be compounded by smog — a problem that caused the San Bernardino Air Pollution Control District to call a second stage alert Tuesday in Upland.

The ozone level there reached .48 parts per million and remained at that point for several hours.

The Los Angeles Air Pollution Control District forecast an ozone reading of .26 ppm in Pomona today. The highest zone reading in Pomona Tuesday afternoon was .20 ppm.

Health advisories are called by APCD officials after the ozone level reaches .20 ppm. The public is asked to limit unnecessary driving and to curtail strenuous physical activity in these areas.

During these first stage episodes, such as most valley areas experienced Tuesday and expect again today, the APCD asks that children and especially the elderly and those persons with repiratory problems — remain indoors and that unnecessary driving be curtailed.

RECORD MARIJUANA HAUL

Part of the largest marijuana seizure in history is unloaded at San Ysidro port of entry. Five tons were found in tanker trucks Sunday, leading to discovery Tuesday of 37 more tons in a Mexicali warehouse.

Agents seize record pot haul--42 tons

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — U.S. and Mexican officials have confiscated 42 tons of marijuana —the biggest seizure in history —with the discovery of a basement piled with tons of the weed which was to be smuggled into the United States in asphalt trucks to foil potsniffing government dogs.

The seizure was announced by the Drug Enforcement Administration Tuesday.

The previous record was 28 tons, found in Culiacan, Mexico, in March, 1973, by Mexican investigators, said John Bartls Jr., the DEA administrator.

The marijuana would have been worth $22.8 million in street sales in the United States, he said.

Investigators had been working on the case since January and learned two weeks ago that a big marijuana shipment was to cross the border in supposedly empty asphalt trucks, he said.

The crossings were planned for San Ysidro, Calif., which is just south of San Diego and across the border from Tijuana, Mexico.

The trucks are owned by an American firm but leased to an operator in Mexicali, Mexico. They carried asphalt and tar from the United States into Mexico, and supposedly returned empty.

Dogs specially trained to detect the odor of marijuana routinely examine vehicles crossing the border at San Ysidro —the busiest international crossing in the world.

But the strong odors of tar and asphalt masked the smell of marijuana from the dogs, the DEA said.

Inspectors looking into the supposedly empty tanks of two trucks Sunday morning found 5 tons of marijuana, and arrested two Mexican truck drivers. They were identified as David Gonzales Valle, 32, of Tecate, and Alejandro Lomas Reyes, 43, Mexicali.

Officers said they led U.S. and Mexican investigators to a warehouse on the outskirts of Mexicali. Beneath the floor was a secret hiding place with 37 tons of marijuana, processed and ready for shipment in 22-pound bricks which were stacked six feet high in the cavern, authorities said.

Settlement expected in nurse strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Negotiators in the 19-day Bay Area nurses' strike ended a two-day marathon bargaining session early today and called a news conference, apparently to announce a settlement.

"The strike is theoretically settled and all that's left is for the rank and file to vote," said a medical source. He indicated that full hospital staffing by nurses would probably take place by Monday if the settlement is approved.

There were no details of the pact available immediately.

Mandatory editorial signing bill sought

DOVER, Del. (UPI) — The Delaware Senate has passed and sent to the governor a bill requiring all newspapers in the state to sign their editorials.

The bill would require editorial writers for all papers to sign each opinion piece.

"We want to find out who's lying. If the editorials don't actually lie, they imply lies and we want to know who writes them," said state Sen. Dean C. Steele, one of the bill's strongest supporters.

In tune with times: school drops string program for guitars

SANTA FE, N. M. (UPI) — School officials have replaced their violin instructing program with something that's a little more in tune with the times — the guitar.

School officials dropped the school's string program last year because of a lack of interest. Principal Joe Casados said the most students ever enrolled in the violin program totaled 15.

Casados said 248 students had already enrolled for the guitar course.

Who said honesty dead these days?

LOGAN, Utah (UPI) — A Logan couple stepped up to a Post Office stamp machine and dropped in a dime.

For the next several minutes they stood agog as the machine spewed forth 10-cent stamps. When it finally quit, it had dispensed 990 stamps in a single roll.

The couple detached one stamp, laboriously rolled up the rest and stuffed them into a mailbox with a note explaining what happened.

"We wish they'd left their names so we could thank them," said Postmaster J. R. Rowberry.

The machine had a big "Out of Order" sign Tuesday.

Calley goes back to Leavenworth

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI) — Former Army Lt. William L. Calley, his attempt to overturn his conviction for the My Lai murders now in the hands of a federal judge, was to be flown today to the Army prison at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

Calley has been housed in the military stockade at the base while U. S. District Judge J. Robert Elliott listened for the past two days to an appeal to have Calley's conviction and 10-year sentence for the murder of at least 22 civilians at the South Vietnamese hamlet set aside. Elliott's ruling is not expected for several days.

French youth vote

PARIS (UPI) — The National Assembly lowered the voting age from 21 to 18 Tuesday night, giving the vote to 2.6 million French youths.

The assembly passed a bill that had already passed the Council of Ministers.

Lab's new antirabies serum provides painless treatment

BERKELEY (UPI) — Cutter Laboratories has developed a federally-approved serum which can provide painless treatment for rabies.

Cutter officials said Tuesday that the serum would be available to the public in August but only in limited supply.

The serum will eliminate the need for persons bitten by rabid animals to undergo the painful and dangerous "Pasteur treatment," which involves a series of inoculations with a serum taken from horses. Many persons suffer an adverse reaction from the horse serum.

Cutter's serum comes from human blood, and there is no adverse reaction, company officials said in a statement.

They explained that the blood comes from those who have rabies antibodies in their system. They said the reason the serum would be in short supply was because there were only a few of these persons.

The antibodies develop in the bloodstreams of those who have recovered from rabies itself. Others with the antibodies are those who have been vaccinated against rabies prior to exposure.

James Goodspeed, Cutter's marketing manager for plasma fractions, said most of the sources for his company's serum were veterinary medicine students at the University of California at Davis.

Those who have undergone the "Pasteur treatment" can also be used as donors, Goodspeed said.

He said the serum was called "Hyperab" and has been approved for sale by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

Four in family found shot to death in their beds

SAN LEANDRO, Calif. (UPI) — Apparently without reason, four members of a well-regarded middle class San Leandro family were shot to death in their beds.

"It's very bizarre," Police Lt. Robert Wilson said Tuesday, remarking he had "never seen anything like this."

"They were one of the nicest families around here," said a neighbor, Joyce Figueira, 31.

Police discovered the bodies because of a telephone call by a worried employer who couldn't understand why Edward Blaiser, 43, had not shown up for work.

All the victims had been shot in the head with a small-caliber gun but the weapon could not be found, although detectives discovered a pair of plastic gloves with cartridges wrapped inside about 75 yards from the one story frame house.

Blaiser was a civilian employe at the Alameda Naval Air Station and his wife, Patricia, 37, worked as a secretary for the Pacific International Express Co.

The other victims were their children, Robert Blaiser, 15, and Deborah, 13.

Another son, Kenneth, 16, was working at a summer job in Modesto, neighbors said.

Although three Oakland policemen live next door to the Blaiser home, they reported they didn't hear any shots.

Before the bodies were found, five teen-age friends of the Blaiser children had called at the house but had not noticed anything unusual.

One of those youths, Randy Kern, 14, went inside the house to borrow a raft, saw a telephone off the hook and replaced it without noting anything out of the ordinary.

He said he had heard the telephone's dial tone and replaced it on the hook because he "figured they didn't want to be disturbed."

New Chino school budget would up taxes 78 cents

CHINO — Property owners in the Chino Unified School District may face a 78-cent hike in their property tax rates during the next fiscal year.

School board members Tuesday night approved a tentative budget which boosts the property tax rate from the present $4.44 to $5.22 per $100 assessed valuation.

The tax rate, however, reflects a 10-cent community service tax and a boost from 10 to 16 cents in the district's state repayment loan.

Funds derived from the community service tax can be used for various recreational programs such as playground supervisors and swimming, to help finance the delinquency prevention program, and the school's counseling program.

The budget also proposes spending $11,018,069 next year. This compares to $10,104,992 for the current year.

This reflects, however, an 8½ per cent salary increase for the district's 800 employes. A breakdown shows $6,976,799 earmarked for certificated personnel, $1,534,334 for classified employes, plus $918,898 for employe benefits.

Other proposed expenditures include:

Books, supplies and equipment replacement, $571,772; contracts, services and other operating services, $477,126; and sites, buildings, books and new equipment, $355,256.

Officials reported some spending increase is due to "start up" costs for the district's new year-around school program. This has created a need for neu equipment, they explained.

They also noted the budget allows for a three per cent enrollment increase. The district now has 9,174 students.

During board discussion, trustee Al McCombs was critical of a 100 per cent increase in the clerical cost in the business office. District officials said this was partly caused by a changeover to the data-processing program.

He also urged the board to protest a $6,000 penalty the state is charging the district for the nondevelopment of three school sites.

McCombs noted one site is being used by the district's continuation school. "I believe we should oppose the payment," he said. "We are planning for the future education of our students."

Officials explained that the state levies a tax on these sites which aren't developed within a five-year period.

The board approved the tentative budget to meet a state requirement that this be presented to the county's superintendent of schools office by July 1.

Trustees will hold a public hearing on July 16 for its publication budget.

Five rob woman who stopped for 'injured' youth

POMONA — A young Glendora woman was robbed by five young men after she stopped her car in a dimly-lit area to help one youth she thought had been injured.

The victim, Ruth R. Kaler, 21, told police she was eastbound on Campus Drive near Ridgeway Avenue when she came upon four young men standing over a fifth youth, who was lying in the street.

She said the four were yelling, "He's been hit," so she stopped to help. When she did, one of the four put a revolver to the back of her head and the supposedly-injured boy jumped to his feet.

Miss Kaler, a Cal Poly student, was forced from the car and it was ransacked by several of the men. They took her purse and car keys, but left the keys up the street where she found them after the five fled.

The victim told officers her purse contained no money but carried her credit cards, driver's license and other papers.

Child, 2, beaten; couple arrested

POMONA — A couple was booked on suspicion of child beating Tuesday night after a boy, 2-year-old Gabriel Quiroga, was examined at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Veronica Rose Sanchez, 22, the child's mother, and Eugene Raymond Gomez, 23, her companion, 2125 S. Powers St., were arrested at the hospital. Gomez was booked additionally on a charge of the illegal use of drugs.

The child suffered facial and head injuries and possible burns on his back and stomach. His buttocks were completely black and blue, police said. They quoted Mrs. Sanchez as saying Gomez told her the boy fell from a rocking chair while she was at work.

Gabriel was admitted for treatment and was reported in fair-to-good condition there today.

Third quad quits diet of oxygen

POMONA — Kevin Michael Struve, the oldest of quadruplets born June 12 to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Struve of Claremont, today became the third to rely entirely on regular room air for his breathing needs.

His sisters, Kristina Lynn and Tonya Marie, have been off an oxygen diet for several days now.

Only Todd Allan still receives small amounts of oxygen.

DISTAFF PREPARATIONS

A crew of women street laborers patches a section of the wide boulevard President Nixon will take to the Kremlin from the airport on his arrival in Moscow. Only routine cleaning was in evidence in Russia in contrast to the elaborate preparations made for Nixon two weeks ago in the Middle East.

Tentative budget has low tax rise

CLAREMONT — City Councilmen Tuesday night could not agree on how to finance a new headquarters fire station, but unanimously adopted a $3,891,992 tentative budget which reflects only a 3.13-cent property tax hike, instead of a 13.74-cent increase depicted in the original budget.

Councilman Gene Block's motion to use $50,000 in revenue sharing funds pinpointed for a new fire headquarters for other capital improvements this next year ran into opposition from Councilwomen Eleanor Cohen and Claire McDonald, but Councilman Frank Hungerford and Mayor Bertye Smith backed the motion.

Block said that the city could realize $9,000 more in revenues this next year in business license fees and retail sales taxes than originally budgeted. That amount added to the $50,000 saved by the revenue-sharing money would mean a slash of more than 10 cents in the proposed 1974-75 tax rate of $2.3491.

Block said he felt the voters would go more favorably for a $300,000 bond election for a new fire station if the council could show that the tax rate has been kept down for several years.

Hungerford agreed, and suggested that the council save money on the tax rate.

Mrs. Cohen, sworn in as new councilwoman Tuesday night, said that she campaigned that there would be a hefty city tax rate next year, and that residents expect it.

"What if a bond election fails?" she asked.

City Manager Keith Mulrooney recommended paying for the new fire station entirely out of revenue sharing.

Block reminded fellow councilmen that four of them, except Hungerford, in the past four months had campaigned for election, and had told constituents that they would favor bond elections for major improvements such as a fire station.

The city has adopted the seismic safety element of its general plan and has ordered a seismic study of its antiquated fire station headquarters, due sometime in July.

Block said that whether the city decides to join a valleywide fire protection district or go it alone the city still needs a new fire station.

Supervisors clear way for new park with trails

SAN DIMAS — Equestrians and hikers in the near future will have a three-mile-long wooded park area to enjoy with trails stretching from Bonelli Park to Covina.

The Board of Supervisors Tuesday adopted a final environmental impact report and authorized the acquisition of five parcels of land that will clear the way for the creation of the Walnut Creek County Park.

The proposed park, that has one of the few year-round streams in the entire Los Angeles Basin, will be left mostly in its natural wooded state for the enjoyment of equestrians and hikers.

Present plans call for the park trails to be hooked up with a 29-mile trail system from Whittier Narrows to Bonelli Park in San Dimas. Long-range plans are to have trails that will begin at the ocean and wind throughout the San Gabriel Mountains.

The park land is located along the alignment of Walnut Creek from Interstate 210 to the beginning of the improved Walnut Creek Flood Control Channel at the end of Charro Street in Covina.

Plans for the park have been under discussion with the county since the mid 60s.

In manslaughter case

Reluctant witness arrested in court

POMONA — A reluctant witness, called during the manslaughter hearing here of two young Montclair men, was arrested himself on the same charge as he left the courtroom Tuesday.

Richard Ryan Rademacher, 18, of 10030 Geneva Ave., Montclair, was booked by Claremont Detective Robert Brinegar and later released on bail. Rademacher was a passenger in one of two cars, which allegedly were being raced in Claremont, when Edith Elser Harrison, 82, was killed.

Miss Harrison's car and the car driven by Bruce Alan Banker, 18, collided at Claremont Boulevard and Ninth Street. Rademacher was in the other car, driven by Terry M. Chambers, 19. It narrowly missed Miss Harrison's car, according to officers.

Banker and Chambers appeared Tuesday before Judge Robert C. Gustaveson for preliminary hearing of the manslaughter charge against them. During the hearing, Melissa M. Dawson, 17, of 9778 Columbine St., Montclair, testified she had no recollection of the accident or events preceding it. Police said Miss Dawson was in Banker's car and was injured in the collision.

Then Rademacher was called and was advised of the possibility of self-incrimination. He was given time to consult with a public defender and when he returned to the stand he declined to testify under his constitutional rights. Jury picks begin for stabbing trial

POMONA — Jury selection began Tuesday in the murder trial in Pomona Superior Court of Johnny R. Thomas, 23, and Roger L. Cox, 29, accused in the stabbing March 19 of J. W. Clements.

The trial, before Pomona Superior Court Judge Carlos M. Teran, was expected to take two to three weeks. The pair failed at a previous hearing before another judge to have removed from the information special allegations which could result in a possible death penalty upon their conviction. They also failed to get separated trials.

Authorities charged that Clements, 40, was slain during a robbery. His body was found along a trail in the Live Oak Canyon area between La Verne and Claremont.

Casting plates stolen

ONTARIO — Thieves entered the storage yard of the Alum-Alloy Co., 614 S. Bon View Ave., and stole 37 aluminum casting plates valued at over $10,000, according to police reports.

The theft from the metal foundry was reported Tuesday morning by the owner of the company David W. Howell, 35. Howell said the aluminum plates used for casts in making ornamental metal supports and decorations, were valued at $275 each. Howell said the plates were somewhat hidden in the storage yard and the thieves must have known their exact location.

Howell said he believed that the plates were stolen, not for the price they might bring from a scrap metal yard, but for sale in Mexico where they could command a high price.

Howell said the plates weigh about 25 to 30 pounds apiece and range from 2 to 3 feet long and 1 to 2 feet wide.

Sign posts with less resistance scheduled

ONTARIO — There will soon be a little more "give" in sign posts and light standards in a six-mile area long the San Bernardino Freeway between the Los Angeles County line and Vineyard Avenue.

Light standards will be placed on bases designed to give way without resistance if struck and signs mounted on steel posts will be placed on wooden "breakaway" supports, said officials.

These measures are being taken to protect occupants of out-of-control vehicles which leave the freeway and hit the posts.

Some $10,000 to $12,000 has been allocated for the project, which involves signs and light standards at the interchanges of Vineyard, Monte Vista, Central, Mountain and Euclid avenues and Fourth Street.

For the most part, said highway officials, this will involve installing new "anchor" bolts which snap on impact. Crews will also grade around the concrete bases so out-of-control vehicles won't hit these.

The local project is part of a continuing program along state routes. It was recently funded by the California Highway Commission.

Key, scrawled note, skeleton solves mystery

British cloak, dagger man missing since 1971

LONDON (UPI) — On a frosty October evening in 1971, Sir John Peregrine HennikerHeaton, a former British secret agent with a Van Dyke beard, told his wife he was going 'round to his cricket club for a drink.

The veteran of years of cloak-and-dagger espionage in the Middle East stepped out of his Victorian-style villa in the quiet suburb of Ealing, slipped into the enveloping chill and vanished.

Police today reported a startling development in the case of the missing British baronet. It had all the makings of a great whodunit.

On Sunday, Henniker-Heaton's son Yvo was rumaging about the house in search of a box to store some papers. He came across a lone key pushed into a desk.

Yvo twisted the key in the lock on his father's smoking den and the door eased open for the first time in three years.

Inside on a bed, Yvo found his father's skeleton. An empty bottle lay nearby and an apparent suicide note was found in the pocket of his suit, police said.

London newspapers said the bottle had contained whiskey and that the suicide note, addressed to his wife, said he could not carry on and asked her not to make very much of his funeral.

Scotland Yard officials said today the discovery ended one mystery that touched off an international intelligence and police search when HennikerHeaton vanished.

But they said the discovery also posed some additional questions about the bizarre circumstances of his death.

During the bloody years of the birth of Israel, HennikerHeaton was in charge of British security in Palestine and the target of at least four assassination attempts by bombs blamed on Jewish underground groups.

When his wife, Lady Margaret, reported the disappearance, all of Britain's security agencies and Interpol were called in to investigate.

The family said at the time they believed he was the victim of Arab or Israeli guerrillas.

Secret service agents followed up tips he was murdered because of his continued Middle East connections, that he had been kidnaped and that his body had been dumped in chains into a flooded gravel pit near London.

The trails led nowhere.

Police sources said today a preliminary autopsy had failed to establish the cause of death. A coroner's inquest was ordered for Thursday to begin the formal inquiry into the mystery of the locked door.

Scotland Yard officials raised some key unsolved points in the mystery:

—Why was the ground floor room at the rear of the house not searched in the beginning? Police said they had been told at the time that the house had been combed from top to bottom.

—With Lady Margaret, their son, a boarder and three dogs living in the house how did the presence of the body remain undetected, especially in the period immediately after death?

Divorce granted in Switzerland

It's all over for Liz, Burton

SAANEN, Switzerland (UPI) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor obtained a final divorce from a Swiss court here today, ending her sometimes stormy and always eventful 10-year marriage to actor Richard Burton.

The Burton's personal and financial adviser and friend, New York lawyer Aaron R. Frosch, said there was an amicable financial settlement between the couple and that Miss Taylor keeps all her jewelry and her 249-ton yacht.

The movie stars announced earlier this year that they would end the marriage that culminated a nearly public courtship during the filming of the multi-million dollar movie, "Cleopatra."

The final breakup after several temporary estrangements followed a series of public fights and reunions spanning two continents.

"Mrs. Burton today obtained a final divorce from the court of the county of Bern sitting in Saanen," Frosch said.

"A financial arrangement was made amicably between the parties," he said. "Mrs. Burton retains all the items she owned prior to and during the marriage, including the jewels given to her by Mr. Burton. The yacht is entirely hers.

"The child Maria is an adoptive child and custody as always was given to the mother with very liberal rights of visitation.

"Mrs. Burton also reques ed that Mr. Burton have the right to visit her other children."

Frosch said Miss Taylor attended the final 15-minute hearing today. Burton was not present and was not required to attend, he said.

The final divorce papers will be issued in about two months time, court officials said.

The judge was Johann Friedli.

The Burtons own large share portfolios, property in Switzerland, the United States and Mexico, and an art collection.

Trudeau returns

ASBESTOS, QUE. (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau paid a memory-filled visit Tuesday to an asbestos plant where, as a young radical, he once exhorted strikers to fight for their union rights.

Trudeau's visit to the Johns Manville asbestos mill was his first in 25 years, since one of the most bitter strikes in Canadian labor history.

The nine-month-long strike in 1949 helped spur the growth of the labor movement in the province.

"It's a memorable day. There have been tremendous changes," Trudeau said as he toured the mill, the largest in the western world. He spoke with workers and tried out a 100-ton ore moving rig.

Record California budget approved by negotiators

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — After a night-long session, legislative budget negotiators early today approved a record $10.2 billion-plus spending proposal for the coming fiscal year, the largest of any state in the nation.

The budget proposal, which was a compromise between versions passed by the Senate and Assembly, now returns to both houses for final passage and submission to Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Included was about $254 million to cover state worker benefits and an 5.3 per cent pay hike, $104 million for park and wildlife enhancement land purchases and $7,500 for an official portrait of Reagan to be displayed in the Capitol.

Among the largest additions to the budget was about $93 million for acquisition of recreation lands, much of it made available by voter approval in June of the parks bond issue, Prop. 1.

An official budget total was not available from tired members of the joint conference committee, who labored through the 3-inch-thick document from 8 p.m. until just after midnight to reach agreement.

Murderer given death penalty in $10 robbery

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — Ronald L. Sims, 23, who shot a man in the back with a shotgun at point blank range in a $10 holdup, Tuesday became the second killer sentenced to be executed since California put the death penalty back on the law books.

A jury of 10 women and two men, after two days deliberation, ruled that the killing was "willful, deliberate and premeditated and committed during the course of a robbery."

That is one of the offenses requiring the death penalty under the new execution law which went into effect Jan. 1, designed to meet the Supreme Court objections to the penalty as previously applied.

The first death penalty was imposed June 13 in San Bernardino on a 35-year-old transient found guilty of killing a young boy and girl in a lovers lane slaying near Victorville.

Sims was convicted of the murder of John Sullivan, 58, who worked at the Hamburger Hamlet in West Hollywood.

AEC signs Egypt, Israel atomic deals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commisssion signed provisional contracts today to provide nuclear fuel for power plants President Nixon promised Egypt and Israel.

Nixon's offer of reactors, components and fuel for Israel and Egypt has aroused congressional controversy over ensuring that they do not use the technology to develop nuclear weapons.

Today's AEC announcement said supplying the nuclear plants and the fuel depended on successful negotiation of an agreement for cooperation between the United States and the countries.

100 to 1 chance

Boy shot with mother's gun back from the dead

TORRANCE, Calif. (UPI) — William Horton, 4, shot himself in the aorta with his mother's pistol. The odds against his being alive are about 100-to-one, but he is.

When his mother brought him into Harbor General Hospital a week ago, doctors thought he was dead. The bullet had gone through the aorta, the main artery from the heart, and punctured his intestines in seven places.

He had stopped breathing, his eyes were dilated and his abdomen had filled with blood.

Dr. Michael Peter said he had seen about 10 similar cases in the past six years, all involving adults. All of them died.

The hospital's emergency trauma team stopped the flow of blood and replaced the small boy's entire blood supply and within 15 minutes his heart started beating on its own.

William's brain was without oxygen for 15 to 25 minutes, and loss of oxygen for only eight minutes can cause permanent brain damage, Peter said.

He was unconscious for two days and could not breath on his own.

One day a nurse noticed that instead of staring blankly, the boy's eyes were following her around the room. When she spoke to him, he nodded.

"When we rushed in, he looked up and said 'I want to get out of here,'" said his mother, Mrs. Larry Horton of Carson.

"He has responded to questions and his memory seems good. We feel certain there is no (brain) damage and he should recovery completely," Peter said.

William shot himself with a pistol his mother kept in her purse because she as carrying $500. Now, she said, the thousands of dollars the hospital bill will cost has wiped the family out financially, and both she and her husband have lost their jobs "But we have son, and that's what counts."

Dogs getting in their licks

Putting the bite on city dwellers

CHICAGO (UPI) — A New York City public health specialist says dog bites are increasing at an alarming rate in metropolitan areas and urges people to think twice before buying a large, aggressive dog as a pet.

"Perhaps a dog is man's best friend, but for the city-dweller, dogs also pose a hazard to health and safety," Dr. David Harris, associate director of Mount Sinai Hospital, said in a preventive medicine seminar Tuesday at the annual meeting of the American Medical Association.

Harris said the increase in dog attacks on humans coincides with heightened public concern about street crime and burglary.

"It is the opinion of most specialists involved with animal affairs that there is a strong trend at present towards the ownership of large and aggressive dogs in cities and suburbs and that this is linked to the use of dogs as deterrents to crime," he said.

Five years ago, he said, telephone directory yellow page ads were for friendly dogs, Now they emphasize guard dogs from such companies as "The House of Lethal Dogs" and the "We Bite Dog Academy."

Reported dog bites have increased from 30,000 in 1965 to about 40,000 last year, and authorities believe many more go unreported. Harris called the situation an epidemic that is not recognized by most public health officials.

The hazard is greatest with children. He said a recent study in New York showed that more than half the bites involved people under 20. Three out of 10 bites to youngsters under 10 were on the face, where the greatest threat to injury and disfigurement exists.

He said "guard and attack training, especially partial training, often makes a dog unsuitable as a pet because such training puts not just the would be criminal, but also the neighbors, the family and the master himself at increase risk of dog bite injury."

On how to eat your humble pie

By ERMA BOMBECK

Dick Cavett was recently underwhelmed with his award of an Emmy because it wasn't presented on the telecast. The talk-show host was quoted as saying, "If you couldn't find time in your two and a half hour telecast to announce it, I can't find room for it in my living room."

Have a humble pill, Dick. Here, take one of mine. There is probably something contradictory about bragging about your humility, but sir, you are in the presence of the Master.

As a child I won a spelling bee. When it was announced, my name was misspelled. It came out Steve. Things never got better. I come home from the beauty shop after four hours and my husband says, "Where have you been?"

I once sat in Johnny Carson's green room so long waiting to go on a maid picked me up, dusted my legs and tried to empty me. She thought I was an ash tray. Following the publication of my second book, I received a gracious note from Mrs. Hubert Humphrey addressed to "Edna."

Some people have egos that are fed every three hours. Mine died two years ago following an incident in Washington.

Wanting to impress my sons with their nation's capitol, I arranged a sightseeing trip to Washington. Because my column is syndicated, I was told certain privileges were extended to the press, notably the VIP tour of the White House.

After several high level phone calls and a trip to pick up the tickets personally, I briefed my children in the hotel room before we left. "We're being given special VIP treatment," I said cooly, "now if Mrs. Nixon should happen to come out and say, 'I understand Mrs. Bombeck is on the tour. Where is she?' I will come forward and look down at my shoes absolutely humiliated at being found out. When we are singled out and asked into their personal living quarters, don't fiddle with your noses or talk with food in your mouths. Understood? And remember, we can't stay too long. We must push on so we can get into the Senate. Got it?" They nodded.

As the cab stopped at the White House (thank God, he didn't use a siren), I saw a mob that looked like Woodstock after a rain. "Poor devils," I said to the boys, "I wonder how long they've been waiting." We whipped through the gates and over to the guard where I flashed my VIP tickets.

"End of that line Lady," he said motioning toward the crowd.

Standing at the end of the line (which was two blocks into Virginia), my son asked, "What do I say again if we're asked for lunch?"

"Oh, shut up!" I said.

Medical students still awaiting scholarships

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some 2,000 medical students are anxiously awaiting word from the government on whether scholarships will be available for them next fall.

The truth is, a government official told UPI, the confused situation may not be resolved until after the students return to classes next fall.

The money they are waiting for is considerable, averaging over $9,200 an academic year but sometimes topping $11,000 a year for a student attending a high-tuition medical school.

In return for this government stipend, the students have to agree to work a minimum of two years in U.S. Public Health Service hospitals, clinics, prisons, Indian reservations or other PHS shortage areas.

With the waning of the military draft, Congress enacted the scholarship program in 1972 to provide new incentives for PHS to attract young doctors.

But because of delays in Congress in financing the program, and in the administration in implementing it, the first 400 scholarships were just awarded this month to cover retroactively the portion of the school year completed since Feb. 15.

Now, said James Kissinger of the PHS personnei office, applications are piling up for next year's awards. However, the legislation expires June 30, new money is needed for the next school year, and the program's future is tied up in health legislation now being considered by Congress.

Kissinger said that "most" of the 2,000 applications were from students who could qualify for awards if money were available.

Mrs. Louise Anderson, who fields telephone calls from anxious applicants, said at least four of the callers said their future medical careers depend on getting the scholarships.

"A number of them (callers) are in tears," she said. "A good many are extremely angry.

U.N. project hopes to end dreaded 'river blindness'

LONDON (UPI) — One of the world's most tragic infectious diseases is scarcely known to the general public. The British Medical Journal says its name is even unfamiliar to some doctors.

Yet onchocerciasis — the dreaded "river blindness" of Africa —afflicts some 20 million victims in that continent and in parts of South America and Yemen in the Middle East.

It would be hard to exaggerate its effects.

In some areas of Africa it causes blindness in at least 20 per cent of the adult population. It produces itching so severe it is often confused with scabies. It attacks the pigment of the skin so savagely doctors have mistaken it for leprosy.

Onchocerciasis is transmitted by bloodsucking blackflies which breed in rapidly flowing rivers. The disease has led to the desertion of many fertile valleys, damaged the economic development of many of the already impoverished savanna regions of Africa.

One of its worst manifestations —presbydermia —gives its victims a prematurely aged appearance. Individuals and sometimes entire communities are ostracized by their neighbors as a result.

Now a 20-year, $120 million program described as "the most detailed and far-reaching plan ever drawn up to control a disease" has been prepared by a team sponsored by the U.N. Development Program, the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization, the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development and the World Health Organization.

The aim is the eradication of onchocerciasis from the entire Volta River basin —700,000 square kilometers (437,500 square miles) of seven adjoining countries; Dahomey, Ghana, Ivory Coast, Mali, Niger, Togo and Upper Volta. There are approximately 10 million people in the area, of whom about one milliion have the disease and at least 70,000 are blind or have seriously impaired vision.

The key to the operation is the reduction or elimination of blackfly by application of chemical larvicides to the rivers in the basin.

Many problems must be overcome. One of them, the Medical Journal said, is the simultaneous application of the insectide throughout the numerous river systems in such a way as to prevent reinfestation.

That will involve helicopters and small aircraft using techniques developed in the control of blackfly in North America where it is a nuisance not a major threat to the health of multitudes.

Marijuana charge for pair dismissed

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — A Superior Court judge dismissed charges Wednesday against two men caught with 110 pounds of marijuana at a U.S. Border Patrol checkpoint last December on grounds the seizure was unconstitutional.

Judge E. Scott Dales said the decision could have a "far reaching effect," it reoresented a flat reversal of a ruling he made a month ago involving contraband seized at the same checkpoint, at Temecula, Calif., about 40 miles south of here.

Dales said he made his reversal in light of a May decision by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco that "warrantless searches at fixed checkpoints by the U.S. Border Patrol without probable cause are unconstitutional."

He said the decision means that authorities will not "be able to pull cars over in Temecula (and at checkpoints at Oceanside, Calif. and Garden Grove, Calif.,) and just search them for no reason. What they'll have to do is do all their searching at the border or the equivalent" of that.

Art Lester, attorney for the defendants, Michael John Seamans, 27, and William Gordon Winsett, 29, both of Chico, Calif., was pleased with the impact the decision would have and said it was the first of its kind in California state courts.

"...As I see it," Lester said, "they cannot stop a car unless they had believeable information the contraband or illegal aliens were in the car or the vehicle had entered the country from Mexico."

But border patrol officials said they are not abiding by the rulings because they are in the process of appeal.

The rulings do "not deter our authority to stop and interrogate; just to stop and search," said Richard Batchelor, deputy chief patrol agent for the Chula Vista sector, which covers five Southern California counties.

Batchelor denied the Border Patrol randomly stops cars.

"We stop them on founded suspicion," he said.

Guatemala hits oil after 18-year quest

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — Guatemala announced Monday night it had entered the world petroleum producers club with the nation's first oil strike, a result of an 18-year search by a score of multinational companies.

President Carlos Arana Osorio, flanked by Mining and Petroleum Minister Jorge Godoy, broke the news in a special national television broadcast called only six days before he is to leave office and hand the presidency to his successor, Kjell Laugerud Garcia, elected last spring.

Arana Osorio said the nation's first producing well, called Tubelsalto after the mountain area where it is located, is expected to produce 3,000 barrels daily and supply 15 per cent of the doomestic oil consumption of Guatemala, a Central American country the size of Tennessee.

The well was drilled in northern Guatemala only two miles from the Mexican border by a mostly German-financed company called Recursos del Norte.

Recursos del Norte has already announced plans to drill five more wells in the same northern Guatemala area, and other companies are expected to be encouraged by the first strike.

The Guatemalan well is not far south of the rich oil fields of the Mexican state of Chiapas.

The strike came only months after guatemala relaxed a petroleum law to increase incentives for foreign investors.

There are now 25 multinational companies looking for oil in Guatemala, many of them operating here since 1956.

Though scientists and speculators have said for years that there was petroleum in Guatemala, the Tubelsalto well is the first concrete evidence.

Reds stop pen pal escape try

BERLIN (UPI) — Amelia Meissner, a 20-year-old San Franciscan, was so sure her plan to get her East Berlin pen pal through the Communist wall last October would work that "we didn't even say goodbye."

"I smuggled a U.S. Army uniform into East Berlin piece by piece under my own clothing," she said this week. "We knew the border guards do not check Western allied soldiers. We shaved off Juergen's beard and gave him a crew cut.

"Juergen put on the uniform and tried to walk through the Friedrichstrasse crossing point for foreigners to Checkpoint Charlie. But he was arrested by border guards immediately."

Her pen pal, Juergen Vicari, a 24-year-old stagehand, was sentenced last month to six years imprisonment, said Miss Meissner (2387 Funston Ave., San Francisco.)

"Perhaps we were naive, but we were sure it would work," Miss Oeissner said.

"As Juergen headed for Checkpoint Charlie, I took the train back to West Berlin and rushed to Friedrichstrasse to be there when he came out.

"But when I arrived I was told an American soldier just had been arrested. Of course it was Juergen."

Amelia and Juergen were pen pals for three years before she came to Berlin on a visit last year. They fell in love and plotted to get Juergen past the anti-refugee wall built to keep East Germans in.

"Juergen always wanted to get out," Amelia said. "He wanted to live in freedom, to have freedom to travel, to speak freely without fear of spies. Meeting me gave him another reason to flee."

Prison black group gets go ahead

VACAVILLE, Calif. (UPI) — The California Medical Facility has decided to allow the resumption of the prison's Black Cultural Association, which played a key role in the formation of the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Superintendent T. Lawrence Clanon recently said the group's meetings had been suspended with the arrest of two nonprisoner members on charges they killed Oakland, Calif., School Superintendent Marcus A. Foster in November.

The SLA kidnaped Patricia Hearst, daughter of newspaper executive Randolph A. Hearst, in February. Six SLA members, including escaped convict Donald DeFreeze, were later killed in a gunbattle with police in Los Angeles.

Several civilian members of cultural association visited the prison regularly to meet with black inmates. Included were murder suspects Joseph Remiro and Russell Little.

"With a stronger administrative setup, I believe the (BCA) program or some parts of the program can be resumed," Clannon told reporters.

In time, he said, the association will be permitted to have outside members again. "It will take a couple of months to work out the program," he said. "It's quite possible the organization will keep the same name but there is some difference of opinion about that."

Vegetarian diet can be adequate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A vegetarian diet can be adequate nutritionally if it includes a variety of plant foods and certain nutrients, says the National Research Council's committee on nutritional misinformation.

In a four-page report, the committee said judicious mixing of lower-quality plant protein foods can provide about the same nutritional value as high-quality animal protein foods.

Milk and eggs should be added, especially for preschool children, to provide enough calcium, iron, riboflavin and vitamin B12. The committee also said fortified soybean milk or a vitamin B12 supplement is necessary for total vegetarians.

Russ missile effectiveness in Arab-Israeli war exaggerated

LONDON (UPI) — Military experts assessing last year's Arab-Israeli war have begun to change their minds about the effectiveness of Soviet missiles introduced in the fighting.

Initially the experts predicted the missiles would greatly inhibit jet fighter-bombers as well as tanks on future battlefields. Talk of "the death of the tank" as a fighting weapon filled the air.

Now the experts say the importance given to Soviet surface-to-air (SAM) and anti-tank missiles probably was exaggerated by overwhelming Arab superiority, and by the desperation tactics employed by the Israelis, in the first stages of the conflict.

The Institute of Strategic Studies (ISS), an international independent group which studies defense affairs, made the latest in a series of revised assessments now appearing in military journals around the world.

While the war was going on, the Institute said, battle indications were that "tanks are all too vulnerable to missile attack, from which there is little defense." But the tone changed in its Strategic Survey 1973, issued in May.

The later survey placed more emphasis on the importance of the Arabs' radar-controlled anti-aircraft guns and the RPG7 rocket-propelled grenade —an advanced bazooka-type weapon often encountered by the Americans in the Vietnam War.

"The Soviet anti-tank missiles were effective, but they are certainly no more so than NATO weapons and are less good than some being procured in Europe," the survey said.

Air Force magazine, another military journal, said many Israeli tank losses came when tanks charged past well-concealed Arab anti-tank positions and then were picked off from the rear.

Air Vice-Marshal Stewart Menaul, director-general of the Royal United Services Institute for Defense Studies, said in an interview he doubted that any army would ever again launch a tank assault before suppressing the opponent's anti-tank defenses.

"This could make a completely different story," he said.

In the air, recent assessments say the Arabs had nothing to compete with American-made Phantoms. U.S.-made M60A1 tanks were said to have performed better than the new Soviet T62 tank. The 105mm guns on British-made Centurians and American-made M48 Pattons also outranged the Soviet T54 and T55 tanks, which formed the bulk of the Arab armor.

Most journals credited the American "smart bomb" Maverick, introduced by the Israelis toward the end of the fighting, as the most successful weapon of the war. A U.S. Congressional Committee said even Egypitan President Anwar Sadat stressed its importance.

Post-war assessments also give the Soviet ZSU23-4 antiaircraft system—four radio-controlled guns on a tracked vehicle—equal billing with the SAMs.

SAM2 and SAM3 missiles, fired in prodigious numbers, accounted for only a few of the 105 aircraft and two helicopters lost by Israel in the 1973 war. SAM6 and SAM7 missiles and the anti-aircraft guns were more successful.

An American Congressional Armed Forces Committee headed by Rep. Samuel S. Stratton said SAMs of all types only knocked down nine Phantoms during the war. Anti-aircraft fire claimed an equal number.

The Defense Review and other journals said even these losses could be misleading. In the initial battles, the Israeli air force was launched against Arab ground forces without first suppressing anti-aircraft defenses. Their planes also did not have normal electronic counter measures (ECM) to baffle missile guidance systems and confuse anti-aircraft radar.

Air Force magazine said most Israeli aircraft were knocked down in the first three days of the conflict, when they were used without regard for losses to halt the Arab advance. They were successful, but the price was high.

Mona Lisa smile? she's pregnant, says physician

LONDON (UPI) — A retired London physician it is his considered medical opinion that the Mona Lisa is pregnant.

Dr. Kenneth D. Keale, a lifelong student of Leonardo da Vinci and his work, wrote in Nursing Times magazine, the Mona Lisa "probably portrays a pregnant woman whose smile betrays her secret satisfaction and whose full rounded face and figure and beautiful unjewelled hands reveal to a diagnostic eye the endocrine and electrolyte changes of pregnancy."

"It is important to realize that Leonardo was not sexually attracted to women, although he had a great fascination for their maternal characteristics," Keale said.

Stuffed pigeon to make her last flight in memorium

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Martha the pigeon will soon be winging her way home, not by flap of her own wings but by jetliner in hope her appearance might turn the tide for the California condor, the whooping crane and the Utah prairie dog.

It's too late for Martha. She is stuffed and mounted, having died almost 60 years ago at the age of 26. When she was gone there weren't any more like her nor will there ever be again. She was the last of the species known as the passenger pigeon.

Martha spent most of her years in the Cincinnati Zoo, where she was born in 1888 and where she died on Sept. 1, 1914.

At one time billions of passenger pigeons inhabited the East. Considered quite tasty as well as decorative on women's hats, they were killed off during the 19th Century. The extent of the mass extermination was not discovered until it was too late.

Now zoo officials and other friends of conservation are making a memorial to Martha in hopes other species now on the endangered list won't become extinct like martha's.

Robes remain

SYDNEY (UPI) — Attorneys in New South Wales will continue to wear "Batman" robes and curly wigs.

A move by Jim Stap robes an curly wigs.

A move by Jim Staples to end the wearing of legal robes failed at a meeting of the state's Bar Association.

Solzhenitsyn:

Nixon weak, advantage to Russ, allies

NEW YORK (UPI) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn says the Soviet Union and its allies are enjoying an unprecedented superiority over the West partly because President Nixon is "in such a weak position.

The exiled author also predicted in an interview that Communist rule will grow harsher in the Soviet Union, and he criticized Western newsmeen for what he called failure to report aggressively from the Communist nations.

Solzhenitsyn was interviewed by Walter Cronkite of the CBS network at his home in Switzerland.

"Never before has the superiority of the Soviet Union and the Warsaw Pact over the countries of NATO been so great as it is at the moment," Solzhenitsyn said.

"...never before has the President of the United States been in such a weak position as he is at the moment. He is now so weak that he does not have the strength to dictate to the Soviet Union."

Speaking as Nixon prepared for his third summit meeting with the Russians, Solzhenitsyn said that agreements on West Berlin and nuclear arms restrictions are being violated, and "your President does not have the sufficient strength to demand proper control of these treaties."

He also claimed —"according to the latest estimates of your experts" —the Communists hold superiority in nuclear weapons and missiles.

Solzhenitsyn drew a contrast between newsmen in Western Europe —"they pursued me everywhere" —and their counterparts in the Communist nations.

"What is strange is when this Western press gets to Moscow or to Eastern Europe, or even to China, for example,' Solzhenitsyn said.

"Here there's nothing sacred for them. They go at presidents, military, ministries and so forth, but there, if some miserable Bulgarian policeman tells them not to photograph a church, they stop. Or the Red Guards ... If they hang up some kind of leaflet and a correspondent comes up to read it and some wretched little Red Guard tells him not to read it, the correspondent turns and walks away.

"If the press has such freedom in the West then it must carry the same kind of freedom when it gets into the East," Solzhenitsyn said.

Some writers do pursue the news aggressively in the Communist nations, he said, but they are soon thrown out.

Asked about how it was in Russia before he left, the writer said, "The situation in the Soviet Union is getting worse."

He said Soviet authorities have this month "let out from there the last people who were getting in their way so as to reduce the pressure."

"In the future it won't be so easy to get out of there. And then they will be persecuting people more."

He added, "There is now a new concept in the Soviet Union —a friend of Solzhenitsyn is a criminal."

Overactive kids' drug curb urged

CHICAGO (UPI) — A psychologist urged physicians today to go slow in giving overactive children drugs to calm them because research shows youngsters become apathetic, listless and fail to improve scholastically.

It has been estimated that at least four out of every 100 grade school children are labeled hyperactive, but Dr. Herbert E. Rie said this is becoming a catch-all term regardless of cause for any child who can't be tolerated by teachers or parents because of his disruptive behavior.

"It is then defined as a medical problem and typically the first step taken is to try to control the behavior through medication," Rie said at a news conference before speaking at an American Medical Association panel on the subject.

Rie, professor of psychology at Ohio State University, said the drugs commonly used are stimulants such as amphetamines or methylphenidate, which for some unknown reason slow hyperactive children.

"The assumption is therefore made that once kids are calm, or attentive, they are going to be able to perform school tasks better and they are going to achieve more and all sorts of good things are going to happen," he said. "In our own research, we found there is absolutely no effect on actual scholastic achievement."

In a report on obesity at Monday's session of the AMA annual meeting, Stanford University psychiatrist Albert J. Stunkard outlined a four-point behavior modification program which he said has produced a 50 per cent improvement in helping overweight people lose unwanted pounds.

Dr. Stunkard said the revolutionary psychological approach avoids crash and fad diets and does not restrict food intake or tell people what to eat. Instead, it is designed to slowly make it more difficult for people to overeat by making it obvious what they are doing wrong.

One of the key aspects of the program is to have the overweight keep a detailed diary of what they eat, when, where, and how they feel when they eat. Other aspects of the technique are removing eating temptations, slowing people when they eat and rewarding them for following the regimen.

Stunkard said the program usually takes off a pound a week for 10 or 20 weeks. Most important, he said, is that people don't regain the lost pounds when therapy stops.

Rie, in discussing hyperactive children, said physicians should never prescribe stimulants to treat these youngsters until the child has been evaluated psychologically and scholastically. He said the doctor should refrain from giving drugs until other means of treatment have been tried.

Rie said the original definition of hyperactivity means the problem is caused by brain or nervous system abnormalities. But he said children often are labeled hyperactive when their problems are not medical but a result of environmental problems.

"If children are hyperactive for those reasons then all we really accomplish in utilizing the drugs is once again to obscure those causes of hyperactivity," he said.

Stockpile gas being used in allocations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gasoline from government stockpiles is being used to keep states at their designated June allocations, according to Federal Energy Administrator John C. Sawhill.

He said 4.4 million barrels were drawn from the 200-million-barrel stockpile to meet June allocations of at least 90 per cent of June, 1972, levels.

Because of short supplies, Alaska, Texas, Tennessee, Washington and Minnesota will get more than 100 per cent of their 1972 base allowance, Sawhill said. He said that where necessary, his office would step in in other areas to assure the public of adequate supplies if state officials could show a need.

Rattles & straws

Don't delete the expletives

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

Many political figures, judicial types and representatives of the assorted media would like to get their hands on the original "Watergate tapes," before secretaries had fallen asleep and busy Oval Room gremlins had edited.

One man would love to bend an ear to the untampered electronic ribbons for a unique reason. He wants to hear all of those deleted expletives.

Dr. Reinhold Aman, professor of medieval German literature at the University of Wisconsin, is a conoisseur of curses, an expert on expletives, a specialist in swearing. He can damn in 50 languages.

(When I was a young man with folly on my lips, I learned how to say "I have no money" in 11 different languages. I needed Dr. Aman's multilingual expertise when I was arrested for taking pictures of Adolf Hitler in Vienna in 1938. Fact. When a burly storm-trooper pulled me out of the tree and let loose a torrent of German, all I could reply was "I have no money." Not a big help at the moment.)

But back to Aman. "I personally swear," he says, "because there are so many things that bug me. That's why everyone swears." (I doubt if many people swear because of the things that bug Dr. Aman, but let it go.)

The professor sees profound psychological values in occasionally ripping out a thundering (expletive deleted) or a searing (expletive deleted) or a pungent (expletive deleted). Pressure valve type thing, right? When your wife crumples the fender on the car, a roaring (expletive deleted) may keep you from hitting her in the eye. If your kid breaks your favorite putter, an explosive (expletive deleted) may save him a broken arm.

Herr Professor from Milwaukee speaks wisdom. Enraged at a recalcitrant power mower—but conscious that my anguished (expletive deleted) would echo the length of my quiet suburban street—I hauled off and gave the balky machine a resounding kick. I was wearing tennis shoes at the time, and spent the rest of the afternoon getting two broken toes x-rayed and reset. An outraged (expletive deleted) would have saved me a week hobbling with a cane.

Dr. Aman has compiled dictionaries of billingsgate and published works on world profanity patterns. He feels that most people don't appreciate the finer points of cursing, as the American GI who uses more four-letter words than commas in an average sentence, a mindless, monotonous litany of little literary or psychological merit.

Politics aside, I seriously doubt that Dr. Aman would learn anything new from the untarnished Watergate tapes. From the tone of the unexpurgated portions of the record, there was little wit, inventiveness or imagination at work in the Oval Room, and I doubt if the erased obscenities and vanished invectives would have contributed much to Dr. Aman's anthology.

5 tons of mail to paper pulp?

ROME (UPI) — The district attorney's office said Thursday it is investigating a report that five tons of undelivered mail were turned into paper pulp.

A newspaper said a private delivery service working under contract to the post office department disposed of five tons of printed matter by taking it to a paper mill, where it was turned into pulp.

The Italian mails have long been under attack as slow and unreliable.

The Postal Ministry said this week there was a backlog of 70,000 or 80,000 registered and 120,000 or 130,000 unregistered letters at Rome's main railroad station alone.

The doctor comments

Pernicious anemia needs lifetime care

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is pernicious anemia and what can be done for it? I am 72 and have been doctored for high cholesterol. Have been getting B-12 shots each month. Do I have to continue these shots indefinitely? I did try pills, but they had no effect. Can anything else be done? I'm on a low-cholesterol diet.

DEAR READER — You are talking about two different problems. Your high cholesterol level and pernicious anemia have nothing to do with each other.

Pernicious anemia occurs because of a disorder of the stomach. That may sound strange to you, but your stomach forms a substance called "intrinsic factor." This substance flows with your food into the small intestine. It is used there to enable the B-12 in your diet to be absorbed into the blood stream. If you don't form intrinsic factor in the stomach, then you won't be able to absorb B-12.

Along with the failure of the stomach to continue to form intrinsic factor, there may be a decrease or absence of normal stomach acid formation. Just why a person's stomach quits forming intrinsic factor isn't known. It rarely occurs before age 35 and becomes more common thereafter. For some reason people with type A blood who are of northern European extraction are more likely to have the problem.

The lack of B-12 affects all of the body cells. It is a very important vitamin. It's main role is in the formation of DNA, the vital chemical in the nucleus of the cells essential to their ability to reproduce. This is why it causes an anemia. Did you know that your body forms three-million new red blood cells every second? This means you need a lot of B-12 to help form all those red blood cells. And, if you don't have it you develop an anemia.

The aneima is only part of the total picture. It shows up early because we need to produce more new red cells than about any other cells in the body. Digestive complaints are very common, too. The cells that line your small intestine are normally replaced every three days. If you don't have B-12 this process is also affected.

The nerve cells are also affected if you don't have enough B-12. This can cause degeneration of important nerve cells you need for function of the muscles in the legs and normal sensation. Mental changes can occur, too. This is why it is so important to correct a B-12 deficiency.

The only satisfactory treatment of real pernicious anemia is with B-12 shots. Some people can use liver shots that contain B-12. And, you have to take them indefinitely or for life. Just keep in mind that the body's entire regeneration process is dependent upon this vitamin and without it you will cease to have normal regenration process that are essential to keeping your body young or in good repair.

Being on a low-cholesterol or low-fat diet will not affect your need to take B-12. You can do both very handily.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on cholesterol, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Cholesterol" booklet.

3 school groups accept 5 per cent raise; teachers reject same offer

POMONA — Three employe groups in the Pomona school district Tuesday accepted an offer of a five per cent pay hike effective July 1, with the stipulation that an additional 3 per cent hike will be granted if and when additional state monies become available.

A similar offer was rejecetd by the Certificated Employes Council (CEC) of the Associated Pomona Teachers (APT).

CEC and the school board agreed to go to mediation. Schools Supt. Robert E. Wentz said at school board meeting that the California Conciliation Service had been contacted and that mediator Tom McCarthy would be present at the next session with CEC. That meeting will be held at 1:30 p.m. Thursday.

Employe groups accepting the 5 per cent offer were the Pomona Administrators Association, Chapter 14 of the California School Employes Association and Local 1080 AFL-CIO.

The school board granted Wentz the same five per cent increase, effective July 1, to his $33,550 salary. His contract, extended four years last year, was not extended this year.

The school board accepted the 1974-75 tentative budget which totals $24.8 million and reflects a 77.18 cent drop in the general purpose tax rate per $100 assessed valuation.

However, there are increases in the permissive tax rate, including a 10 cent increase in the earthquake safety building funds, which bring the cut in the total tax rate to 66 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

The tentative budget shows a drop in the total tax rate from $5.48 to $4.82 per $100 assessed valuation. It contains approximately $918 per pupil on projected enrollment, which administrators think will remain fairly stable. While the regular school enrollment continues to drop, it is made up by increases in adult enrollment.

The budget contains funds for the five per cent salary increases. It anticipates a four per cent increase in assessed valuation.

It cuts the general reserve fund to $25,000 and the reserve fund for appropriation for contingencies to $1.

"We may get raised eyebrows when this reaches the county," said Dr. Garrett C. Nichols, assistant superintendent of business services, "because that's not a usual pattern."

Ordinarily reserves account for two per cent or more of a total budget.

In other actions, the school board:

—Agreed to meet at 5 p.m. July 9, in the Education Center board room with City Council to hear a presentation on career education and review the joint city-school district recreation program. A regular school board meeting will follow at 7:30 p.m.

—Agreed to allow parents whose children attend Golden Springs or Armstrong elementary schools in Diamond Bar to transfer the children to the Diamond Poinnt Elementary School next year. Diamond Point has four empty classrooms. The other schools are overcrowded.

—Stated its intent to award an $831,913 contract to low bidder, W. D. Gott Construction Co., for construction of the Washington Elementary School project, subject to approval by the state.

It was announced that an executive session would be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. to further consider the naming of a person to the school board to replace Roy O. Day, who resigned June 10.

Income tax refund check finds rightful owner

In 1967 I was one of the owners of a company in Connecticut.

I filed my income taxes for that year and was expecting a return of approximately $350.

I have never been able to obtain the amount of money plus interest which is due me.

After many inquiries to the Internal Revenue Service I understand a check was sent to my former address in Burbank. Since I no longer live there it was returned to the IRS.

The people at the IRS are unable to locate the check. Can you help me get my money? —S.D., Claremont.

Your letter and the one we immediately sent to the Los Angeles district affairs office of the IRS were 5½ months old when we received a reply.

The answer, however, was good news. The IRS had verified the report you received that the check, including interest, had been sent to your old address and returned.

The check has been re-issued to you.

I am writing to see if you can get me the pattern I ordered or a refund.

The pattern was ordered a month and a half ago from Family Weekly at a Florida address. I sent a check for $1.50, which has cleared my bank.

Although I have written to Family Weekly I still haven't received my pattern. —J.C., La Verne.

Five days after we wrote to Family Weekly about your pattern you cancelled your complaint. You had received your order.

Then you received another pattern by air mail as a result of our inquiry.

You conscientiously returned the second package. Who needs two identical patterns?

I would like to know where I can buy book-bound albums for use in mounting photographs, documents, news clippings, etc.

In 1953 I bought eight of these albums manufactured by Hob-B-Bookcraft in Chicago. In 1965 I bought five more made by Educational Press in New York and called Book Shelf Scrap Book and Album.

All of these were the finest quality with excellent paper and thick, flat buckram covers.

They also had one tear out page for each permanent page to allow for mounted material.

I have written to both companies several times over the past three years with no response. The suppliers also have no information on these types of albums.

For the last two years I have checked several stationery stores, many camera stores, one wholesaler, book stores and one book binder.

Nothing but cheap quality, flashy looking and extremely expensive albums are supplied nowadays. —K. D., Claremont.

We asked in the valley and in the Los Angeles area for the type of album you want. Our luck was as nonexistent as yours.

Robert Framption, whose photographic studio is in your town, said he had gone through all his catalogues and watched the ads in his professional magazines but couldn't find anything resembling the albums you want.

"It seems that all manufacturers have been to the same schools as the automobile manufacturers and learned the value of 'planned obsolescence' as a way to build sales," he concluded.

Is there some way of finding the whereabouts of a lost relative who was last seen in 1915?

I was told that he was in the northern part of Missouri in 1969 but I didn't find him.

Any clue you might give me as to the proper procedure will be deeply appreciated. —Mrs. N. H., Pomona.

We sent you a list of tips last published in Action Line two months ago.

Long-missing relatives are getting to be a sizeable item in Action Line mail. It must be a phase of the nostalgia trend.

Appeals board for relocation recommended

POMONA — Creation of a seven-member Relccation Appeals Board is called for under a new city ordinance given initial approval by the City Council this week.

The board would hear appeals from such public bodies as the Community Redevelopment Agency concerning the eligibility for or amount of payments for relocation assistance to owners and occupiers of land acquired for public use.

The board after a public hearing would transmit its findings and recommendations to the governing body of the agency acquiring the property.

Members of the board, who would serve two-year terms, would be appointed by the mayor subject to council approval.

To avoid the expense of setting up an additional advisory group, the city is considering the possibility of appointing to the new board members of the Planning Commission and Redevelopment Commission.

Workmen's compensation program

Montclair votes for self-insurance

MONTCLAIR — The City Council purchased $10 million of liability insurance coverage Tuesday and decided to self-insure its workmen's compensation program effective July 1.

Only three councilmen attended the special adjourned session. Mayor Harold Hayes and Councilman Nelson Gentry were on vacation.

The vote on the insurance actions was 2-0 with Tom McClure abstaining because of a possible conflict of interest in his role as an insurance adjuster and stockholder in the firm in which he is employed.

City Atty. Eugene Demchuk assured McClure that the action would pass because it represented a two-thirds vote of the councilmen present.

Jack C. George of Montclair, the city's insurance broker, presented the details of the liability coverage and workmen's conpensation. The adjourned session was initially to consider the city's handling a self-insurance program for both programs, but George recommended that liability be delayed until it becomes more marketable.

The $10 million coverage includes auto, general, personal injury and false arrest. The premium will be $40,609 from the time the new company picks up the expiring contract of the present carrier. The present underwriting firm handling Montclair is phasing coverage of cities out of its operation.

The coverage increases from $2 million to $10 million.

City Administrator Lauren Wasserman said that about $15,000 would have to be transferred from the contingency fund, but he foresaw no problem in meeting the need.

Tte workmen's compensation program will cost the city about $18,900 annually. That premium figure covers claim handling, excess insurance and safety engineering; and gives coverage of $5 million to handle specific incidents of $50,000 per incident.

The city has a lost payment fund of $105,000 that takes in legal and medical expenses in addition to the other items. For any claim in excess of that $105,000, there is an umbrella coverage of $250,000.

Lorin Saunders of Diversified Insurance Brokers, the consulting firm being used by George, told councilmen that the medical treatment would be set up after consultation with the city staff and council, and the insurance firm would then handle arrangements.

Gals on force have CHP wives unhappy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Wives of California highway patrolmen aren't too happy over a new program to admit women on the force.

CHP supervising inspector Ralph M. Walker said: "We've had more critical word from some of the officers' wives than from the officers themselves.

"A lot of them have said: 'I'm not going to have my husband working alone at night with some woman.'"

Shriners will have picnic

POMONA — The Old Baldy Shrine Club will open its summer program Saturday with a steak barbecue at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds Picnic Hill.

The program is open to Shriners.

Tickets may be obtained from club officers or purchased at the site. The cost is $6 per person. A social hour will start at 5:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7. Chet Wilkins of Ontario, the club's first vice president, is chairman of the fund-raising project.

City workers get pay hike

CLAREMONT — The City Council Tuesday night approved a general eight per cent across-the-board salary increase for all city employes, effective July 1.

But in addition the Police Officers Association signed a two-year agreement which includes an across-the-board increase in 1975-76 equal to a cost-of-living increase, with no limit, for the period of Feb. 28, 1974 to Feb. 28, 1975, plus another 1½ per cent.

Communications officers and police officers this next year will receive the eight per cent hike and an additional one per cent increase next March 1, 1975.

Detectives will get nine per cent, and the one per cent hike next March.

Officers also will receive an increase of $5.94 a month in dependency health insurance coverage, and an increase of $3 a month for clothing allowance.

Through their union, the firemen received an eight per cent increase, with an additional two per cent hike March 1, 1975, an increase in dependency health insurance coverage, and an increase of $5 a month for clothing allowance, effective July 1.

The major medical insurance coverage offered under the city's group health insurance plan will be increased from $30,000 to $250,000, with the cost of the increased coverage carried by the city.

The city also will provide $3,000 additional life insurance coverage for department heads and management and supervisory personnel, with department heads going from $25,000 to $28,000, and management and supervisory personnel going from $15,000 to $18,000.

Besides the general increase, various city employes such as assistant mechanics, groundsmen, maintenance men, and refuse crewmen received an extra one per cent hike, with a street sweeper operator getting an extra two per cent.

The council also approved a change in the employe sick leave policy. At present the amount of personal sick leave which can be used for either death or illness in the immediate family is up to five days a year.

The new policy states that no more than seven days of sick leave each calendar year may be taken because of a death in an employe's immediate family, and no more than three days each calendar year may be used in case of sickness or disability of a member of his immediate family.

The council raised City Manager Keith Mulrooney's salary from $25,020 to $26,775, and upped City Atty. William Bergman's pay $75 a month to $775.

Department heads were also granted new maximum salaries.

Senior citizens complex coming before planners

POMONA — A proposal to build a senior citizen complex in north Pomona will be presented tonight to the Pomona Planning Commission.

Urbatec seeks to construct 110 one-bedroom units on five acres at 200 W. Drake St., near Garey Avenue and Foothill Boulevard.

The project, named Pomona Gardens, would seek low-income, elderly people as its tenants. The firm proposes to build three 2-story apartment structures, a single story community building, and four carports.

It will be constructed, financed and owned by private enterprise and will remain on the property tax rolls during its 20-year lease with the Los Angeles County Housing Authority, said the applicants.

Two elevators will serve all second-story units and 60 per cent of the units will have private balconies at the second floor or enclosed patios at the first floor.

The Planning Commission meets at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council chambers.

Other agenda items include:

Report on boarded up homes by Maggie O'Donnell, the city's housing coordinator; request by by the First Baptist Church to permit commercial coaches to be used as church school classrooms; and a request by Myron Jones to allow a dance hall, without alcoholic beverages, at 1475 W. Mission Blvd.

EDITORIAL Opinion

The real danger of impeachment

As the impeachment process grinds on, there is a considerable division in the public's reaction to the efforts to oust President Nixon.

California's recent primary has been considered a new high water mark in voter reaction against Watergate and against politics as a whole. The success, for instance, of Proposition 9 has been labelled an overwhelming demand by California voters for political reform.

That label can be disputed, because no real, coordinated campaign was mounted to enlighten the voters about the excesses and dangers inherent in the initiative. The title "Political Reform Act" was allowed to stand as a beacon to those who felt "something should be done."

The real question is: how deeply do the people of the nation really feel about impeachment, and do they understand its momentous implications?

New York Times writer William Safire made a very interesting point recently. He cited the fact that of the 11 Presidents who left office during this century, "10 left either feet first or with their reputation ruined." Consider the list:

McKinley—assassinated.

Theodore Roosevelt — turned office over to William Howard Taft, then ran unsuccessfully against him.

Wilson—collapsed and could not govern.

Harding—died in office.

Coolidge—chose not to run again.

Hoover—defeated by a reputation-ruining campaign.

Franklin Roosevelt—died.

Truman—chose not to run again.

Kennedy—assassinated.

Johnson—"like Truman, knew he had had enough."

Only Dwight Eisenhower completed his constitutionally allowed terms with reputation intact.

As Safire puts it, "most American Presidents close out their careers in three ways: by dying or being murdered; by being defeated; or by abdicating—refusing to run again because they knew they would lose.

"To these three means of ending political service," he continues, "we are now in danger of adding a fourth and fifth: impeachment and its inevitable companion, forced resignation."

Safire's concern is shared by many: what would the impeachment or forced resignation of Richard Nixon "for anything other than an indisputably 'high' crime like treason" do to the Presidency?

If such a precedent had been established, he ponders, would a move have been made against Hoover, Truman, Johnson? It would have failed, Safire reasons, but it would have been a strong way to hamstring a President. It would force a President whose popularity is waning to campaign more than govern.

Is the introduction into our political affairs of "a new and weakening element" worth it under today's given situation?

Many people, of course, say yes. But according to Safire, many others "who are neither sophists nor blind loyalists believe the presumed danger of not impeaching Richard Nixon is outweighed by the real danger of laying the knife of impeachment on the stage of very future presidential drama."

It is something to think about.

Thumbs down, not out

Hitchhiking is a year-round phenomenon in California, but with the influx of summer tourists it is bound to grow. And the California State Automobile Association is concerned.

CSAA Vice President and General Manager Alfred F. Frederico suggests "thumbs down on thumbs out." Hitchhiking, he says, is too great a gamble, especially for females. And it's no sinecure for drivers.

According to a recent California Highway Patrol study, "female hitchhikers are eight times more likely to be victims of crime than male, even though only one hitchhiker in ten is a female.

During the CHP's six month survey more than two thousands hitchhikers were estimated to have been victims of crime, half of them females. Most women were victims of sex offenses; the typical male was assaulted or robbed.

But the danger exists on both side. According to Frederico more than 800 motorists were assaulted or robbed by those they picked up.

Accidents, too, are the fate of many ride-thumbers and their benefactors. So, for safety's sake — both personal and traffic — CSAA urges a double negative: don't hitchhike, don't pick up hitchhiker .

"No one can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or he will be devoted to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon." — Matthew 6:24.

JACK ANDERSON

New CIA Watergate link

WASHINGTON — CIA front man Robert Bennett, son of veteran Sen. Wallace Bennett, R-Utah, has conceded that he knew a White House burglary-bugging team was on the prowl in advance of the celebrated Watergate break-in.

A secret memorandum, written by his CIA case officer, states that the senator's son withheld vital information from the authorities.

In an interview with my associate Les Whitten, Bennett acknowledged he knew at least three days before the Watergate burglary that White House aide E. Howard Hunt and his second-story crew had plotted to break into the campaign headquarters of Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., and bug the place.

Instead of reporting the conspiracy to the police, Bennett kept his mouth shut. He also confided to his CIA contact that he had held back information from the original Watergate break-in.

Had Bennett informed the police of the plot to bust into McGovern headquarters, as the law requires, the subsequent Watergate caper would have been aborted and the course of history might have been changed.

This episode is another link in the mysterious CIA involvement in Watergate. We uncovered the first piece of the puzzle as early as April 7, 1973, when we reported that the CIA had "ordered its agents not to talk to the FBI about the explosive Watergate case." Thereafter, we published several reports about the CIA and Watergate, but the full story still hasn't been told.

The CIA used Bennett's public relations firm, Mullen and Company, as a spy front. On its payroll was none other than Howard Hunt, the Watergate conspirator, who came to the firm from the CIA and later moved over to the White House.

Bennett's nephew referred a Brigham Young University student, named Thomas Gregory, to Hunt who recruited the young man as a political spy. Gregory infiltrated into the campaigns of the President's two chief Democratic rivals—first, Sen. Edmund Muskie's staff, then Sen. George McGovern's staff.

But Gregory, a conscientious Mormon, became uneasy about his undercover work. He spoke to his bishop about it, who was concerned about the ethics of the job.

Then Gregory went back to Bennett and explained his misgivings. As Bennett related it, Gregory had been told by Hunt to work late one night at McGovern headquarters and leave a door open so the White House burglars could sneak in.

Gregory informed Bennett that Hunt was "reporting to someone higher up." Hunt's White House connections impressed young Gregory. Bennett said he also felt Hunt would do nothing illegal because "he had a full-time lawyer advising him." The lawyer, it turned out, was Hunt's co-conspirator, G. Gordon Liddy.

Bennett said he advised Gregory "to get out." The troubled student gave Bennett a letter of resignation to deliver to Hunt. Two days later, the Hunt-Liddy team broke into the Watergate.

Bennett was called in for questioning six times by the original Watergate prosecutors. He held back Gregory's vital information out of loyalty to the youth, Bennett claims.

But the prosecutors traced Bennett's long-distance telephone toll calls to Gregory. When Bennett learned this, he called the prosecutors and said: "Look, you've found Tommy. I'll tell you about Tommy."

This helped the prosecutors to break the Watergate case.

PENTAGON PUPPET: Once again, we have caught Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., playing Charlie McCarthy to the Pentagon's Edgar Bergen. Perched upon the Defense Department's knee, he opens his mouth and the military speaks.

A month ago, we reported that Hebert, the imperious chairman of the House Armed Service Committee, had presented to the House a report on military aid to Saigon which was copied, virtually word for word, from Pentagon testimony.

Now, the crusty, old congressional "watchdog" has done it again. Included in his committee report on the Pentagon's supplemental budget request is a section on the Navy's proposal for a permanent base on the Indian Ocean island of Diego Garcia.

It is practically a carbon copy of testimony offered by Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, the Navy chief, before a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on March 20.

Apparently, Hebert's only disagreement with the Pentagon is over grammar. He tinkered slightly with the Navy's paragraphing and punctuation. He also edited out some of Zumwalt's "I's" and "We's" and substituted a few "observers."

"I always knew Hebert and his boys were pushovers for the Pentagon," one of Hebert's committee members told us, "but I never expected them to prove it so decisively. I am ashamed to say that right now the committee is nothing but a rubber stamp for the Pentagon."

Footnote: Repeated calls to the committee for comment have not been returned.

RALPH NOVAK

A survival kit for presidents

A pair of young British writers, Raymond Hawkey and Roger Bingham, have published a new novel, "Wild Card," about an American president who faces turbulent domestic problems. To create a distraction, he organizes a team of scientists to create a simulated invasion from outer space and cause all kinds of havoc. Hawkey and Bingham finished writing the novel long before the current White House incumbent fell upon hard times, so the good timing of the release of their book and its relevance are only a happy coincidence for them. But as the old saying goes, if the carping criticism and insidious innuendoes fit, wear them.

So it may be instructive to consider some alternative plans of action for presidents in distress who might find the Martian invader route a little too far out. One might effectively district the populace, for instance, by:

Starting rumors that "Bridget Loves Bernie" is going to be revived on network television.

Nominating hints to the Washington Post that Henry Kissinger was not only responsible for the plumbers and wiretapping of government officials, but he caused the Civil War, the Great Potato Famine and Tom Seaver's slump, too.

Persuading the Pentagon to announce that radar installations were reporting huge swarms of 17-year locusts about to descend on the country, even if it was the wrong year for them.

Announcing gleefully that a new study of the White House tapes has uncovered a previously unreleased record of Enrico Caruso singing "Volare."

Running for Congress in California.

Arranging a marriage between King Timahoe and Lassie.

Using carefully calculated Keynesian economic policies and the services of the nation's top economists to create an inflation rate of 712 per cent per year while putting a freeze on wages, taking care to make certain that the price of milk rises to at least $26 a gallon.

Changing foreign policy to include plans to conquer Canada and Mexico and reclaim the Phillippines as an American colony.

Inaugurating a new weekly television situation comedy series called "All in the President's Family," with the real life cast spending a half hour making prejudiced remarks and acting paranoid.

Hiring an exorcist to work in the White House.

Pointing out that everything wrong with the country is in fact George McGovern's fault, since if he had known what he was doing he would have won the 1968 election and we wouldn't have any of these problems.

Impounding all copies of the Constitution on the grounds that the Founding Fathers really hadn't wanted it made public and only forgot to exercise their executive privilege.

Sending all sitting American judges to Arab countries to help them improve their legal systems.

And finally, one could cause all kinds of confusion by admitting absolute and unconditional guilt, pointing out that the devil had made one do it.

LETTERS FROM P-B READERS

Learn the language

In regard to the article about more bilingual classes for Spanish. Why? This is America and our language is English. When anyone from a foreign country comes here they should immediately learn the language and that begins with the adults so they, in turn, can teach the children and speak it at home. I'd rather see more classes in the adult education school.

My parents were from Poland and I grew up in a Polish community and they were so proud to be here they learned to speak English and we had to speak it at home. It was hard for them and all around and they spoke in broken English but proud of what they learned. By the time we went to kindergarten we spoke two languages.

There were all kinds of "D.P's" around (as all were called then), Polish, Hungarian, Italian and Russian and all in the same boat. We didn't call on the public school system to help us. We helped ourselves.

Here it seems the parents are here for years and don't learn English and want the schools to teach Spanish. I have no sympathy in this — I went through it. If you live in a country you learn the language. The parents must learn first. — Mrs. Lorraine Hildebrand, Diamond Bar.

Gossip for today

I see that the wheat farmers are delaying sales in an attempt to boost prices. This despite the certainty that the housewives of America are bound to arise, scream to high heaven and organize a wheat boycott.

But the wheat growers seem more than willing to take their chances with irate American housewives. After all, haven't they seen what happens when those housewives arise? —Although the gals put on a rousing meat boycott recently, a boycott that had the cattle hoarding livestock raiser wallowing in unsold beef, an all-benevolent government immediately granted the cattle interests a $3 billion government guaranteed loan to tide them over until prices once again go up.—

But somehow I have a feeling that this time the me-too wheat growers may be in for an unpleasant surprise. One should never underestimate the power of American housewives twice scorned. They may even be able to achieve what a Watergate investigation has thus far failed to bring about.

TOM TIEDE

Combat zone on the turnpikes

WASHINGTON — A driver traveling 55 m.p.h. on the New Jersey Turnpike recently was forced into higher speeds by the sight of a tractor-trailer truck rushing into his rearview mirror. The driver gunned to 60, then 65 and 70—but still the truck closed ground.

Finally, unnerved, the motorist hit his brakes and the truck wrenched past with an Armageddon roar while its driver, clearly visible in his lofty warroom, grinned, drank soda pop and waved a contemptuous middle finger from his window.

America's highways, never showplaces for reason or brotherhood, are today deteriorating even further toward total anarchy. The reduction of the legal speed limit to 55, while seldom observed by anyone, has created new and potentially tragic frictions between the highway's natural enemies: the cars and the trucks.

Terrible games of tag and bully are taking place at speeds enough to slaughter the participants—and anybody else hapless enough to be in the way.

The situation, says Ken Pierson of the Bureau of Motor Carrier Safety, here is nothing short of vehicular "tyranny."

He says the bureau, an arm of the Department of Transportation, is "receiving more and more complaints concerning the disposition of some truck and bus drivers to operate at excessive speed, to tailgate automobiles and other commercial vehicles, as if the highways were their private domain and automobiles were interlopers on a private preserve."

Pierson is not the only one receiving motorist flak. A New Jersey Turnpike tolltaker says protests at his booth go on all day, every day: "I remember this one guy, he said he got so mad at a truck he tried to ram it. Can you imagine? The guy had a little Volks and he was trying to smash an 18-wheeler. But you can't blame him; what I see on this turnpike is almost like combat."

As yet, casualty figures concerning the blacktop war are unavailable. At least one federal agency—the National Highway Safety Council—is supposed to be studying the safety impact of the 55 limit, but authorities there admit to inaction. Withal, there is no doubt as to the casualty potential.

The American Automobile Association says that games between cars and trucks are as onesided as lynchings; it reports that while tractor-trailer trucks crompise only 3.7 per cent of the road miles driven in the nation, they account for 6.6 per cent of the fatal accidents. So big are the rigs (the legal weight limit in interstate highways is now 73,280 pounds) that their "frequency of involvement in fatal accidents is 86.5 per cent greater than the car."

This is not to say, of course, that trucks are inherent road menaces. The American Trucking Association argues correctly that truckers overall are comparatively safe drivers and that combination trucks in general account for only 2.3 per cent of all highway accidents.

Nonetheless, there is growing unease even in the trucking industry that more and more drivers are becoming arrogant, careless and unlawful.

Sen. Harold Hughes (D-Iowa), himself an extrucker, estimates that 90 per cent of big rig drivers use pep pills; the DOT reports an increase in headphone stereo set use by younger drivers, "a safety hazard of incredible proportions"; and such is the temptation to overload trucks that the Pennsylvania Highway Patrol remembers nabbing one dolt driver with 200,000 pounds.

Given the more aggressive and insensitive driver, then, road tyranny is an unsurprising result. ("We got to make time," says one owner-operator, "I can't feed my kids on 55 mph.") The question is how to stop it? Local police around the nation insist that increased enforcement is not the answer. New Jersey Turnpike cops gave 1,000 more truck summonses in this January-May over last, but "that didn't hardly faze them." Even now the Teamsters Union is attempting to force companies to pay for such driver indiscretions.

So there may be no answer here save an unforeseen enlightenment of the violating truck drivers. And until and if such religion occurs, safety officials warn motorists to cool it. Trucker tyranny can't be remedied by the motorist revenge. Stay in your lane, at your speed, and let the big apes do the maneuvering. What the truck-car situations do not need are TWO damn fools.

Final Walnut budget may be approved

WALNUT — City councilmen are expected to adopt a final 1974-75 fiscal budget at their meeting tonight.

The council would up deliberations on the proposed plan last week, and is scheduled to approve it at the 8 p.m. session in city hall.

Few significant changes are expected in the proposed $589,500 budget submitted by City Manager Andy Lazzaretto to councilmen last month.

Councilmen did approve an 8.9 per cent salary boost for all city employes last week, which will be included in the budget.

The council tonight also is expected to consider hospitalization benefits for employes, and collection of taxes for assessment district No. 2.

Another important item on the agenda is presentation of a report from the civic center committee, consisting of Councilmen Richard Laughter and William Wentworth.

The long-awaited report is expected to recommend a possible site for a new civic center.

Arsonists blamed for small fires

POMONA — Firemen say arsonists started four small fires Monday night and Tuesday.

A flammable liquid was thrown inside a door at A-1 Moving and Storage Co., 445 W. Commercial Ave., Monday night causing damage estimated at $500. Lawnmower equipment and paint were among the items damaged. No one was in the building at the time.

Two vehicle fires, in the 2500 block of Cathy Street and at 2575 Barjud St. caused damage estimated at $3,000. A 1973 Datsun was gutted on Cathy and a 1968 Plymouth suffered some damage on Barjud. Firemen said in both cases, a flammable liquid was tossed inside the cars.

Arsonists apparently also set a small trash fire in a garage at the same address on Barjud, within 20 minutes of the car fire, about 3:10 a.m.

Vacationers to receive phone bill reduction

POMONA — Residents planning an extended summer vacation may receive a 50 per cent reduction on their telephone service charge.

To qualify, a customer must plan on being away from home not less than 30 consecutive days, said Jack King, public affairs director for General Telephone Co.

All a person has to do is notify the nearest telephone company business office of the exact vacation dates and when normal phone service should be restored.

"During the customer's extended trip from home, the telephone bill will be only half the basic rate normally charged for the residence service," he added.

By early '75, an adjacent public clubhouse and overnight lodge, privately owned and operated. The challenging 27-hole layout was designed by famed golf course architect Ted Robinson of Palos Verdes.

Entertainment Center. Our massive, million dollar Silver Lakes Racquet Club is already open and welcoming visitors. Right now families are enjoying tennis, swimming, whirlpool, shuffleboard, entertaining in the elegant restaurant and cocktail lounge. Also ready: beaches and launching ramps at both lakes; 30-acre Cottonwood Park & Wildlife Preserve.

For everybody but the home buyer

Closing—a nice cozy game

By LEW KOCH

(Second in a series)

When the average citizen gets "burned" for an extra few hundred or even thousand dollars in hidden costs in buying a home, he has little recourse except to complain about it over cocktails.

But when the same thing happens to a member of Congress, new laws start being drafted.

A congressional investigation into the high cost of settling real estate transactions found that some attorneys were involved in kickbacks, price fixing and a host of legal maneuvers designed to line their pockets and empty those of the poor guy who had just emptied his bank account in order to buy a home.

How does it happen? Well, let's say you're involved in a simple real estate transaction — the selling or buying of a home.

If you're the seller, the real estate broker will impress you with the fact that the both of want to get the highest possible price for the house. But when he asks you to sign a "standard" contract, the broker may neglect mentioning some of the small print covering (or not covering) such "petty" details as who can negotiate the selling price, multiple listings, fixtures, zoning restrictions, method of payment, default, title and when the broker collects his fee.

If you are the buyer, the real estate broker may urge you to sign a "standard" contract (prepared, of course, by the broker's lawyer). One fact the broker may not mention is that the contract will protect his interest — not your's. The contract may not detail such "Petty" items as financing, title, insurance, surveys, taxes, time of occupancy, etc.

If you're buying a house and think that the attorney for the institution lending you the money will check everything out — check again. If the mortgage institution (bank, savings and loan, etc.) doesn't get the highest possible interest, they may not be telling you about such "petty" details as what happens if you want to pay off the mortgage ahead of time, what's wrong with the title, special zoning ordinances and closing costs.

As Benny L. Kass, general counsel for the National Homebuyers and Homeowners Association in Washington, put it, "The mortgage industry is one of the most incestuous within our economy. Lenders refer borrowers to law firms and to title companies; real estate firms use their favorite law firms for settlement. And everyone sits on each other's board of directors, sharing the bounty.

"The net result is to deprive the homebuyer the opportunity to shop around for the best loan, the best survey, the best title search, and the best title insurance — at the least expensive price. Let's face it: there is no real competition in today's housing marketplace."

The broker, the lender, the escrow company and the title insurance company all demand and receive the best legal protection. Their attorneys protect them — not you.

One expense involved in buying and selling houses is created by the need to establish title (ownership). The title companies go to the expense of duplicating the usually chaotic public records and consolidate and index them.

These private monopolies (as some reformist attorneys call them) then turn around and, for an astronomical fee, they check (or allow to be checked) those duplicated public records which were originally designed to be used at no cost at all!

And their check usually protects only the institution who has lent you the money — not you, unless you pay an additional fee.

Thus, the different attorneys who have accompanied you through this typical homebuying experience, have not been your attorneys at all. They have been acting in the best interests of their first client (the broker, the lender, the escrow company and the title company) and with your interests a far second. The only way to categorize this kind of behavior is by calling it what it is: a conflict of interests.

The American Bar Association, quite properly is concerned about such behavior. They realize that if something isn't done about it, and quickly, Congress may pass some stringent legislation to rectify the matter.

Any system that has grown so complicated and so costly is also impossible to reform piecemeal.

Benny Kass offers, instead, one kind of massive and very realizable alternative: put real estate transactions under the same kind of "statute of limitations" that other legal actions fall under. Kass suggests that three years after a piece of property has been sold, no suit against the property would be allowed to be filed. Thus, in one fell swoop, those lengthy, costly 50-year title searches would become unnecessary.

There is another way for the average homebuyer to cut his costs: hire his own attorney, a lawyer who would put the homebuyer's interests first — and everybody else's last. Despite the fact that a few states require buyers to retain counsel, the majority of homebuyers are not represented by attorneys.

The only problem with that, though, is that many lawyers don't want to bother with that kind of petty business. There's far more money to be made working for the interest of the real estate broker, the bank and the title company.

But when enough congressmen feel they've been taken in buying a home, they just might turn around and pass some sweeping legislation which would make it less complicated and less costly to buy your own home.

(NEXT: Plea-Bargaining)

"It is my opinion that most American families, even the most sophisticated, find closing on a newly purchased home to be a bewildering and complicated experience. You can literally bury a family with closing cost information and still make this situation a most costly and complex endeavor. I think the basic question that this subcommittee is faced with is how to reduce the unconscionably high cost that American families are facing in closing on a mortgage and how to simplify the transaction."

— Congressman William A. Barrett, Chairman of the Subcommittee on Housing, in hearings on real estate settlement costs.

Chief Justice assails cost of real estate law

One important area of the law that sooner or later touches the lives of almost every American is the purchase of a home. One can hardly imagine an American who does not wish to own his own home. With our tradition of upward mobility, a family may repeat this process several times.

When I began to practice law, the newest associate in the firm was assigned the task of examining titles and closing real estate purchases, and he continued in that role until another new man came along. The cost at that time ranged from $15 to $30 for the purchase of the typical family home.

There is a growing practice of using title insurance either as a substitute for — or in addition to — the lawyer's title opinion. Today we know that in many states the incidental costs of acquiring a new home, even in the $40,000 category, can run into a very large sum. We know that the operating costs of lawyers have skyrocketed in recent years, but the very cost of the procedure today dictates that we examine the whole business closely.

The point I seek to make is that the basic system of real estate titles and transfers — and the related matters concerning financing and purchase of homes — cries out for re-examination and simplification.

In a country that transfers not only expensive automobiles but multimillion dollar airplanes with a few relatively simple papers covering liens and all, I believe that if American lawyers will put their ingenuity and inventiveness to work on this subject they will be able to devise simpler methods than we now have.

I suggest that it is a very high priority in terms of the public obligation of our profession to press for a comprehensive re-examination of the entire process of land titles and transfers, title insurance, the financing of real estate transactions, closing procedures and, of course, the costs of all these steps.

They are unduly complex and therefore unduly expensive today.

I urge you to help marshal the ingenuity of American lawyers to make these processes as simple and inexpensive as can be done. This will give meaning to the proud boast of our profession that we place public good ahead of private gain.

(Chief Justice Burger delivered these remarks before a recent meeting of the American Law Institute.)

Rhodes: pro-Nixon feeling getting larger and louder

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes said that pro-Nixon sentiment in the country has grown larger, louder and more solid in the past few weeks.

Rhodes told a news conference he reached that conclusion mostly from his mail. He declined to speculate what percentage of the populace supports President Nixon in his campaign to avoid impeachment.

"I think the hard core Nixon support has hardened," he said. "I think it is larger than I thought it was."

"In any event it's getting louder," he said.

Rhodes called the news conference to deplore news leaks concerning Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's role in wiretaps. The leaks are "morally wrong and unfair," he said.

As for Kissinger's emotional threat to resign, Rhodes said: "To me the wonderment of it is that he has done so well in so many things and perhaps in this one instance he may have faltered a bit."

Financier's fleet sold to cut debt

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — C. Arnholt Smith's Westgate-California Corp. has agreed to sell its tuna fishing fleet to Castle & Cooke Inc. of Honolulu for $35.8 million.

The Westgate-California Corp. is controlled by a court-appointed bankruptcy trustee, Curvin J. Trone Jr., who said the sale is one of many which have reduced Westgate's debt by $50 million since bankruptcy proceedings began Feb. 26.

The sale involves 13 tuna fishing vessels, a refrigerated tuna-carrying ship, a marine hardware company and a grocery company. Castle & Cooke, the largest Hawaii-based company, plans to incorporate the fleet into its Bumble Bee seafood operations.

Film corp. will lease Marineland

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. Monday agreed to lease Marineland of the Pacific from Hollywood Park Inc., with a option to buy the aquatic amusement park for between $6.5 and $9 million.

Under terms of the agreement, the film company will invest $3 million in the park to provide new facilities and theatrical acts to boost attendance.

In a separate transaction, Hollywood Park Inc., the holding company which operates the Hollywood Park racetrack and Marineland, announced the sale of 1,500 acres in the Santa Cruz, Calif., area for $1.4 million. The land was acquired when Hollywood Park, Inc. originally purchased Marineland.

Lewis Wolff, president of the 20th Century-Fox Realty and Development Co., said the firm does not expect much of an increase in Marineland's admission price. "We want to increase the number of people coming in," he said. He added that the current Marineland staff will be retained when the park changes hands.

MEETIN' & EATIN' at BETSY ROSS

by Gene Neighbors

Hi, Neighbors,

About 50 Lehigh Elementary children were in Pomona Valley Center Betsy Ross on Friday for ice cream cones. We didn't get the names of the accompanying adults, but wish to thank them for the orderly manner in which the excursion was conducted.

MARIE CRAWFORD, waitress at Claremont Coffee Shoppe, has advanced to the status of grandmother. Congratulations.

Don't forget to get your Nostalgic Place Mats with each guest check of $3 or more Monday thru Thursday. This is the last week, so we hope you have been able to complete your collection of five.

I finally found out what that congenial general contractor "Jerry" EDWARDS is good for beside building beautiful Betsy Ross buildings . . . World's greatest Marlin fisherman! Ask to see my pictures! (Ed. note . . . You don't really have to ask . . .)

Spotlighting this week: BETTIE SANDERS, of Glendora Betsy Ross. BETTIE is one of those rare mothers who is so involved in so many things that we wonder how she does them all. She has been with the Company four years, three of them at Upland, but was an opening waitress last year for Glendora. She served in PTA 12 years, as president 2 years, and is currently serving her second years as council vice president. She was a Girl Scout leader for five years and Campfire leader for two. BETTIE is active in YMCA, Little League, and an all-girl softball team. She is a member of the Upland Church of Christ, and has lived in California 20 years. Her three daughters and sons have every right to be justly proud of such a mother. We are grateful to have such an employee.

MTAC to hold convention in San Diego

SAN DIEGO — David Tischler, recently elected president of the Pomona Valley branch of the Music Teachers' Association of California, and Eloise Wilder, one of the directors, will be delegates to the 64th annual MTAC convention in San Diego Friday through Tuesday.

The convention program will feature concerts, master classes, recitals, demonstrations, lectures, exhibits, and performances by important artists.

Several students of local teachers will be among those participating at the convention, which will be held at the Sheraton-Harbor Island Hotel. Playing the piano in Friday's materials session will be: Suzanne Scott, Maryann Wilkinson, and Kathy Wilkinson, pupils of Marguerite Green; Ted Price and Simone Klitenic, pupils of Ralph Pierce; Janice Mills, pupil of Margaret Shelton; and Bonnie Carter, pupil of Eloise Wilder. Peggy Losh, whose teacher is Helena Johnson, will play a Brahms capriccio in the advanced materials program. In the composers today program on Sunday, Margaret Shelton will play the two compositions she wrote that won the top teacher-composer awards for this year.

The Music Teachers' Association, established in 1897, has over 50 branches in the state, and a membership of 2,600 professional music teachers. The purpose of the organization is to promote musical culture and maintain high standards of music teaching.

Other newly elected officers of the Pomona Valley branch are Marie Searles, vice president; Audrey Grigsby, treasurer; Sheryl McLain, recording secretary; Sylvia Barton, corresponding secretary; Genevieve Barber, membership secretary, and Helena Johnson, Charlotte Jacobs and Miss Wilder, directors.

Argentina has cheap flight fare

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Argentina's state owned, air force-run L.A.D.E. air line operates a very cheap service in the southern part of the country to encourage tourism and settlement.

Light aircraft flights to remote mountains, lake and glacier resorts are prompt and cost as little as the bus fare.

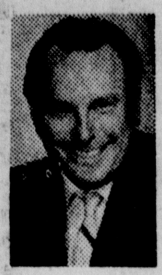
Dodgers and Braves both 'robbed'



Don Bradley

Progress-Bulletin Staff Writer

Valley baseball proved excellent

In a column of his published earlier, Sports Editor Bill Langley made reference to the excellent quality of college baseball played in the Valley.

Final national statistics released by the NAIA office of Kansas City, Mo. verify this.

Biff Sherman, who returns to Pomona-Pitzer baseball next year, was third in the nation in batting with a .516 average.

John Verhoeven of La Verne, now playing professional baseball in the Angels farm system in Davenport, Ia., tied for 11th nationally in earned run average, 1.14, was second in percentage for his 14-1 (.933) won-loss record, and seventh in strikeouts (115 in 117 2-3rd innings).

La Verne's Mike Alonso, now with Wisconsin Rapids in the Midwest League (same league as Verhoeven) in the Minnesota Twins farm system, was among the leaders nationally in four different categories.

Alonso was fourth in runs batted in (57), third in hits (75), ninth in doubles (16), and tied for third in home runs with 15.

Azusa Pacific also had its share of heroes. Third baseman Ted Dominguez and second baseman Mark Rogers led in doubles with 19 each.

Dominguez and teammate Chuck Van Schoych tied with a number of others for eighth in runs scored nationally (49).

Van Schoych, now with New Westminister, in British Columbia, Canada in the Northwest League, was second in runs batted in (69) and 12th in hits (66) and fifth in home runs (14).

Dominguez was fourth in hits with 73.

So it is apparent this was a vintage year in Valley baseball. Three of the coaches are keeping it interesting during the summer.

Art Mazmanian of Mt. San Antonio College is managing Great Falls, Montana, Ben Hines of La Verne is managing Ogden, Utah and Larry Himes of West Covina is running the Idaho Falls, Idaho, team all in the Pioneer League.

Dean Taylor, who worked with classmates Tim Taylor and Mike Manning in putting out excellent District Three news releases while at Claremont Mens' College, is general manager of the New Westminister (British Columbia) club.

With the increasing number of top high school players signed by big league clubs, the day can't be too far off when Bill Singer, Rollie Fingers, Doug Bird, Rich Coggins, and Bill Campbell are joined in the majors by a a large number of players from Valley high schools and colleges.

★ ★ ★

The 1974 Dodgers have been from the start and are continuing to be an exciting and interesting team to watch.

Leftfielder Bill Buckner has now made eight sprinting, diving, one-handed stabs of balls that were labelled extra bases.

Steve Garvey, Jimmy Wynn and Ron Cey are belting the ball and remain among the leaders in runs batted in.

Wynn is an enigmatic centerfielder. The little guy runs very well, and is a fine outfielder. But, plagued by painful bone chips in his throwing arm, is a distinct liability whenever a ball is hit his way with a runner on second or third.

Jimmy himself admits his arm is "dead." He'll remain in the lineup as much as possible and have the ailing member operated on after the season ends.

Garvey, while receiving accolades for his power and hitting, has made himself into one of the league's best fielding first baseman in case you haven't noticed.

He makes Buckner, a first baseman by trade, look like a beginner in comparison. Buckner, in left field, one-hands everyting and also does not throw well. But "Buck" hits well, is surehanded on any ball that comes his way and runs extremely well although not possessed of great speed.

Joe Ferguson has shown signs of regaining the hitting form that made him a terror last year. He and Steve Yeager give the Dodgers two of the best catchers around. However, when put in right field, Fergie becomes a liability.

Bill Russell continues to make all the plays and an occasional error at shortstop. But Russell is one of the tops in the game at his position, errors or no.

Dodger pitching is good, especially with Don Sutton breaking out of his slump.

Mike Marshall is now showing why the Dodgers went after him. Marshall may be the best in the game now and could be the best for all time because of his amazing durability.

L.A. thrives on miracles

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — The Dodgers were robbed Wednesday night. But then so were the Atlanta Braves.

Three armed robbers took something like $6,000 in gate receipts. Meanwhile the umpires "stole" one from the visiting Braves.

Call it poetic justice, fate, retribution or the revenge of Jimmy Wynn, whatever you want, but an eighth-inning judgement by second base umpire John Kibler deprived the Braves of at least one run and stifled an Atlanta rally.

The Dodgers went on to score two runs in the ninth on four hits and a walk and pull out a 2-1 decision.

The visitors scored their only run in the eighth. But they should have had more.

Shortstop Craig Robinson led off with the fifth hit, an infield single, off Andy Messersmith. Pitcher Max Leon (0-1) sacrified.

Ralph Garr beat out another infield hit and Robinson advanced to third. Messersmith got Rowland Office on a foul to Ron Cey for the second out. But Darrell Evans nudged the third infield hit of the inning to drive in the run.

That brought up Henry Aaron with runners on first and second and two out.

Aaron promptly produced the hardest hit ball of the inning, a sinking liner to centerfield. Wynn raced in, dived, slid on his stomach and held the ball aloft.

Kibler, who had gone out on the grass behind second base and to the first base side, signalled out. The Braves, led by Garr, Evans, third base coach Connie Ryan and manager Eddie Mathews raced out and surrounded Kibler screaming that Wynn had trapped the ball.

Kibler, one of the National League's shorter fused arbiters, took umbrage at the remarks passed by Ryan and Mathews and thumbed them out of the game.

In the clubhouse, Wynn was asked by grinning writers if he ranked the catch as one of his greatest. "Not really," he replied keeping his eyes averted.

"Did you catch the ball?" persisted the scribes. "I had it all the way," Wynn answered and then grinned, "I caught it, I caught it."

Ron Cey was more frank. "Jimmy really didn't catch that ball," he said. "He trapped it. But he did the only thing he could do. He held it up hoping the umpires would go for the fake and they did."

It was ironic. Wynn had been robbed of a three-run homer Monday night when Braves' leftfielder Ivan Murrell apparently jumped and fell three rows into the stands and caught Wynn's towering fly.

A Los Angeles newspaper Tuesday afternoon printed a series of pictures purporting to show that Murrell actually missed the ball and came up with it after it bounced away from fans.

The Dodgers rallied for two runs in the ninth without an out ever being recorded.

Bill Buckner led off with his third hit. Wynn followed with his first hit and the Dodgers then took advantage of Office's inexperience.

Buckner slowed going into second, rounded the base, and when Office was slow in getting off a throw, shifted to high gear and raced for third.

Office's hurried throw to third was off target slightly and Buckner made it safely. Wynn, who hadn't hesitated at first, sped to second. Danny Frisella replaced Leon.

Steve Garvey's infield hit scored Buckner and Wynn advanced to third. Willie Crawford was walked intentionally, loading the bases.

Buckner was the key. "I slowed going into second," he related. "If he (Office) comes up throwing, I have to hold (at second), if not, I might have a chance for third. As soon as he hesitated, I took off. It's a good play if you make it, a terrible play if you don't."

Mike Marshall (8-3), making his seventh straight appearance and 47th of the year, pitched the ninth and got his fourth win in five days.

DODGER DATA — Don Sutton (6-6) and Carl Morton (9-2) were slated to pitch in today's 1:15 p.m. Businessmen's Special.

Garvey now leads the league with 58 runs batted in. Wynn has 57 and Cey 52.

Messersmith has to be the hardest luck hurler around. His ERA now is down to 2.09.

Squealing girls following Borg

LOCAL-NATIONAL
Sports

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Someone must have turned out the primary schools Tuesday for hundreds of squealing girls poured into the Wimbledon Tennis grounds demanding that their idol, Bjorn Borg of Sweden, be delivered up to them.

And Billie Jean King and Rosemary Casals were delighted. Well, it was audience participation wasn't it, they said. And that was what their World Team Tennis back home was all about, everybody getting noisily involved in what was happening on court.

But what was happening at staid Wimbledown has never happened in WTT.

The stampede towards the players dining room where the 18-year-old Swede had taken refuge caught the stewards by surprise. One of them gasped, while pushing back the throng: "Imagine what it would be like if he could also sing."

The chants of "We want Borg"—unprecedented in the birthplace of tournament tennis —brought a storm of shushing from the older generation, to no avail.

Despite the approval of top-seeded Billie Jean and fourth-seeded Rosemary, Wimbledon plans to go on as it has been doing since 1877 with no applause during rallies and no cheering at any time. And if World Team Tennis has any doubts that this policy pays here there were 27,000 admission Tuesday—a two-day total of 52,000, many of them at the $8.00 top.

"It's funny to hear the umpire ask for quiet on the courts," Rosemary insisted.

As far as the box office goes this will be the richest of the 88 Wimbledons so far. It has to be to pay prizes totalling $234,480. The quality of play Tuesday did not reflect this golden standard, but for connoisseurs there was one absorbing match in which age, wielding a rapier, disarmed youth armed with a cutlass.

In other words, Ken Rosewall of Australia, 39, the ninth seed, moved into the last 32 of the men's singles by beating Vijay Amritraj, 20, of India, 6-2, 5-7, 9-8, 6-1.

Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill, the third seed, took up where he left off because of fading light Monday night and won the fourth set and match from big Ove Bengtson of Sweden, 6-1, 7-9, 6-2, 6-4.

Connors, who wore a sweater throughout in the cloudy, chilly day, said, I'm glad to be playing again. I'm quite satisfied with my game."

He was barred from the Italian and French championships because he took part in the WTT tour.

Billie Jean made a 33-minute appearance in center court to beat Kathie May of Los Angeles 6-1, 6-1 and open her campaign for a sixth Wimbledon singles crown. Miss Casals took only a little longer to dispose of Britain's Penny Moore, 6-2, 6-1. Another of the American delegation, eighth-seeded Arthur Ashe also had an easy win over Hans Kary of Austria 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

Defending champion and sixth seed Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia was one set down and 1-4 in the second to powerful Leif Johansson of Sweden before he found the range and plodded into the last 32 of the singles 3-6, 7-5, 6-3, 6-4.

Today's program will fill up the last 32 of the men and women's singles. Second-seeded Chris Evert of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., will play her first match of the tournament against the wily Lesley Hunt of Australia.

Lloyd, Muniz fight Thursday

LOS ANGELES — World Welterweight contenders Billy Lloyd, no. 10, and Mando Muniz, no 8, will weigh in for the public Thursday morning at 10:30 in the main ring at the Olympic for their 10 rounder later in the evening.

Neither fighter is expected to have any trouble making the 150 pound limit.

Angels try to prevent series sweep by A's

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland A's try to make it a sweep over the California Angels in an afternoon tilt at the Coliseum today.

Jim Hunter stopped the Angels 6-1 Wednesday night to grab his 10th win of the season while Frank Tanana was knocked out in the fourth inning to absorb his 11th setback— highest in the American League.

Both clubs have injury problems. Reggie Jackson stayed out of the Oakland lineup with a pulled back muscle, and Lee Stanton had to leave the Angel lineup after injuring his left ankle and knee sliding into second base in the second inning.

For the second straight game, Sal Bando and Angel Mangual got big hits for the A's. Mangual, taking over for Jackson in the cleanup spot, singled home the first run of the game, and Bando's two-run double snapped a 1-1 tie in the third.

Gene Tenace cracked his ninth home run of the year in the fifth inning and ignited the first fireworks explosion of the season at the Oakland Coliseum. An A's spokesman said the Oakland fire marshal finally gave permission for detonations and that they will continue for the rest of the year —after every A's home run and victory.

Starter in today's series matinee finale were Bill Stoneman, 1-6 for California this year, and Dave Hamilton, 4-1 but winless in June.

Brian Winters signs multi-year Lakers' contract

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Lakers signed their No. 1 draft pick, 6-4, 185-pound guard Brian Winters of South Carolina, to a multi-year contract Tuesday.

Terms of the pact were not released.

In his three varsity seasons at South Carolina, Winters shot 49.9 per cent from the field and 79.8 per cent from the foul line while averaging 13.2 points per game. He averaged 20 points a game last season as the Gamecocks compiled a 22-5 record.

Laker general manager Pete Newell said Winters, the 12th player picked in the 1974 draft, was "the 1974 college crop's best outside shooting guard."

A native of Rockaway, N.Y., Winters said he looks forward to joining Jerry West, Gail Goodrich and Jim Price in the Laker backcourt.

"The only way you become a better player," Winters said, "is to play against the best. I'll have the opportunity here to play everyday with Jerry West and the others. That has to make me a better basketball player."

Mediator not optimistic

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A pro football players' strike loomed all-but-inevitable even in the eyes of a federal mediator who called both sides in for another round of bargaining today.

Mediator James Scearce emerged from a 5½-hour negotiating session with player and owner representatives Tuesday to report: "I can't be overly optimistic even though a mediator is supposed to be optimistic.

"There are tremendous differences between the two sides and they've got to get moving to close the gap."

A player strike has been called for Monday if no settlement is reached.

Bill Curry, president of the NFL Players Association, left little doubt that the second football strike since 1970 would occur just before the NFL teams open training camps in July.

"It looks very much as if it's going to happen," the Houston Oilers' center said after Tuesday's session, charging the owner representatives were "shadow boxing" in the collective bargaining talks. Still untouched were the so-called "freedom issue" demands by the players on reserve and option clause terms of their contracts, which the owners contend would lead to "anarchy."

Curry also accused the owners of trying to "intimidate" rookies and free agents into reporting for pre-season camps and of using them as "pawns" and "strikebreakers."

John Thompson, executive secretary of the owners' Management Council, which is on the other side of the table, tried to sound a more hopeful note.

"We're still shooting for a settlement and are optimistic it can be reached to avoid trouble before it really counts," he told newsmen. This presumably would be prior to July 26 when the College All-Star team plays the Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins in a nationally televised game in Chicago.

"We're not presuming a strike and we don't intend to lock out the players," he commented.

The first strike manifestation would become evident in San Diego where Charger rookies have been summoned to report July 3.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the players' group, already has arranged for NFLPA veterans to man a picket line in San Diego and the association has made a determined effort to persuade rookies and free agents to boycott pre-season camps until a new contract is signed.

Thompson reported that the owners offered the players new pension and insurance benefits which would liberalize payments, but Curry, citing inflationary cost-of-living increases since 1970, termed the proposal "a joke."

The regional champs will go to the AAU Junior Olympic nationals in Peoria, Ill., August 1-3. Last year the team representing the Los Angeles area won the AAU national crown.

Several Pomona boxers will be in action in Saturday's district competition.

Representing the city in the 75-lb. class will be Ricky Samudio. Carlos Perez will box in the 80-lb. class, with Bobby Rizo entered as a 90-lb. contestant.

Danny Samudio, who went to the nationals last year, will try to repeat in the 100-lb. division. Pomona will be represented in the 106-lb. class by Bobby Montoya, with Gilbert Maldonado heading up the 118-lb. division for the locals.

Strike halts Seattle work

SEATTLE (UPI) — A strikelockout in the construction industry Tuesday halted work on the King County domed stadium.

The stadium is about 60 per cent complete with another year's work scheduled before it is finished.

The stadium project was one of about 750 in western and central Washington affected by the dispute involving 45,000 construction workers.

The dispute began Monday as a strike by the laborers' union and selected picketing of eight contractors. Members of the Associated General Contractors, representing employers, in turn, invoked a lockout.

Attempts have been made to obtain a no-strike, no-lockout pact involving the stadium.

Contractors recently began to build the domed roof and that task will take 10 months to complete.

Pekarcik, Votaw earn CIF honors

Only three valley athletes were named to the All-CIF 3-A baseball teams, which were released today by the Citizens Savings Athletic Foundation.

Larry Pekarcik, the Most Valuable Player of the San Antonio League, and Tony Votaw, the Most Valuable Player from the SAL champion Upland team, were two of the three valley players named to the post-season teams.

Both were placed on the second team.

Rowland High's Al Emeterio was a third team selection. The Raider outfielder batted a fierce .480 during the season.

Pekarcik, of Damien High, pitched the Spartans to a tie for second place in league, posting a 12-1 record on the mound while only giving up an average of one run per game during the season.

The Spartan righthander, who was drafted in the 15th round of the June baseball draft by the Kansas City Royals, allowed only nine earned runs in 65 innings this past season, while fanning more than 85 batters.

He not only pitched well, but he also was his team's leading hitter in league play with a .454 batting average.

Votaw set four team hitting records this past season for the Highlanders, who reached the quarterfinals of the CIF 3-A playoffs. The powerful hitting outfielder set a club record for runs batted in during league play with 15 and during the season with 24. He tied with teammate Stu DuVall for most home runs hit during league play (four) and set a record for most homers in a season with six.

Ralph Botting, senior pitcher for coach Bill Kelley's Burbank Bulldogs, has been acclaimed the Player of the Year in 3-A competition.

Botting, a member of last year's 3-A All-Stars, compiled a remarkable mound record at Burbank over three varsity seasons.

In those three years, the Bulldog ace won 34 games while losing only eight. This past season he was 8-0 in Foothill League play and had a 3-1 playoff record. In the semifinal game against eventual 3-A division champion Lompoc, Botting was charged with one of his season losses on three unearned runs. Prior to the semifinals, Botting had bested San Gabriel (8-3), Leuzinger (2-1) and Cabrillo (4-3).

Overall in 1974, Ralph was 12-2 with a 0.96 earned run average. He struck out 151 in 94 2-3rds innings, batted cleanup and led his team in RBI's. He batted .400 in league play, .353 for the season.

San Antonio joins NASL

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The North American Soccer League said Tuesday it would add a franchise in San Antonio next season, expanding to 17 teams.

Commissioner Phil Woosnam, winding up a league meeting, said the San Antonio franchise had been awarded to a group of businessmen in that Texas city headed by H. Ward Lay, a construction executive.

The NASL, which operated with 15 teams this year, awarded a franchise last week to Tampa.

With 17 teams the league will be back at the strength it was in 1968. Twelve of those cities dropped out that year and the NASL has built itself back up from five franchises in 1969.

CIF counting on Porter

By looking at the overall height and the average in the scoring department, the CIF, Southern Section High School All-Star basketball team should have a slight advantage over the City All-Stars in the Southern California Coaches Basketball Classic on July 10 at Cal State Fullerton.

The only valley player who will be competing for the CIF team will be Ganesha's Cleve Porter, the valley's athlete of the year for 1974.

And CIF coach Ed Goorjian is counting on Porter and CIF's Co-Player of the Year in 3-A, Mike Santos of Morningside.

"They'll really have to do a job on the boards," Goorjian said of Porter and Santos, who stands at 6-foot-7 as compared to Porter at 6-foot-6. "We're not big."

But according to the statistics, the CIF has a slight advantage over the City team. If you count all 14 members of the rosters, the CIF averages slightly over 6-foot-4, while the City is slightly under that figure. And the combined scoring average for both teams has the CIF leading with a 22.4 average—paced by Troy High's Mark Wulfemeyer's 36.5 output—while the City averages 20.3 per individual.

Both coaches, Willie West for the City and Goorjian, have indicated that they'll retain their 14-man roster until almost the eve of the game. Two alternates will then be named, with 12 players in uniform for each team at game time.

Four 4-A first team selections and two first team 3-A picks are on the Southern California team, while the City will be paced by almost every player who was named All-City this past season, including City Player of the Year Ivory Ward of Fremont High.

The City has won three of the previous four confrontations with the CIF.

The tipoff is scheduled for 8 p.m. in Cal State Fullerton's 4,000 seat gymnasium.

Tickets are now on presale for the lower level at $2.50 at the Anaheim Convention Center and from many Southland prep coaches. Tickets at the gate will cost $3. Upper level tickets will be sold game night for $2.

La Verne wastes chances to score

FULLERTON — La Verne Post 330 couldn't come up with the big hit here Tuesday evening in suffering a 3-0 loss to host Fullerton in a non-district American Legion game.

La Verne had runners on third base three times but failed to score against Fullerton pitchers Peter Chapin and Mark Wulfemeyer.

Losing pitcher Richard Ortega hurled the distance for La Verne. He also led Post 330 at the plate with two hits in three at-bats.

Chapin doubled in the second inning to account for Fullerton's first run of the game.

La Verne, now 18-10, will play the Walnut Thorobreds in a 5:30 p.m. game Thursday at Mt. San Antonio College.

Tuesday night's game between Ontario and Pomona Post 30 at Welch Park was cancelled.

Ken Norton's victory moves him up ladder

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Ken Norton took a step toward another shot at the world's heavyweight crown Tuesday night when he pummelled 10th-ranked Boone Kirkman to the mat to win an eighth-round technical knockout.

Norton, ranked fifth among the challengers to the crown, had it all his way after the first round, but he didn't open up until the seventh. When he did, Kirkman stood helpless against the ropes until Norton backed off for a moment. Then Kirkman went down with a crash.

Referee Pat McMurtry took one look at the Renton, Wash., bartender and signaled finis. The books will show that Norton, at 218½, won an eighth-round TKO because Kirkman failed to answer the bell for that round.

Kirkman had pinned a lot of hopes on this fight. The 29-year-old veteran figured if he could get past Norton, 28, he might get another shot at champion George Foreman. Now, Norton figures he might get a chance to take on the champ. Foreman has beaten both Kirkman and Norton.

Kirkman, who weighed 212, went in aggressively at the opening bell and won that round on most cards. But from then on it was Norton all the way under the 10-point must system. Norton just stood back and flipped his left at the bull-like rushes of Kirkman. And when they got in close, Norton put his left uppercut to work.

Sports news in brief

CRAIG STADLER, the USC senior, leads the state amateur golf tournament at Pebble Beach with a 146. Stadler had a 73 Tuesday. Closest to him are 1973 champion Mike Brannan of Salinas and veteran Dick Runkle of Los Angeles, last year's runner-up, each with 149.

AL BIANCHI Tuesday signed a three-year contract to continue coaching the ABA Virginia Squires. Bianchi will work under new owners and begin a job of rebuilding the shattered team.

LEROY KELLY of the Cleveland Browns has been placed on waivers. Several other clubs have expressed interest in the veteran running back. Kelly, 34, has played with the Browns since he was drafted eighth in 1964. Last year he averaged only 2.9 yards per carry but caught 15 passes for 180 yards, a 12-yard average.

JUAN MARICHAL, the ailing Boston Red Sox pitcher, has shown sufficient improvement and apparently will not need surgery on his back. A neurological surgeon said Tuesday that Marichal may be able to pitch again this year.

SPARKY ANDERSON, Cincinnati Reds manager, entered a Cincinnati hospital Tuesday night for examination and treatment of a chronic stiff neck and back.

Halftime of football classic

Shriners offer skydiving

PASADENA — An eight-member skydiving team will kick-off the halftime show at the 23rd annual Shrine All-Star Football Classic on July 27 by jumping into the Rose Bowl.

The charity game, whose entire proceeds go to the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children in Los Angeles, will feature 56 of Southern California's finest pre-college football players. Kickoff time for the contest, which has produced 27 All-Americans and three Heisman Trophy winners, is scheduled for 7 p.m.

The Rumbleseat Parachute Team, a Southern Californa-based squad, will dedicate their halftime jump to Bill Parsons, the team leader, who was injured seriously in a dive in Nevada in May. Parsons, 39, is still in a coma at Long Beach Veterans Hospital.

Jumping from 7,500 feet, a three-man team of Dick Johnson, Bonnie Cameron and Lyle Cameron will dive carrying American and Shrine flags and will free dive 5,000 feet and land on the Rose Bowl 50 yard line.

This will be followed by a quintet of Bill Plye, Jim Ackerman, Ron Durham, Alex Pena and Frank Carpenter, who will form a star.

Members of the International Freefall Association, Bonnie Carmeron won the 1969 World Accuracy Championship and has jumped in international competition in Europe and South America. Another Rumbleseat member, Bob Loughbom, will narrate the jumps.

The game sponsored by the Al Malaikah Shrine Temple, helps support the $1 million raised annually for the Los Angeles Shrine Hospital, which has 1,400 needy crippled children currently under treatment.

Tickets for the game, priced between $2.10 and $5.15, can be obtained locally by contacting Frank Zwisler at home at 621-2557 or at work 985-1933.

Persons interested may also obtain tickets from the Shrine Football Office located at 655 W. Jefferson Blvd., Los Angeles (749-0166) or at 801 Elm Ave., Long Beach (432-3407).

Stanford names grid assistants

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Willie Shaw and Doug Single have been named assistants on the Stanford football team, head coach Jack Christensen announced Tuesday.

Shaw, 30, who played at New Mexico and coached at San Diego City College, will handle the special teams for the Cardinals.

Top finishers from Cal 100 compete at SGV Speedway

IRWINDALE — The stars of Southern California NASCAR sportsman stock car racing return to the San Gabriel Valley Speedway in Irwindale this Friday night with two of the top finishers in the recent "California 100" race signed to compete.

Four-time San Gabriel Valley Speedway champion, Ivan Baldwin of Highland, and veteran driver, Ray Johnstone of San Bernardino, finished the Riverside Raceway event in second and third places.

Baldwin, driving a 1966 Chevelle, came up from 25th starting slot to challenge winner, Hershel McGriff of Portland, Oregon all the way home, but a bad clutch left him in high gear in the closing laps ending his chances of victory.

Going into June, Baldwin had scored two main event victories on the demanding San Gabriel half-mile and was leading in points while Johnstone had failed to score, but had a second place finish to his credit in the fast action.

Some 60 NASCAR stars are expected for the competition on the 4900 Rivergrade Road oval Friday night starting at 7:30 p.m. with time trials set for 6:30.

The hobby division, mini-stocks and modifieds will join the sportsman drivers in the 12 event speedfest.

OCIR hosts unique 'Nitro-Jam'

IRVINE — The addition of live rock 'n roll music to the seventh annual Nitro Championships has prompted Orange County International Raceway to rename the summer classis "California Nitro Jam." Scheduled for next Saturday, the popular event retains a proven cast of 16 dragsters and 18 funny cars — all burning large percentages of "nitromethane" — along with the traditional aerial fireworks display.

But new this year is a between-round music show headlined by Flash Cadillac and the Continental Kids. Nationally famous for their contemporary treatment of rock 'n roll hits from the Fifties and Sixties, the Epic recording artists will perform from a sound stage now under construction beside the racing surface. General Manager Blaine Laux has also signed a second, rock-country band to a show designed to provide more than three hours of continuous entertainment, beginning at 7 p.m.

This continuity is difficult to achieve during drag race events because, explains Laux, "These cars need at least 40 minutes' cooling time after every run. We've been looking for some form of entertainment to fill in the gaps, and rock music is a natural with our audience and this particular facility."

The six-man band has been hailed as one of the best visual attractions on today's music scene. Dressed in bowling shirts and rolled-up jeans or leather jackets and tennis shoes, their onstage antics unclude "the splits" and leaps upon each other's shoulders. The group has achieved nationwide notoriety through a pair of albums for Epic Records and a 1973 appearance as "Herbie and the Heartbeats" in Francis Ford Coppola's much-acclaimed "American Graffitti"; for which they wrote and performed the movie's only original music.

Their two scheduled sets are sandwiched between the racing performances of dragster superstars like Jim Dunn (La Mirada), Sush Matsubara (LA), Frank Bradley (Napa), Larry Dixon (North Hollywood) and defending Funny Car champion Bob Pickett (Van Nuys). In all, over 60 Top Fuel and Funny Car entrants will battle for qualifying positions beginning at 12 noon on June 29. The quickest 16 in each division will return at 7 p.m. for the first of four elimination rounds. Fireworks will accompany Flash Cadillac's opening set at 8:30 p.m.

All tickets to the "California Nito Jam" are discounted $1 if purchased in advance from any Ticketron or Liberty ticket agency.

Upland High on entry list for motocross

CORONA — Over 150 riders will be on hand this Friday night at Corona Raceway in the first annual Inland Empire High School Motocross Championship, beginning at 7 p.m.

The eight top high school motocross teams in the Riverside and San Bernardino Counties will be ccompeting on 1.1 mile course inside the half-mile stadium of Corona Raceway.

The eight teams include North, the winner of two high school motocrosses this season, Rubidoux, Ramona, Bloomington, Redlands, La Sierra, Riverside Poly, and Upland.

These eight teams were slected by finishing in the top two places in separate motocrosses during the months of May and June.

Many of the top riders in Southern California will be ccompeting this Friday at Corona, such as Rubidoux's Dave Williams, Steve Bauer of Ramona, North's Kevin Callaway, La Sierra's Charlie Guinn and Pat Killilea, Kim Palmer of Redlands, and Bloomington's Greg Byers.

Other top riders include Kelly Callaway, Jim Cupp, and Lee Rosenberry (North), Russ Hadley and Tom Baltazar (Rubidoux), Blake Bunnell and Dave Kelley (Riverside Poly), Bruce Willeams and Dennis Sewell (Redlands), and Ray Obermeyer of Ramona.

The battle of the evening should be between Williams of Rubidoux and Bauer of Ramona, as each rider is one of the top 125cc experts in the SoCal area.

General admission will be $2.50 with students $1.50 and children (8-12) just 50 cents. Practice begins at 6 p.m. with the first race at 7 p.m.

Carabello wins

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Jose Carabello, 141, Hartford gained an easy decision over Beau Jaynes, 148, Lowell, Mass., in an eight round feature event Tuesday night.

Southland racing

IRWINDALE — Mike Bast and Bill Cody, two of the hottest Speedway motorcycle riders around these days, have seen their torrid pace catch up with them of late.

Both will be back in action Thursday night at Irwindale Raceway tuning up rebuilt bikes for their coming invasion of Europe in quest of the one starting spot allocated Americans in this summer's World Championships.

SAUGUS — General Manager and Speedway Promoter, Marshall Wilkings has scheduled a Giant Figure 8 Open Competition race for Saugus Speedway Saturday night. Three 25-lap main events each paying $400 to win with a total purse of over $3000 guaranteed.

VALENCIA — Professional speedway racing for the lightweight, alcohol-burning motorcycles rockets onto the new one-sixth mile clay oval Saturday at Indian Dunes Park near Saugus.

Initiating a season of Saturday night events, a large turnout of riders, under sanction of Speedway Racing Assn., is expected to be ready for the close action when the first heat zips from the starting line at 8 p.m.

SAN BERNARDINO — With his first victory now history young Don Harkey of Highland will be out to score another win in this Saturday night's NASCAR stock car racing competition at Orange Show Speedway in San Bernardino.

The racing program will get underway at 7:30 p.m. on the fast South "E" Street racing oval with 17 events of sportsman and hobby division competition scheduled.

IRWINDALE — Three former winners will challenge the leaders in claimer stock car racing competition at San Gabriel Valley Speedway in Irwindale Saturday night.

The program of speed will take the starter's flag at 7:30 p.m. with trophy dashes, heat races and main events for claimer stock cars running on the quarter-mile oval. Figure eight racing tops the evening.

The challenging trio, Bill Swailes of Covina; Ray Kelly, West Covina and Gary Ebeling of Ontario, will challenge point leader, Bill Harry of Covina in the 25 lap oval track main event.

CORONA — Over 300 mini bike riders will be competing this weekend in the California State Mini Bike championship at Corona Raceway beginning at 9 a.m. each day.

This year's event will be the second annual, as last year the championship was held at Saddleback Park and was a big success. The officials of the championship felt that Corona Raceway would be an excellent facility for their annual event, as the riders would then have to compete on all three motorcycle courses (Flat Track, T.T. Steeplechase, and Motocross).

GARDENA — The return of the American Motorcycle Association's touring riders, a sprint-car "Firecracker 50," and two events ccomplete with fireworks will combine to give Ascot Park a comprehensive holiday program spread over 10 days.

Not only will riders like Dave Aldana of Santa Ana be back in the West to compete in the $55,000 AMA summer series on the half-mile this Friday night and next, but the Southern California Side Hack Association will share billing with them for special TT races.

On Saturday night the California Racing Association sprint cars stage their annual 50-lap "Firecracker 50" for a $3,000 purse. They will return for another show, Saturday, July 6.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — "For the first time in the last year and a half some signs have started to appear that we are within three to six months of a long-term market bottom," says Rosenkrantz, Ehrenkrantz, Lyon & Ross Inc. It cites evidence based on indicators of major bear market bottoms in the past: the topping of commodity prices, the jump in short term interest rates pressing a bottom within one year after they near long-term rates, and the fact we are at the brink of a recession when bottoms have usually occurred. "The bear market, at worst, appears 70 to 75 per cent over," it adds, "with a slightly better than breakeven possibility of one more intermediate term leg down in the third or fourth quarter of 1974."

"A few key long-term indicators —which usually set the stage for bull moves rather than actually rising the curtain —still look promising," according to Indicator Digest of Palisades Park, N.J. But it urges investors to be cautious and wait until the market has clearly reversed itself.

Classic study of 2,500 persons

Doctors take 1st close look at eye problems of elderly

BOSTON (UPI) — A team of doctors is examining 2,500 people in nearby Framingham, Mass., in the first major search for factors leading to four of the most common causes of impaired eyesight among the elderly.

The unique research project is taking advantage of a treasure of medical data recorded on 5,000 Framingham residents during the past 5 years in a classic study that helped pinpoint some of the contributing factors of heart disease.

The four year study, financed by the National Eye Institute, is seeking any relationships between the vast medical measurements made in heart research and eye disorders that have developed among people examined in the heart study.

Cholesterol

"For example, we can try and see whether high cholesterol in the blood has anything to do with senile macular degeneration," said Dr. Mohandas M. Kini, a Boston University Medical Center ophthalmologist directing the project. Macular degreneration is the deterioration of the part of the retina that controls sharp vision. It is a major uncurable problem for those over 65.

The other eye diseases under investigation are senile cataracts, which Kini said probably are the major cause of visual difficulty, glaucoma and diabetic retinopaathy, a disorder of the blood vessels in the retina which occurs as a complication of diabetes.

First research

Kini said there have been no similar large-scale eye research projects, primarily because there have been no selected populations which have been carefully followed for such a long time.

"This is the beginning of the beginning," he said in an interview. "Even negative evidence would be of value." That would narrow the search for the causes of these eye disorders.

Of the 5,000 original heart study participants, about 4,000 are still alive. Kini estimated 2,500 to 3,000 will take part in the eye study. Each is being examined without charge at a special eye clinic in Framingham.

The tests began last year and the participants then ranged in age from 55 to 82 —the ages when most of the eye problems would be expected to develop. About 1,700 people have been examined so far and the initial results should be available in a year or two, Kini said.

Three problems

He said, however, that three very serious problems already have been detected and corrected. In one case, a building contractor already blind in one eye was found to have a detached retina seriously threatening his other eye. An operation corrected the problem.

The other two cases involved acute glaucoma, a rare form of glaucoma which can cause blindness quickly if not treated. One victim was Manuel Burnham, a 58-year-old school custodian who had no idea of his problem. It was discovered during a routine examination at the eye clinic and doctors said he could have lost his eyesight within days.

"It's scary," he said. "I could have gone to sleep one night thinking nothing was wrong and woke up the next morning blind."

5 surviving Stanek tots 'spoiled'

By PETER M. KELLY

DENVER (UPI) — Ten-month-old Stephen Stanek stood up the other day and discovered that he didn't know how to sit back down.

His three brothers and sister were no help. Jeffrey, John and Catherine were down on the throw rug working on their crawls —an art that Nathan still was thinking over.

Stephen, now the heavyweight of the five survivors of the sextuplets born last September to the wife of a suburban Denver accountant, made it down to the rug finally with the help of a neighbor who was babysitting.

Best eater

"Stephen is considered the best eater because he is so much bigger than the rest," said Mrs. Beth Sarriugarte, the Staneks' next door neighbor. "He's over 16 pounds now. Nathan is the lightest. He is about 11 pounds.

"They don't act alike, look alike or even have the same personalities," said Mrs. Sarriugarte. "They aren't identical and they have individual characteristics. They are just like five different babies that are the same age."

Like all members of the diaper set, the Stanek children are good-natured as long as they get what they want, she said.

"They're all spoiled," said Mrs. Sarriugarte, "believe it or not. We have to do what they want."

Enough food

Afew days ago, Mrs. Sarriugarte was feeding Nathan cereal when he decided he'd had enough.

"I guess he just decided he wasn't going to eat his food," she said. "He stuck his tongue out at me. I couldn't outfox him. He makes you do what he wants you to do."

The children, who learned to crawl in a modest three-bedroom home in suburban Lakewood just outside Denver, will learn to walk on new turf. Their father, Eugene, bought a larger home in south Denver to accommodate the five infants and their older brother, Greg, 5.

Mrs. Sarriugarte and other neighbors on Kendall Avenue helped with the move but their hearts weren't in it.

"We really hated to see them go," said Mrs. Sarriugarte.

"But it's easy to understand the reason for the move. They need more room. They only had three bedrooms and a half basement that would have been fine for two children.

"But there are a lot more than two children now."

Fertility drugs

Edna Stanek, 35, who took fertility drugs before pregnancy, gave birth to John, the eldest of the sextuplets in terms of minutes, a short time after midnight last Sept. 17. The remaining five children were born within four minutes, all by Caesarian section, less than an hour later.

Mrs. Stanek underwent injections of the drug Pergonal when fertility pills didn't work. Three months before the sextuplets were born.

Expert's study deals blow to women libbers

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The male and female anatomies apparently differ in more than one way, despite the protests of women liberationists.

An expert in ergonomics — the study of work capacity of muscles — said here that women are physically less capable than men to handle some industrial jobs.

Steven Snook, project director in ergonomics for Liberty Mutual Insurance Co., Hopkinton, Mass., said studies of maximum weights and workloads acceptable to factory workers showed "statistically significant differences between men and women in their ability to perform manual handling tasks."

However, he said, in "walking and seven-foot sustained pulling tasks" women factory workers equalled their male counterparts.

"Caution is advised to insure that these results are not used for discriminatory purposes," he added.

The tests, which compared 15 male and female workers to 16 housewives were designed to learn of "sex differences demonstrated with traditional laboratory tests would occur with actual manual handling tasks in industry."

He said men outperformed women in most tests and that "housewives were able to handle significantly less weight and workload" than either male or female industrial workers.

Snook's remarks came in an address to the Professional Development conference of the American Society of Safety Engineers.

Oahu saves 1-man rescue operation

HONOLULU (UPI) — A voluntary one-man rescue operation credited with saving hundreds of lives has been rescued from financial disaster by a grateful state.

For decades Edwin "Buddy" Adolphson has been a familiar figure whenever there was disaster in the remote, mountainous terrain or giant surf of the island of Oahu's north shore.

The 57-year-old Adolphson, bearing hope and comfort in his old Jeep, has become an island legend in his own time.

In the 30 years that Adolphson has been patrolling the north shore first as a policeman and now as a volunteer, he has saved hundreds of surfers and swimmers, rescued countless stranded hikers and snuffed out dozens of fires.

Risking his life has become a way of life for Adolphson, who started rescuing when he was a teenager on a surfboard and saw his friends in trouble.

Swimming out among sharks and huge surf to rescue a bather, keeping the victim afloat until a helicopter arrives, hanging on to sharp ledges in search of a missing hiker and singeing his clothing in a fire are all part of a day's work for Adolphson.

"I have been so close to death so many times," he said. "But when I raised my hand to take the policeman's oath back in 1939, I meant what I said.

"I promised to protect life and property, but no one ever told me where to draw the line."

So Adolphson, armed with a uniform, gun and radio in Oahu's rural north shore communities, started spending his own money for rescue equipment to become a search and rescue operation in addition to his crime fighting activities.

Since the area he was assigned to spanned many miles of beaches and mountainous, jungle-like terrain, Adolphson decided the best way to carry out his self-appointed mission was by being mobile.

Adolphson estimates he spent more than $25,000 on his first Jeep, which eventually collapsed, and then a second one into a helf-contained life-saving unit.

"The vehicle carries four floodlights, an engine mounted generator, chain saw, megaphone, winch, flares, rope, fresh water, resuscitator, and coffee maker," Adolphson said.

"I'm equipped to monitor police, fire department, Coast Guard and citizens band radio networks. I also carry a stretcher and a motorized surf board."

Adolphson went deeply into debt to buy equipment and keep it in repair. The high cost of saving lives was way ahead of his policeman's retirement salary. Adolphson borrowed against his house and his car. But the one-man, volunteer, doit-yourself search-and-rescue mission was grounded.

For a month the Jeep that had become such a welcome sight to islanders in distress sat in a garage with the body coming apart and the doors falling off.

Word of Adolphson's plight spread from the local citizenry of the north shore who worried about letting their children surf when Adolphson wasn't around all the way to the halls of the state legislature.

When lawmakers learned how Adolphson had gone into debt and never asked a penny in return, they chipped in and came up with $520. Then donations started pouring in from grateful citizens, many of whom were saved by Adolphson.

"Oahu wake up," wrote one man along with his check. "The next person Buddy saves might be you. Or God forbid, me!"

More than $2,000 was raised, enough to put Buddy and his Jeep back on the road again. With this vote of confidence behind him, Adolphson is more determined than ever to keep the north shore safe.

Women at new low; 2 train as coal miners

PAWNEE, Ill. (UPI) — Annette Brantley and Jeannette Beemen are in training to go underground — as coal miners.

They went on the payroll this week at Peabody Coal Co. Pawnee No. 10 mine at $42 a day, and the company says so far as is known they are the first female coal miners in Illinois.

No. 10, located south of Springfield, is known as the largest underground coal mine in the world. Some miners are already grumbling that the pit, employing 872 persons, will nver be the same.

"Some of the men frankly don't like it," said D. C. Hall, Peabody senior vice president in charge of operations, "But the federal government says women must have equal opportunity and the law is the law."

Hall is hoping for the best. "I think that statistics show that women are safer drivers.

"Two that we have employed have quit," said Hall. "I think some of them will be surprised at the work they will have to do."

Diver finds it all, even the kitchen sink

GREELEY, Colo. (UPI) — Richard A. Slater could open a pawn shop with the litter he finds while swimming.

The oceanographer has spotted two airplanes, trucks, cars and even a kitchen sink.

"I found the kitchen sink about 400 feet off San Diego,' he said. "It was just a regular old kitchen sink out of somebody's house with a faucet and water taps."

Slater is an assistant professor of oceanography at the University of Northern Colorado in Greeley, located more than a thousand miles from either the Atlantic or Pacific oceans.

But he has made more than 350 dives in submersible crafts and has dived a thousand times with scuba gear.

There's a tremendous amount of stuff on the bottom of the ocean," he said. "Whenever I dive beneath the areas worked by Japanese fishing boats, I always find a lot of rubber shower shoes.

"And beer cans are classics. Anywhere you have fishermen, you are going to have beer cans. There are beer cans as deep as a thousand feet in every body of water I've dived. And I've found them (in lakes) 13,000 feet high in the Colorado Rockies."

Slater said he found the two airplanes off the California coast. He said one appeared to be a Japanese Zero of World War II vintage but the wreckage was in such bad shape that confirmation was impossible.

The second plane was "one of those World War II Navy Hellcat fighter planes in perfect condition. It had been ditched by its pilot and they brought it up. The machine gun was taken out and still worked."

He plans to sign on this summer for a federally sponsored search off the coast of New England for deep water lobster. Slater said shallow water lobster enjoyed in restaurants were nearly fished out in the area.

Slater said litter in the ocean is not especially harmful to sea animals and often serves as habitates for fish.

"I found a truck once in deep water with all its tires on that was inhabitated by thousands of crabs," he said. "An octopus likes rubber tires for some reason. They hide inside the tires."

Japanese top list of Philippine tourists

MANILA (UPI) — Japanese topped the list of tourists who visited the Philippines in the first five months of the year, the Department of Tourism said.

A spokesman said 56,288 Japanese came during the five-month period beginning January. The figure was almost four times last year's 17,281 during the same period, he said.

Overall, the spokesman said, 150,000 tourists visited the Philippines as of the end of May, double last year's figure for the same period.

Home sealed with woman crying inside

SHEFFIELD, England (UPI) — Workmen hammering doors and windows shut drowned out the cries of Katherine Godfrey inside her home.

When the workmen went away after boarding up the doors and windows with heavy timbers, they left the crippled Mrs. Godfrey, 75, in almost total darkness and with no way out.

Officials said she could have died there. But by chance, a relative arrived three hours later and rescued the widow.

The workmen had turned her home into a tomb by mistake, the Sheffield Council said. They were ordered to seal up houses being readied for demolition— and had been given the wrong address.

'A hand will be severed'

Golda Meir recently intoned a public warning that the hand of the terrorist would be severed. A chilling threat, most particularly to the Arabs, I think. Over many generations, the penalty for stealing in Saudi Arabia and elsewhere thereabouts was the loss of a hand at the wrist.

CONSIDER land-bound living things. How far they travel depends on how much they weigh. By land-bound, I mean to exclude flying insects, birds and fishes. This leaves everything from ants to elephants. Man long ago became the great exception with his horse, car, train and plane. But ordinarily in natural life, the heavier the critter, the more widely said critter roams. A scholar told me that.

NEW FOODS

Some food researchers claim that half the grub you'll eat 10 years from now hasn't even been invented yet. They allude to even more dehydrates, concentrates, protein substitutes.

YOUNG LADY, do you spend more than $50 a year on soap, makeup, cold cream, whatnot, for the maintenance of your face? If so, you're just average in that matter, too.

IN SINKING CAR

There's a squad of municipal policemen in Amsterdam called the Canal Fishermen. They pull about 50 cars a year out of the water there. They're said to know more than any other experts on earth about how to survive in a sinking automobile. Their advice: Kep th car windows closed. And wait, wait, wait until the water stops rising in the car. Then open a window to swim free.

West's play case of honor

By Oswald & James Jacoby

One of the general rules of play that everyone is taught is "Cover an honor with an honor."

Like all general rules you will do better if you follow it every time rather than never follow it. But you will do best if you learn when to follow it and when not to.

South wins the first club, or ducks and wins the continuation. It doesn't matter much. He has to lose two clubs and one diamond and success or failure depends on whether or not he loses a trump trick.

Opening lead—♣K

With eleven trumps the correct per centage play is to try to drop the king. It will work exactly 52 per cent of the time. So, all else being equal the expert will play for the drop.

However, all else doesn't have to be equal. Any good player will lead the jack of spades. If West has been taught to cover an honor with an honor on each and every occasion he will clatter up with the king and south will make his contract anyway.

If West sees that this is not the time to cover (it isn't) but goes into a huddle before ducking, South will finesse in the theory that West's huddle meant that he was thinking of covering.

However, if West just plays his six spot unconcernedly. South should rise with dummy's ace. After all, that is a 52 per cent chance. East will show out and another contract will bite the dust.

Rape law for estranged wife defeated in Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill subjecting a husband to rape penalties if he forces intercourse with his estranged wife was rejected Monday by the Assembly after opponents contended it could worsen marital conflicts.

The measure (AB4173) by Assemblyman Ken Meade, D-Berkeley, was defeated Monday on a 11-45 vote.

Meade said current law—which exempts married couples from rape laws—was "archaic and unrealistic." He said his measure was fashioned after the philosophy that "a woman has an absolute control over her body."

Assemblywoman Pauline Davie, D-Portola, one of the two women in the legislature, asked rhetorically: "Are you saying that if a woman says 'no' she can't hold her own?"

Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles, opposed the bill because it would also apply when the couple decided to live separately. He said it should not apply until the couple took some legal action to end their marriage.

Result of diet may be increased muscle

By Dr. Frank Miller

DEAR DR. MILLER: Snowball, my Samoyed, has been on a low-calorie diet and believe me, I've been counting her calories for two months now. As per her doctor's instructions, I've been gradually increasing her exercise so she's now running several miles a day on the bike trail behind my bicycle. I'm very discouraged because even though she looks better, she weighs the same as she used to, after all this work and effort on her part and mine! Why? — J. V.

Dear J. V.: If she looks better, you shouldn't be too discouraged. It's very possible she has actually burned up a lot of fat along the way and replaced it with muscle. Muscle weighs more than fat so she could lose fat, look better and still actually weight the same because of increase in muscle size. (Without heavy exercise and a genuine dieting effort, this fat-for-muscle switch does not occur.)

DEAR DR. MILLER: Pinky's had her first litter and I want to give them away before we become too attached to them. So at what age do young mice eat and drink on their own? — V. T.

Dear V. T.: At two weeks of age young mice will begin eating and drinking on their own, although they can't eat hard pellets until they're 18 to 20 days old. They may be weaned as early as 16 days, though giving them the boot this early might set them back slightly, so that they may never completely gain normal weight. To wait 18 days is better.

That extra 48 hours enables them to handle the switch nicely and they can be completely weaned and on their own without any setback. Pinky would probably prefer her kids to be out on their own by 21 days. If they're going to loiter around home much longer than that, consider moving them out of Pinky's quarters.

South Korea hotel to be replaced

SEOUL (UPI) — The Bando Hotel, once the largest hotel in South Korea, was closed down June 20, ending 37 years of operation.

Built and opened by the Japanese in 1937, the Bando served as headquarters of U.S. occupation forces at the end of World War II, the U.S. Embassy before the Korean War of 1950, and the main center of domestic politics in the 1960s.

The eight-floor hotel will be torn down later this year and replaced by a 44-floor, 1,000-room hotel to open in July, 1977. The new hotel will be called the Lotte Hotel and is to be built by a Korean

Girl, 15, has sex question

By JEAN ADAMS

SE: (Q.) I have been taught that sexual intercourse is for reproduction only and should be practiced for that purpose only. Have I been taught right? — Girl, 15, in Texas.

(A.) No. Sexual intercourse has a number of purposes, rewards and values besides reproduction.

Your school counselor, your family doctor, and any religious leaders in your life should be helpful in explaining worthwhile aspects of sex that you'll need to know about and understand as you mature into womanhood.

FRIENDS: (Q.) When I met Terry I thought I had found the friend I was looking for. I was wrong.

Terry has another friend who is just about my age. I am jealous of him because I know Terry favors him more than me.

I believe two friends should do things some time by themselves and alone, like go over to someone's house and throw a baseball around.

I don't think Terry can do that with me. I don't think he cares enough. — Nobody in New Jersey.

(A.) It is good to be alone with a friend on occasion, but you must not be selfish about Terry's other friends. It is healthy to have more than one friend, and if you will accept this fact you can keep Terry as a friend and maybe make friends of his other friends too.

And you are not a nobody. Nobody is a nobody.

Facts about pots

Teapots tend to be low and wide because tea leaves rise and expand in hot water. Coffee grounds, on the other hand, tend to sink to the bottom of the pot, leaving the pure clean brew at the top; thus coffee pots are generally tall and narrow.

Beetle creating havoc in ponderosa forests

DENVER (UPI) — A small black insect only a fraction of an inch long is creating havoc in the ponderosa pine along Colorado's Eastern Slopes and the Black Hills area of South Dakota and Wyoming.

George Downing, branch chief for forest pest control in the U.S. Forest Service, estimates that more than one million trees have fallen victim to the mountain pine beetle in the past three years.

The Forest Service and forestry people from the infested states are taking all possible steps to halt the infestation, which Downing describes as the worst he has ever seen.

"I don't know how it would compare with some of the outbreaks they had 20 or 30 years ago' but it's as bad as anything I've seen in recent years," Downing said.

"We've got probably a gross land area involved cf maybe a million acres along the front range involved here," Downing said. "It extends all the way from Colorado Springs to the Wyoming border. It encompasses about two-thirds of the ponderosa pine along there.

"Up in the Black Hills, we're saying 440,000 infested trees this year there," he said. "At least that many and perhaps more. In the Black Hills, it's over a gross land area of more than a million acres also."

The beetle, only about three-sixteenths of an inch long, does its damage by flying on the tree bark, boring into the tree and planting its eggs between the bark and the sap.

When the eggs hatch, the tiny larvae then feast on the tree until they too become adults and move out to lay their eggs in other trees.

"They attack kind of en masse all at one time," Downing said. "Usually the attacks are complete within a couple of days on a given tree. For all practical purposes, that tree is dead. But one of the things that fool a lot of people is that the trees, even after they've been attacked, will remain green for as long as a year."

Downing said conditons have been ideal for the beetles over the past three years.

The weather has been favorable for the beetle population, and trees have been allowed grow in a dense condition over much of the area, making them more susceptible to attack.

"If nature were left to run its course, you would have periodic fires sweeping through the country, and this would knock the beetle population down, Douglas said. "Also, it would mean that you would get new stands of trees following the fires.

Better Managing Needed

"Of course, we wouldn't want that now. We manage by keeping fires under control. But at the same time, we have not been managing these areas the way we should to keep the beetles under control."

Downing said the Forest Service was trying to retrieve some value from the infected trees by having them logged.

"On the other hand, we're not always able to do that," he said. "Many of the trees are more scattered or they're relatively inaccessible."

In the South Dakota-Wyoming area, the Forest Service has been harvesting by logging, hauling out the dead trees with helicopters and in some cases treating infected areas with chemicals.

"Along Colorado's Front Range, we have fewer opportunities to haul the trees out and log them," Downing said. "The main control work is by use of chemicals."

Downingsaid there were two methods for controlling the beetle before the infestation begins, inclading use of a chemical spray which still is being tested.

"And that would be a protective spray for high value trees, not the whole forest," he said. "That would be impractical and undesirable probably, too. But if you have high value trees, one approach is to spray them and we have two or ttree compounds ttat oar researchers have been working on."

Downing said the other approach —and the one that most likely will be used over large areas —is to thin out the trees in dense forest stands.

"If you space the trees out, thin them, the trees then grow in a more vigorous condition a d the beetles will not build up in those stands," he said. "The idea then is to get all of the forests under management as rapidly as possible. If you don't impose any kind of management out there, they just grow up and stagnate over the years."

Automation speeds sale of tobacco

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Summertime for a North Carolina farm boy used to mean hours in a musty tobacco barn, waiting in the stifling August heat while his father's sheets of flue-cured tobacco were sold.

Under an automated auction system being put into commercial use for the first time in the state in July, the time from the back of the truck to the issuance of a sales check has been cut to as little as 30 minutes.

Under development since 1966, the system was designed by Albert Graves, a U.S. Department of Agriculture industrial engineer attached to North Carolina State University.

Through a combination of motor-and gravity-driven conveyor belts, tobacco is taken from the truck, run through weighing scales and past federal graders, and then on by an auctioneer who controls the speed of the belt.

Once past the auctioneer, the tobacco moves to the final portion of the belt, where firms pick up their purchases.

Tobacco officials say everyone wins with the system. The buyers get fresher tobacco. The farmer gets in and out of the warehouse faster. And the warehouseman handles more tobacco during a sales season.

"The tobacco moves past the people instead of the people past the tobacco," said Graves in a recent interview.

The system costs about $100,000, and is custom-designed by Graves for each warehouse installing it. All the machinery is purchased from commercial suppliers.

The Five Points Warehouse at Fuquay-Varina, N.C., 15 miles southeast of Raleigh, will be the first warehouse in the nation to use the complete system. At least five others, including ones at Rocky Mount, N.C., and Lake City, Fla., have expressed interest in acquiring it.

Farmers designating their tobacco for sale at the Five Points Warehouse under the new program, which requires designation to qualify for federal crop support payments, will be told when to arrive and then will tell warehouse officials how much tobacco they will be bringing on a given day.

"The tobacco is on the line about 10 minutes. The growers can come in, watch it sold, and if he doesn't want to reject the price, have his check and be gone in an average of 30 minutes," Graves said.

Under the old auction methods, farmers brought their tobacco to the warehouse of their choice, without prior designation, unloaded it, then waited for it to be weighed, graded and auctioned before collecting their checks.

Because auctioneers move slowly down the rows of tobacco lining the floor of dark warehouses, it sometimes took a full day for the entire process.

During its testing phase, he said, the system won wide acceptance from growers, and indications are that despite the fact it may produce idle warehouse floor space, warehousemen are also keen on the idea because more tobacco can be sold in a given amount of time.

One warehouse, working six hours a day, could handle as much as 26 million pounds of leaf during a sales season, he said.

Different casserole to please the family

By AILEEN CLAIRE

A different casserole with tuna, cheese, ripe olives, onions, celery and tomatoes proves attractive, appetizing and less expensive when the ingredients nestle in a bed of crepes. The crepes may be frozen to use with other recipes or for a duplicate of the Tuna Crepes Casserole, so make a double batch.

TUNA CREPES CASSEROLE

1 recipe crepes
1 (6 ounces) can pitted ripe olives
¼ cup finely chopped onion
¾ cup finely chopped celery
2 tablespoons margarine or butter
1-3rd cup sifted flour
¾ cup sifted flour
¾ teaspoon salt
1-16 th teaspoon white pepper
1-16 th teaspoon tarragon, crumbled
1½ cups thin cream
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons ripe olive liquor
1 (7 ounce) can tuna, drained
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
3 tablespoons shredded Parmesan cheese
4 tomato wedges

Bake crepes and set aside. Drain ripe olives, saving 2 tablespoons canned liquor. Heat oven to 350-degrees. Melt margarine. Add onion and celeery and cook until soft but not browned. Stir in flour, salt pepper and tarragon. Slowly stir in cream. Cook, stirring, until sauce becomes very thick. Stir in lemon juice, ripe olive canned liquor, drained ripe olives, tuna, parsley and 2 tablespoons Parmesan cheese.

Arrange 4 crepes in 10 x 5 x 2-inch baking dish so bottom is covered and allowing crepes to hang over sides. Top with remaining 4 crepes to make a double layer. Spoon hot filling into casserole. Fold crepes over filling leaving center open. Sprinkle with remaining tablespoon cheese. Bake in a pre-heated oven for 20 to 25 minutes until hot. Garnish with a tomato wedge in each corner. Makes 4 servings.

CREPES

2 eggs
2-3rds cup milk
2 tablespoons salad oil
2-3rds cup butteermilk pancake and waffle mix

Mix together the eggs, milk, oil and pancake and waffle mix and blend until smooth. Lightly grease a 9-inch skillet. Heat over moderate heat until few drops of water dropped onto pan will jump around. Pour 3 tablespoons batter into pan, for each crepe, and rotate pan to cover bottom. Cook until lightly brown on one side. Turn and brown on other side. Makes 8 large crepes (7 to 7½ inches in diameter).

Sugar not robbed of valuable nutrients

NEW YORK (UPI) — Food faddists misinform consumers when they promote a theory that refining robs sugar of valuable nutrients, says the Sugar Association.

The trade organization said sugar is a carbohydrate and a nutrient that supplies energy, but it contains little or no added nutrients.

Refining does not change sugar's nutrient value, the association added. Some brown sugars contain slight traces of iron, calcium and vitamin B due to their molasses content. But the amounts are minimal and are not considered contributions to daily needs for these nutrients.

The British are fond of tuna pastries

The British may call them "tunnies," but as one American put it, "it's plain tuna fish to me." However, Tuna Pastries are not plain and are far from the familiar tuna fish sandwich. These partries make good appetizer servings which may be eaten with the fingers or may be served in quantity as an entree.

TUNA PASTRIES

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1 can (6½ or 7 ounces) tuna in vegetable oil
1 cup cooked peas and carrots
1 can (8 ounces each) refrigerated flaky buttermilk biscuits
1 egg yolk beaten with 1 tablespoon water

Melt butter in saucepan. Blend in flour and salt; gradulally stir in milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens and comes to a boil. Remove from heat; stir in tuna, pease and carrots. Separate each flaky biscuit into 2 parts and roll or stretch into 3-inch circle. Place 1 tablespoon tuna mixture in center of each biscuit round. Fold half of biscuit over filling to make half-circle. Seal edges with fingers or by pressing down with rim of glass. Place on lightly greased baking sheet and brush with egg yolk. Bake in a 475-degree oven 8 minutes, until golden brown. Makes 40 appetizer servings.

Stuffed tomatoes with a new twist

A fresh look at an old standby recipe often turns it into a surprising new treat. Take this new approach, hot stuffed tomatoes, a recurrent favorite on many menus.

In this recipe, fish fillets are substituted for the usual stuffing of tuna or egg salad. The filling turns out to be a truly delicious innovation—and a hot one, at that.

A marvelous melange of finely sliced mushrooms, onion, celery, tomato pulp and diced fish are cooked together in a skillet. To this is added a spirited new bottled creamy garlic dressing which imparts a subtle flavor of garlic and a perfect blend of seasonings to the filling. There is also a slight accent of the new dressing in the toasty bread crumb topping that is sprinkled over the filled tomatoes at the last moment.

This distinctive new creamy white dressing with its appealing zesty flavor is remarkably versatile. You can also use it as a sauce for many hot vegetables.

Meanwhile, try it in this quick, off-beat tomato treat that takes probably twenty minutes to create. You'll have to agree it makes a fine catch for an easy Saturday luncheon.

STUFFED TOMATOES IMPERIAL

4 large tomatoes
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup finely sliced mushrooms
½ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup finely sliced celery
1 cup diced fish fillets
½ cup creamy garlic dressing
Bread Crumb Topping

Cut thin slice off top of tomatoes and remove pulp, reserving 1 cup. If desired, cut edges into petal shapes.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In medium skillet, melt butter and cook mushrooms, onion, and celery until tender. Add fish and pulp; cook 10 minutes or until fish flakes. Stir in creamy garlic dressing and heat through.

Fill tomatoes and sprinkle with Bread Crumb Topping. Place in shallow baking pan and bake 5 minutes.

BREAD CRUMB TOPPING

In small bowl, combine 1 tablespoon creamy garlic dressing with ¼ cup bread crumbs.

Ragout just fancy name for a stew

Few countries are without some form of a stew which began as a peasant's dish and is now accepted as a glorious discovery by those who like good, basic, properly seasoned dishes. These are dishes without pretension which evolved as the housewives threw whatever vegetables were in season in the pot.

In southeast France, the sunny, light-hearted Provence offers a profusion of fresh vegetables. From here comes a Ragout Mistral which has the basic ingredients of garlic, tomatoes and olives — and then whatever ingredients the cook wants to add.

Those who want to serve a wine with this stew may follow the example of the Provencal homemaker who often uses a dry white wine to prepare this dish, and serve a dry white wine — not red — with it. Suitable would be a Meursault from south of Beaune, for example.

Iced tea and lemonade devotees will find their summer favorites also go with this hearty French import. For dessert serve cheese and local fresh fruit in season.

RAGOUT MISTRAL
(French beef stew)

¼ cup butter
1 clove garlic, chopped
1 cup chopped shallots, leeks (or onions)
3 pounds lean chuck, cut into 1-inch cubes
Salt and pepper
Flour
2 cups dry French white wine (or beef broth)
1 can (10½-ounces) condensed consomme
3 tomatoes, peeled and chopped
3 zucchini, cut into 1-inch thick slices
1 can (15-ounces) baby whole carrots, drained
1 can (14-ounces) hearts of celery, drained
¼ cup coarsely chopped olives

Heat butter in a Dutch oven or kettle. Saute garlic and shallots until golden. Sprinkle meat with salt and pepper and roll cubes in flour. Brown meat cubes on all sides in Dutch oven. Add wine, consomme and tomatoes. Cover and simmer gently, stirring occasionally, for 1½ hours or until meat is tender. Add zucchini and cook 10 minutes or until zucchini are tender. Add carrots and celery cut into halves, and olives. Reheat until bubbly. Serve with baguette (bread). Makes about 6 servings.

Sauerkraut and ham make a good combo

Ham and sauerkraut make a good dinner combination which offers few problems in cooking. During the upcoming summer holidays why not try a Ham 'n' Kraut Planked Supper?

Although this may be cooked in aluminum foil in the oven, anyone with a barbecue grill can put this combination close to hot charcoal coals, to heat through for 15 to 30 minutes depending upon whether there is a cooking breeze. Those with smoker cookers may want to put the ham steaks and kraut on a wooden plank, with aluminum foil surrounding the ingredients to hold them on the plank but open at the top. For the grill, oil plank with cooking oil and check occasionally to see that it is not charring.

HAM 'N KRAUT PLANKED SUPPER

2 pounds fully cooked ham steak
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup chopped onion
1¼ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
¾ teaspoon caraway seeds
2 tablespoons honey
3½ cups well-drained sauerkraut
½ cup chopped green pepper
1 large red apple, cored and diced
Squash Mixture

In large skillet brown steak on both sides in butter; remove ham to wooden plank. Saute onion in drippings until lightly browned. Stir in seasonings, honey, kraut, green pepper and apple; toss well. Spoon kraut around ham. Cover with foil and bake in 375-degree oven for 15 minutes or place over hot coals of barbecue until hot. Pipe Squash Mixture around edge of ham and serve immediately.

SQUASH MIXTURE: Combine 2 packages (12 ounces each) frozen cooked (mashed) yellow squash, ¼ cup butter or margarine, 1 teaspoon salt and a dash pepper in saucepan. Cover and cook for about 8 minutes, stirring occasionally. Uncover and cook until squash mixture is thickened; stir frequently. Makes 6 servings.

Center gives Down's children special help

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — Little Brady put some rumpled old clothes in one box and toys in another. It took him two tries.

"Oh, Brady, you did it!" his teacher said excitedly. She quickly checked something on a sheet on a clipboard in front of her, then gave him a big hug and a kiss.

At another table, Malindi, 3, was shown two Raggedy Ann dolls and asked to point to the big one. She did and got the same kind of rewards.

Brady, Malindi and the others, squirming in their seats waiting their turns, were being taught things that normal kids their age pick up by themselves or with a little help.

They are Down's Syndrome (formerly known as mongolism) children or are handicapped mentally, in some cases, physically for other reasons.

Their school is part of the University of Oregon's Center on Human Development, which wants to help every Down's child of pre-school age living in the Eugene area or close enough to be driven in every day.

If a federal grant is approved, the center also will begin treating newborn Down's infants —four weeks and older—by sending someone to the homes to work with the parents.

"We are interested in the long run in finding very young children," said Robe Schwartz, the center's director. "When a Down's child is born, we'd like to know. We hope to have something to offer the families."

"We feel we have evidence that kids have made great progress at ages two, three and four," added Nonda Stone of the center's staff, "so if we can start earlier we can make much more progress."

That's in the future, however. Now, pre-schoolers come to the center to learn a lot of basics like colors, the concepts of up and down and large and small, how to brush teeth and wash hands, identifying common objects —the list goes on and on.

Down's Syndrome means a child has a genetic imbalance or was born with an extra set of genes or an extra chromosome. Researchers say one baby in 640 has Down's Syndrome.

The classroom program for pre-school age Down's and other handicapped children has been going for about two years. Usually 18-20 kids attend each day.

The staff includes certified teachers, university student aides and people trained in physical therapy and physical education. There's support from the Eugene schools and the Lane Intermediate Education District.

"We feel we work very nicely with local schools," Schwartz said. "This is not an ivory tower program."

The classrooms look like any nursery school —busy with toys, little furniture and bright colors everywhere.

A small slide illustrated the concept of up and down, and balls and blocks became round and square.

Coffee cans, paper bags and spoons were the objects of a lesson in identification. There seemed to be pairs of things, one large and one small, to illustrate size differences.

Much of the furniture was specially designed; chairs are low and tables look as if bites were taken out of them so the children could pull in closer. The teachers work with two or three kids at a time and keep records of each learning situation.

Each classroom has a darkened observation room sealed off by a window but equipped for listening. Microphones in the classrooms over the children pick up what's happening audibly.

While watching her daughter from one of these rooms, Chris Helm talked enthusiastically about what Malindi was learning and about the experience of having a Down's child.

"We were living in Coos Bay when Malindi was born," she said. "We came here when she was 15 months old so my husband could go to school." Mike Helm teaches at Spencer Butte Junior High School.

"We were sort of disheartened about what we were going to do with her," Mrs. Helm said. "We didn't know anything about Down's Syndrome, so it looked like there was no future for Malindi.

"Then I heard about this program, came one day for a look and got her in. That was a year ago last October. Within a month, well, it's just been tremendous! Malindi can recognize colors, count to five — these are just some of the things she has learned."

Mrs. Helm, who is 27 and a teacher herself, tried to observe as much as she can "to know what they're doing." She added, "Sometimes she is doing things you don't realize so you can demand a lot more of her if you know she's capable."

She said most people accept Malindi "as a pretty normal child because that's what we accept her as. She's retarded, yes, but when I say normal I just think of her as slower.

"She's capable of doing things eventually. Well, maybe not everything but she can feed herself, dress herself and do many more things perfectly.

"It's no good to treat her as different. I think this is a thing that people have to realize. Handicapped people have to be treated much more normally than they were treated in the past because the longer they are treated differently, the longer they're going to act in a different way."

Researchers minimize use of fertilizers

MANILA (UPI) — The International Rice Research Institute (IRRI), which with its "miracle rice" helped double rice crop yields in Asia and elsewhere in the 1960s, now is growing rice with a minimum use of fertilizer.

The idea is agriculturally revolutionary and economically important since fertilizer is one of the products most hard-hit by the oil crisis.

The technology, developed by the 700-man staff of the institute in Los Banos, 40 miles south of Manila, has cushioned the crippling blow of the oil crisis on the Asian farmer. IRRI's experiment on fertilizer use, incidentally, began in 1968 —long before any hint of the coming oil shortage.

"We confine fertilizer to a very judicious use, to make sure farmers apply it only where and when necessary," said Dr. Mano D. Pathak, IRRI chief entomologist since 1962 and one of the world's most eminent rice scientists.

The institute's experiment was pegged on finding out whether there was any significant difference in yield from traditional rice varieties using fertilizer and from modern varieties (which were bred to be responsive to fertilizer) grown without any application of the plant nutrient.

Miracle strains test out

IRRI chose the traditional variety Peta 8 and the "miracle" strains IR8 and IR20. Each year since 1968, researchers planted all three strains in three experimental stations, with only Peta 8 getting fertilizer. Although IR8 and IR20 were not fertilized, they yielded an average of 3.8 and 3.9 tons per hectare (2.47 acres) respectively, as against Peta 8's 3.2 tons.

The latest breakthrough is proving a boon to farmers in the rice growing nations of Asia, Africa and Latin America, many of whom, IRRI officials say. In point of impact, IRRI's fertilizer technology is just one of the many radical farm innovations successfully developed by the institute.

Established in 1960 by the Rockefeller and Ford Foundations in cooperation with the Philippine Government, IRRI gave the world the first "miracle rice" (IR8) in 1966. To date, 25 IRRI rice selections have been named and released for commercial cultivation by various nations.

Expands training program

IRRI now receives cash grants from seven sources, including the two foundations, the United States, Japan, the Netherlands, the United Kingdom and Canada. Australia in 1973 donated a $900,000 phytotron, a huge experimental greenhouse that can simulate any climate desired for rices studies.

FIGS AND CREME CARAMEL

Remove stems from 1 cup firmly packed dried figs and cut figs in half if desired. Pour 1¼ cups boiling water over figs and let stand while melting sugar. Place 1¼ cups sugar in heavy saucepan and stir over low heat until sugar melts and turns golden brown. Remove from heat and spoon 2 or 3 tablespoons melted sugar into 1½-quart charlotte mold or metal bowl. Tip mold so that syrup covers bottom and set aside. Carefully add water drained from figs to melted sugar remaining in saucepan. The mixture will steam and sugar will harden. Add a dash of salt and stir mixture over low heat until sugar dissolves and mixture becomes a clear, thin syrup. Add drained figs and chill thoroughly. Beat 6 eggs, 6 egg yolks, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup sugar and 1 tablespoon vanilla in a large bowl until well-mixed. Scald two cups half and half and 2 cups milk in saucepan over medium heat. Stir into egg mixture. Pour into mold with caramelized sugar on bottom. Set mold in pan of hot water and bake at 350 degrees 65 minutes or until knife inserted comes out clean. Remove from pan of hot water and cool. Chill eight hours or overnight. To serve, loosen top edge of custard with knife and shake mold gently. Invert serving dish over mold, then reverse both mold and dish. Pour a little caramel syrup over custard and garnsh with some figs. Serve the custard with the remaining sauce and figs.

Using the freezer can cut food bills

Rising prices, along with threatened shortages of commercially processed fruits and vegetables, have sent millions of Americans back to the soil this year. Hoping to save on future grocery bills by growing their own produce in home or community gardens, they've put a sudden strain on supplies of seeds, fertilizer, and gardening tools.

Also affected are sales of home freezers, as well as those of canning and freezing supplies, according to Pauline Church, home service advisor for the Republic Molding Corporation, Chicago, manufacturer of Freezette food containers.

"The nation's freezer manufacturers expect to ship a total of 2,305,000 chest and upright freezers in 1974, according to the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers," she noted. "This figure is lower than last year's whopping 2,415,000, however, because material shortages resulting from the energy crisis have limited production."

The comination of increased demand and restricted raw materials output is also putting many freezer supplies on the hard-to-get-list. Whether you're growing your own produce to freeze, watching for seasonal specials at market, or both, you need a carefully drawn up freezer food plan to get the most savings and eating pleasure from your efforts, Ms. Church emphasized.

"Just as you allocate ground in a garden according to family likes and dislikes, so should you assign freezer space to suit your eating needs in future months," she suggested. "Allow for some flexibility so that you can take advantage of a bountiful harvest or unexpected good buys. But don't get carried away by bargains to the point of crowing out more essential foods."

Generally speaking, freezer efficiency depends on adequate turnover of contents. While some foods can be stored safely for over a year, there's also the cost of keeping them frozen to consider. For each pound of food stored in a conventional 16-cubic-foot freezer for a full year with no turnover, for instance, the freezer operating cost adds up to about 10 cents. If all contents were consumed and replaced three times within that year, this figure would drop to around six cents per pound. If yours is a no-frost freezer, increase both costs by two or three pennies.

"To accurately measure savings, in other words, you'd have to compare the combined costs of the food itself, packaging it, and maintaining it at sub-zero temperatures with what you'd pay for the same item for immediate use," Ms. Church pointed out.

"But since no one can predict what prices will be six months from now, or even what will be available, even this rule is losing some of its validity," she admitted.

One area where you can count on saving money in the long run is in your choice of freezer packaging materials and containers.

While square or rectangular packages make more economical use of freezer space, some foods seem to 'work better' in round containers," Ms. Church noted.

Since fresh produce should be processed, packaged, and frozen as quickly as possible, it pays to organize your equipment ahead of time, according to the home service director. Make sure the freezer has been defrosted and cleaned, if needed, before you're ready to put up that first batch of green beans or strawberries. And be sure your supply cupboard contains the needed number of containers in convenient sizes, so you won't have to waste valuable time shopping when you should be packing and freezing.

Bad breakfast better than none at all

NEW YORK (UPI)—A bad breakfast is better than no breakfast at all, says nutritionist Margaret D. Simko.

But a good breakfast doesn't have to be routine bacon and eggs or even cereal.

Mrs. Simko, chairman of the home economics department of New York University, believes in matching breakfast menu to life style. If your teen-agers want to start their day with a meal of cold chicken or muffins and cheese, let them.

Or satisfy a child's sweet tooth with rice pudding, baked custard, oatmeal cookies with raisins or steamed rice with brown sugar and milk. A grilled cheese or peanut butter sandwich is good, too. Milk or citrus juice is optional.

Any of these makes a better starter than instant breakfast mix, diet drink, toaster pastries or enriched sweet rolls, Mrs. Simko said in an interview.

"Even though they contain 'all nutrients,' they often don't really equate breakfast. Some mixes are high in fat or very sweet."

They also can be boring. They lack the satisfaction of chewing. And they develop bad food habits by giving children the idea that all fat and sweet foods are good for them, Mrs. Simko said.

"But they generally are a better choice than no breakfast, and they must be evaluated in terms of individual needs and intake for the whole day.

"Nutritional deficiencies don't arise from one meal missed, but from poor food habits continued over a period of time."

She said the ideal breakfast provides one-fourth to one-third of a person's daily nutrients — protein, fat, carbohydrates, vitamins and minerals.

If breakfast calories come entirely from carbohydrate foods like Danish pastries, coffee cake, doughnuts or sweet rolls, they're empty calories.

Upside-down cake tempts all appetites

Homemade upside-down cakes are treats that linger in many memories. So, why not make such a delightful dessert more than a memory? A Honey-glazed Apple Ring turns out as a sheer delight for the baker and for the eater. This is the type of cake that lures all ages to the refrigerator for a late night snack, with milk, and also is good for breakfast.

HONEY-GLAZED
APPLE RING

Topping:
2 Golden Delicious apples
2 tablespoons butter, melted
5 tablespoons honey, divided
1-3rd cup coconut
1-3rd cup chopped walnuts
¼ cup wheat germ

Cake:
⅓ cup shortening
2-3rds cup honey
2 eggs
2¼ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon allspice
2 or 3 Golden Delicious apples, pared, cored and chopped to measure 2 cups

To make topping:

Pare, core and cut apples crosswise into rings, ½-inch thick. Combine butter and 3 tablespoons of the honey; spoon into bottom of a well greased 10-inch tube pan. Arrange apple rings over butter mixture. (Any left-over apple can be chopped and used for cake). Combine remaining topping ingredients with 2 tablespoons honey. Spoon in-between apples, pressing down slightly.

To make cake:

Cream together shortening and honey. Beat in eggs (batter may look slightly curdled at this point). Sift flour with salt, soda, baking powder and allspice. Fold into creamed mixture along with chopped apples. Spread butter carefully over apples in pan. Bake at 350 degrees 50 to 60 minutes or until cake tests done. Let stand 10 minutes before inverting onto serving plate. Serve warm.

(Note: For a smaller cake, divide recipe in half and bake in a 3-½ cup ring mold).

Sauce makes succulent spareribs

Succulent spareribs are best enjoyed with good friends. These are the ultimate in finger-licking food and should be eaten without worry about a "sauced" chin. A different sauce for spareribs comes with the use of whole-berry cranberry sauce. You can simmer the ribs in advance and refrigerate them until ready to bake, which makes this a dish that takes little last-minute fussing for a truly holiday meal. Have plenty of napkins on the table and bowls of warm water and a slice of lemon to rinse greasy fingers.

CRANBERRY
SPARERIBS

4 pounds spareribs, cut in serving-size pieces
1 can (10½ ounces) beef gravy
1 can (8 ounces) whole berry cranberry sauce
½ cup orange marmalade
3 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon

In large heavy pan, cover spareribs with water. Simmer 1 hour; drain. Arrange in shallow baking dish (13x9x2 inches). Meanwhile, in saucepan, combine remaining ingredients. Cook, stirring, until slightly thickened; pour over ribs. Bake at 450 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes or until ribs are tender. Spoon sauce over ribs occasionally. Makes 4 servings.

CURRIED GRAPE SAUCE

Colorful, fresh grapes are a boon to menu planning and are used to the cook's advantage in this Bombay Curry Sauce. In a pan, combine 1¼ cups firmly packed brown sugar, 1¼ cups white vinegar, juice of 1 lemon, 1 cup applesauce, 1 large onion, chopped, 1 clove garlic, 1 tablespoon salt, 2 teaspoons ginger and 1 or 2 teaspoons curry. Bring to a boil and cook over medium heat until slightly thick. Add 1 pound Thompson seedless grapes. Keep sauce warm while preparing rice ball. To make rice ball, wash thoroughly 2 cups pearl rice. Drain and place in pan. Cover rice with an inch of cold water and let stand several hours. Bring to a boil over medium heat and cook 3 minutes. Cover pan, reduce heat and cook 5 more minutes. Turn off heat and let stand, covered, for 10 minutes. Turn rice onto plate. When cool enough to handle, press into oiled rice ball mold or into 2 6-inch oiled bowls, or shape into a ball with hands, keeping hands wet and sprinkling salt on them. If mold is used, it can be prepared in advance. Steam the rice ball to reheat before serving with the Bombay Curry Sauce.

Fight inflation with pasta party

Pasta parties help stretch the food dollar. In planning a menu for a large family or for a number of guests consider serving spaghetti with a different twist. Top the pasta with a stuffed beef role — 1½ pounds of ground beef makes eight servings. Top with a tomato sauce and serve with a large salad and fresh fruit for dessert.

SPAGHETTI WITH STUFFED BEEF ROLL

1 egg
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
Salt and pepper
½ cup beef bouillon
1½ pounds ground beef
½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
4 carrots, halved and cooked
1½ cups sliced celery, cooked
½ cup chopped parsley
2 slices bacon, diced
½ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 tablespoon dark brown sugar
½ teaspoon thyme leaves
2 cans (8 ounces each) tomato sauce
1 cup water
1 pound spaghetti
2 tablespoons salt
4 to 6 quarts boiling water

Beat egg in large bowl with mustard, 1 teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Add bouillon, beef and bread crumbs. Mix until combined. Turn onto large sheet of waxed paper. With moistened hands pat into a 14 x 10-inch rectangle. Arrange carrots and celery over the meat; sprinkle with parsley. Roll up jelly-roll fashion, peeling off waxed paper while rolling. Place seam side down in shallow roasting pan. Seal ends of roll. Bake in 350-degree oven 1 houtr. Meanwhile, prepare spaghetti sauce. Brown bacon in large saucepan over medium heat; remove with slotted spoon and set aside. Add onion and garlic and saute in drippings until lightly browned. Pour off excess fat. Stir in sugar, thyme, tomato sauce, 1 cup water and bacon. Bring sauce to a boil, reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes more. Brush some of sauce over beef roll during last 10 minutes of baking period. Keep remaining sauce hot to pour over spaghetti. During last 15 minutes of baking time, cook spaghetti. Gradually add spaghetti and 2 tablespoons salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Serve spaghetti with sliced beef roll and sauce. (Note: Allow meat to stand 5 minutes for easier slicing.) Makes 8 servings.

QUICHE LORRAINE

Shortcrust pastry
8 ounces plain flour
Pinch of salt
4 ounces butter
A little cold water to mix
Filling
2 eggs and 2 yolks
2 ounces grated cheese (gruyere, cheddar or similar)
salt and pepper
½ pint cream (or milk)
4 ounces bacon
1 onion
½ ounces butter

Make the shortcrust pastry and line into an 8-inch flan ring or shallow cake-tin with removable base and partially cook in oven. (To keep the bottom from puffing up, line with grease-proof paper or foil and fill with dried beans. The weight of the beans will hold the pastry against the tin during baking).Bake in preheated 400-degree oven for 10 minutes, until pastry is set. Remove paper and beans. Prick pastry with a fork and return to oven for 3 to 5 minutes more. Lower heat to 375 degrees. Meanwhile prepare the filling by beating the eggs and yolks in a bowl, adding the grated cheese, salt and pepper and cream. Melt the butter in a small frying pan, add the bacon, diced, and the onion finely sliced. Cook slowly until just golden in color, then turn the contents of the pan into the egg-mixture. Mix and pour into the pastry. Bake at 375 degrees, until it has puffed and the top browned. A knife plunged into the centre should come out clean and the quiche is ready to serve. It will stay puffed for about 10 minutes in the turned off hot oven with the door open. As it cools, it sinks down. It may be reheated but will not puff again.

STRETCH YOUR CATCH

Only a pound of your freshly caught fish can feed six or eight hungry campers with this recipe. Combine 3 cups clam juice or water, 1 can evaporated milk, ¼ cup minced onion, 1½ teaspoons salt and ¼ teaspoon black pepper. Bring to boil in a large pot. Stir in 1 envelope instant mashed potato granules with a fork and stir until smooth. Add 1 pound fish fillets, cut in chunks, and 1 can tuna or 1 can shrimp, drained. Simmer 5 or 10 minutes until fish flakes easily when pierced with a fork.

Salads from foreign lands

Salads are served differently in varying parts of the world. They are eaten before a soup and entree, after the entree and before dessert or with the meal. Dieters find that a salad of fresh greens and vegetables in season makes a less painful way to cut down on calories.

A salad visually is appealing and offers a variety of taste sensations depending upon what you select to dress the salad bowl. As refreshers try Avocado-tomato, Watercress-endive or the classic Ratatouille. These may be mixed in quantity and enjoyed as leftovers.

AVOCADO-TOMATO SALAD

1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 ripe avocado, peeled and diced
2 medium-sized tomatoes, peeled, seeded and cut into small pieces
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
¼ cup peanut oil
2 tablespoons white vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
Generous dash pepper
Crisp salad greens

Sprinkle lemon juice over diced avocado. Add tomato, onion and parsley. Combine peanut oil, vinegar, salad and pepper in a small jar. Cover tightly and shake until well mixed. Pur over avocado mixture; toss gently. Chill thoroughly. Serve on crisp salad greens. Makes 5 servings.

WATERCRESS-ENDIVE SALAD

6 heads Belgian endive, cut into bite-size pieces
1 bunch watercress, stems removed and torn
½ cup peanut oil
3 teablespoons white vinegar
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash black pepper
⅛ teaspoon paprika
2 teaspoons minced onion

Combine endive and watercress in salad bowl. Set aside. Combine peanut oil, white vinegar, salt, paprika, pepper and onion in a jar with tight fitting lid. Cover tightly and shake until well mixed. Pour over salad greens and toss. Makes 6 servings.

RATATOUILLE SALAD

1 small eggplant, peeled
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup peanut oil
2 medium zucchini, sliced ½-inch thick
1 medium green pepper, cut into strips
1 large onion, sliced and separated into rings
4 large clove garlic, minced
⅛ teaspoon pepper
5 medium tomatoes, cut into wedges
1 tablespoon chopped capers

Cut eggplant into 1-inch slices; sprinkle with salt. Place eggplant between 2 plates. Let stand about 30 minutes to drain. Heat peanut oil in large skillet. Add zucchini, green pepper, onion, garlic and pepper. Cook over medium heat about 5 minutes; stir occasionally. Cut eggplant into cubes. Add to skillet and continue cooking until vegetables are just tender. Stir in tomatoes and capers. Pour into large bowl. Chill thoroughly. Makes about 8 cups.

Nectarines spice up fresh salads

Next time you serve your own special super-duper hamburgers, light up the meal with salads filled with brilliant, ruby-gold fresh California nectarines. These bright salads are so simple to put together, you'll wonder why you haven't made them before.

While the meat is grilling and the buns are warming, select the handsomest fresh nectarines from your fruit bowl, cut them in half and remove the pits. If the nectarines is one of the freestone varieties, the pit will lift right out. Even if it's a cling, the pit is easily removed. Just cut around the pit, through the stem end with a grapefruit knife; then either pull the pit out with the knife through the stem end or slice around the fruit and lift the pit out.

Using one nectarine for each person to be served, set the two halves on a crisp bed of shredded iceberg lettuce and pass the tangy, toasted pine-nut dressing. You may find you have a double bonus, because for many of the diners, especially the dieters, the natural sweetness of the nectarine may even let your salad double as dessert.

NACTARINE SALAD

1-3rd cup salad oil
1-3rd cup tarragon flavor wine vinegar
½ teaspoon seasoned salt
¼ teaspoon crumbled tarragon
¼ teaspoon grated lemon peel
¼ cup toasted pine-nuts chopped
6 fresh California nectarines
3 cups shredded iceberg lettuce

Combine oil, vinegar, salt, tarragon, lemon peel in small jar. Cover and shake well. Add pine-nuts and shake again before serving. Halve, remove pits and arrange 2 nectarine halves for each serving on shredded lettuce in individual salad bowls. Spoon on dressing.

Makes 6 servings.

To toast pine-nuts, spread in shallow pan and toast 5 minutes in moderate oven (350 degrees F). Cool.

Just a little steak can go a long way

You can serve steak at your next barbecue and still keep your financial ship afloat. Plan judiciously and watch how a little steak can go a long, long way.

Here's a new idea that will help. Steak Sticks let your stretch a pound of round steak into six servings.

Cut the round steak into narrow strips or sticks, and, for a glamorous touch, wrap the sticks in bacon and brush with a tangy baste of prepared yellow mustard and pineapple juice. Then grill and serve on frankfurter rolls.

Accompany the sticks with Patio Pilaf, very elegant but very easy, relying on a package of precooked rice and an envelope of brown gravy mix. Prepare the pilaf indoors, then keep it warm outdoors by placing it on the edge of the grill.

An appropriate menu would include a tossed salad, fresh strawberries and cookies, and iced tea, coffee or fruit punch.

STEAK STICKS

1 to 1½ pounds round steak

6 to 8 slices lean bacon

¼ cup prepared yellow mustard

¼ cup pineapple juice juice

1 tablespoon brown sugar

6 to 8 frankfurter rolls, split and toasted

Cut steak into 6 to 8 strips, 1-inch thick; wrap each with bacon and fasten with wooden picks. Stir together mustard, juice, and brown sugar; brush over steak sticks. Grill over hot coals about 10 minutes, turning frequently and brushing with additional mustard mixture. Remove wooden picks and serve on toasted rolls. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

STEAK STICKS

PATIO PILAF

1 green pepper, chopped

1 tablespoon oil

3 cups water

1 envelope (¾ ounce) brown gravy mix

½ teaspoon garlic salt

3 cups packaged pre-cooked rice

¼ cup mayonnaise

2 tablespoons chopped pimento

Cook pepper in oil in large sauce pan until tender. Stir in water, contents of gravy mix envelope, and garlic salt; bring to a boil. Remove from heat. Stir in rice, mayonnaise, and pimento. Cover; let stand five minutes. Whip lightly with fork. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Townspeople feel anger over grant

NICODEMUS, Kan. (UPI) — This small town in the wheat farming country of northwestern Kansas was founded more than 100 years ago by exslaves. During the late 1880s the town had several cultural organizations, two banks, a hat shop, general store, newspaper, post office, and a school.

Over the years, however, most of its people have moved away, and today there are only 10 houses left. But the 50 residents who remain in the all-black farm town are not down and out.

They are preparing to replace an old Baptist church built 100 years ago, and the town hall, built of native beige-colored stone, is neatly kept. In addition, they asked for and got a $240,000 grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) two years ago to build a 10-unit housing project for the elderly.

The townspeople, dreaming of restoring their lost prosperity, said it would help get their friends and relatives to come home to spend their retirement years.

But the black people are angry now because they could not get a builder to construct their proposed housing unit for $240,000 and they have been unable to get any more funding from the government.

The town leaders subsequently decided to go ahead and build what they could with the money they have, starting in July, but they are not happy about it, and suspect they were discriminated against.

"There's a mouse in the meal somewhere up and down the line," said Ora Switzer, a member of the Township Board. "Everywhere you look they've lost our papers and this, that and the other."

The town's housing authority applied to HUD for an extra $32,616, the smallest sum contractors said was needed to complete the projece as planned. But the application was held up in Kansas City for almost a year, and by the time it reached Washington, the government had imposed a blanket moratorium on supplemental funds for any housing project.

"We've made so many trips up and down the road and they've had us go this place and that place. We hate to be denied this when we've had such a great hope," Mrs. Switzer said.

Accusations of racial discrimination were brought up after nearby Hill City, the larger and more prosperous county seat, won approval for extra funds for a 25-unit public housing project. Applications for similar funds from the two towns were sent in at the same time.

"We feel it was definitely discrimination, and we're hopping mad," said Lois Alexander, director of the Nicodemus Housing Authority. "We're still going to fight, not so much for the buildings or anything, but to see what happened to our request."

Starving cat becomes top award winner

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, Ohio (UPI) An abandoned cat, once nearly dead from starvation, is now a veteran feline beauty contest winner and is vying for the top spot in the All-American Glamous Kitty contest.

The all-white mixed-breed cat, named Snowball by his owner, Gail Lucas, 14, of Washington Court House, has already won more than $100, a television set, a personalized cat collar and two trophys in various contests.

"He was almost dead when we got him," Miss Lucas said. "He was real skinny and everything. I had gone to the animal shelter to get a cat and when Snowball licked my hand through the cage bars I knew he was the one."

Miss Lucas, who says she wants to be a "pet doctor," nursed the kitten to health after purchasing him for $4 from the shelter in October of 1972.

If the nearly 2-year-old cat is among finalists selected in the contest sponsored by a kitty litter firm, he will go to Miami Beach in July for the final judging.

"I'm really proud of him," said Miss Lucas. "Beside winning all the contests he's really a smart cat. He sits up and rolls over on command."

15% of urban children eat paint chips

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — As many as 15 per cent of young children in urban areas have dangerous levels of lead in their bodies from eating paint chips, the Allegheny County Health Department reports.

Effects range from slow learning and misbehavior to severe brain damage and death. 3

WHAT'S IN STORE...
NO MAGIC IN MARGINS

I'm sure that by now most consumers are totally confused about the meat supply and price situation with the many varied reports by the media. One of the main purposes of the recent conference in Washington was to help the livestock industry find ways to stimulate sales of meat. The narrowing of the margins between the price the farmer receives and the retail price for meat was another stated objective. It was proposed that "red hot" meat specials be advertised by the retailers so the consumers could take advantage of this "low price" meat.

But then it was announced that the government would buy $100 million worth of beef and pork for the fall school-lunch program. Immediately, the wholesale prices went up, leaving meat buyers uncertain what would happen next.

Let me explain what I can about the situation today. Despite news reports to the contrary, lower farm prices are being passed on to customers now — at least at Alpha Beta. In checking our current list of meat and poultry prices against those of a year ago, it is interesting to note that many meat cuts are almost 20 cents a pound lower than a year ago. Turkey prices have dropped dramatically this summer, and chicken is down an amazing 34% from a year ago. This is in spite of the fact that there has been an increase in labor, transportation, and rent costs — and everyone knows what has happened to their own utility bills. These are all factors which add to the margin or difference between what the farmer receives and what the consumer pays. That margin increase is not magic.

I must tell you, honestly, even our best meat authorities can't predict exactly what the future will bring. We know there are fewer cattle being placed on feed for the fall and winter market, which could mean another round of shortages and higher prices. We hope not. We can add our voice to those who tell you that meat is a good buy right now.

Festive foods for traditional July 4 observance

For a bang-up celebration of the Fourth of July this year, start July 2 and continue through July 8, covering all historical bases.

The Continental Congress approved the resolution of independence from Britain July 2, drafting the Declaration July 4. The declaration was not, however, read publicly until July 8. Observers of these first years have left reports of a "festive and uproarious celebration of the first anniversary in Philadelphia spread to other cities and states."

Although the community turnouts are not the massive affairs they were 50 or even 25 years ago, the tradition is still strong among Americans of a day of freedom and feasting on some of the most typically American foods, from hams to hot dogs, from homemade pies to watermelon and ice cream.

GRAND SLAM FRANKFURTER ROLL

Split a loaf of French bread the long way, butter it with garlic butter and toast lightly on grill. On the bottom half arrange sliced tomatoes, sliced onions, sliced cucumbers, franks which have been split and grilled, and mayonnaise. Add cheese if you like. Top with the other half of the loaf. Cut through in thick slices the round way. Serve with radishes and green onions.

BLACK FOREST BARBECUE

For 6 people, take 12 bratwurst and slice them down the middle. Mash ½ pound of liverwurst and combine with 2 tablespoons of grated onion, ½ cup of sour cream and a dash of Tabasco sauce. Stuff the bratwurst with this mixture, brush with mustard and roll two each in foil. Cook in the foil on the grill for 12 to 15 minutes, turning them twice during the process.

BALL PARK CHOWDER

4 all-meat franks
1 can cream-style corn
3 slices West Virginia bacon
1 can milk

Dice bacon and brown until crisp. Drain on paper towel. Cut franks into ¼-inch slices and brown lightly in bacon drippings. Pour corn and milk in a saucepan. Add frankfurter slices, 3 tablespoons bacon drippings and diced bacon. Simmer 10 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

CHINESE DRAGON FRANKS

½ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons corn starch
⅛ teaspoon cloves
2 tablespoons onion chopped fine
1 can (13½ ounces) pineapple chunks
1 cup pineapple juice
1 tablespoon vinegar
3 tablespoons soy sauce
1 beef bouillon cube
1 pepper cut in 1-inch square pieces
2 carrots cut in thin strips
8 all-meat franks cut in bite-size pieces
1 tablespoon butter

Brown franks in butter. Set aside, mix in saucepan onion, brown sugar, corn starch, and cloves. Add pineapple juice (if not 1 cup, add water to make 1 cup), vinegar, soy sauce and bouillon cube. Cook, stirring frequently, until mixture is thick. Add franks and butter, carrots, peppers and pineapple chunks to sauce. Simmer 15 minutes only. Serve over rice or Chinese noodles. Makes 6 servings.

GUNPOWDER FRANKS

Franks
Pickled onions
Head of green cabbage
Barbecue sauce (below)
Zippy cheese sauce (below)

Early in day, cut required number of franks into 1-inch pieces. Put each piece of frank on a pick; top with a pickled onion. Make barbecue salce. Refrigerate all till needed. To serve: stick picks with franks into a small head of cabbage. Set on tray. Reheat barbecue sauce; make cheese sauce. Arrange in bowls near franks. Dip franks into sauces.

BARBECUE SAUCE

¼ cup vinegar
½ cup water
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon pepper
1½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 thick lemon slice
1 sliced onion
¼ cup butter or margarine
½ cup catchup
2 tablespoons Worcestershire
1½ teaspoon liquid or powdered smoke (optional)

In saucepan, mix vinegar, water, sugar, mustard, pepper, salt, cayenne, lemon, onion, butter. Simmer, uncovered, 20 minutes. Add catchup, Worcestershire, smoke; bring to boil. Makes about 1¾ cups.

ZIPPY CHEESESAUCE

In double boiler, place 1-3rd cup milk, ½ pound sliced process cheese. Add dash of cayenne or liquid hot pepper seasoning, or a little minced onion sauteed till tender in butter. Heat, stirring, until blended and smooth. Makes about 1 and 1-3rd cups.

BLUEBERRY LUV

2 cups soft bread cubes
1 tablespoon butter, melted
2 eggs, well beaten
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup sugar
½ cup water to soften bread
2 cups blueberries, rinsed and drained
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind

Mix all ingredients, except blueberries, brown sugar and lemon rind. Put mixture in greased shallow 8-inch baking dish. Add blueberries. Sprinkle with brown sugar and lemon rind. Bake in 400-degree oven for 35 minutes. Serve with pitcher of milk.

Makes 4 servings.

BLUEBERRY FUNNY CAKE

2 cups blueberries
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ cup butter
¾ cup sugar
1 egg
1¼ cups sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 unbaked 9-inch pie shell

Make a blueberry sauce by putting blueberries into saucepan and adding 1 cup sugar, lemon juice and a tablespoon of water, if the sauce is too thick. Stirring gently, heat mixture until it is simmering and sugar is completely dissolved. Let cool to lukewarm while preparing cake batter. For cake batter, cream butter, add ¾ cup sugar and cream thoroughly. Add egg and mix well. Sift flour with baking powder and salt and add alternately with milk. Add vanilla. Pour batter into unbaked pie shell. Gently pour lukewarm blueberry sauce over the top. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes or until cake tests done.

PINEAPPLE GINGER PUNCH

2 cups light corn syrup
6 cups pineapple juice, chilled
1 teaspoon ground ginger
2 quarts quinine water, chilled
3 cups light rum or vodka (optional)
Ice cubes, lime slices

In a 6-quart punch bowl mix light corn syrup and pineapple juice until well blended. Stir in ginger, quinine and rum. Add ice cubes and garnish with lime slices. Makes 4 quarts without liquor, makes 4¾ quarts with liquor or 32½-cup servings.

PEACH FUZZ

¼ cup sugar
1-3rd cup water
¼ cup light corn syrup
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind
½ cup gin (4 ounces) optional
2 tablespoons lime juice
1 tablespoon maraschino cherry juice
2 medium ripe peaches, pitted, cut-up
10 ice cubes, crushed

Throwing a party?

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Party-giving this summer can be a breeze, with some help from the pros.

The following suggestions were gleaned from Hospitality, a restaurant industry magazine.

— Cool off with an all-salad buffet. Green, vegetable, rice, macaroni and meat salads, for instance, with a fruit salad for dessert.

— Or feast on soups, some hot, some cold. Start with Spanish gazpacho, cold tomato soup with chopped or diced raw vegetables for garnish. Serve a meat and vegetable soup as main course, Middle Eastern cucumber-yogurt soup in lieu of salad and Danish chocolate soup for dessert. If recipes for the more exotic ones aren't in your cookbooks, try the public library's cookbook collection.

No soup tureen? Substitute any large, pretty container, from a punch bowl or salad bowl to enameled Dutch ovens.

Edible Centerpieces

— Place little dishes of garnishes — crumbled bacon, minced fresh chives or parsley, whipped cream, grated cheese, popcorn and chopped egg — beside the soups they complement best.

— Make edible centerpieces for a sit-down meal. Fill a clay flowerpot with styrofoam and plant it with skewers full of fresh vegetables — green pepper chunks, cherry tomatoes, raw mushroom slices, and tasseled celery and scallions.

To make tassels, cut narrow slits in both ends of short pieces of celery and scallions; soak them in cold water in the refrigerator until the ends curl.

— For out of hand eating, serve scoops of ham salad or similar types in ice cream cones.

— Hollow out a large cabbage to make a bowl for cole slaw.

Edible Bread Basket

— Serve chopped or pureed green vegetables in hollowed out tomatoes. Mixed vegetable salad with mayonnaise dressing would be good this way, too.

— Make a bread basket for tiny sandwiches: hollow out a loaf of unsliced bread. First, slice off the top to use as a lid.

— Party pears make a spectacular looking dessert with very little effort or cost. Place canned pear halves cut side down on a platter; frost them with whipped cream cheese thinned with a little water, then cover the frosting with halved grapes.

— Frosted grapes in bunches are an edible centerpiece; little clusters make a pretty garnish for meat and poultry platters. To frost them, coat with lightly beaten egg white and sprinkle with sugar or a mixture of sugar, cinnamon and ground cardamon. Dry on a rack.

Cheese Crock

— A restaurant-style cheese crock is easy to copy. Whip a cheese spread with a little curry, then stir in chopped chutney and roasted diced almonds. Sprinkle a few almonds on top for garnish.

— Hold club sandwiches together with skewers. This idea is great for cookouts and picnics where guests often need an extra pair of hands to assemble all their food on one plate and get it safely to a table.

— Use parsley bouquets in mustard pots or small glasses or cups as centerpieces for small round tables.

— Cut barbecued spareribs into individual riblets and arange them around a platter or tray of drained canned pear halves dressed with Polynesian-style sweet and sour sauce. The sauce also makes a good dip for the ribs.

USDA revises its grade standards for dry peas

Revised grade standards for whole dry peas will become effective July 1, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has announced. The revised standards will be substantially the same as proposed in the March 21 issue of the Federal Register.

The name "dry peas" will be changed to "whole dry peas" to differentiate the commodity from split peas. Also, official graders will no longer classify dry peas by their variety name. Instead, graders will classify them as Smooth Green, Smooth Yellow, Wrinkled, Winter, or Mixed Dry Peas. At the applicant's request, however, the certificate of grade will carry the applicant's statement as to the variety of the peas.

Certain other changes were made for the purpose of clarity.

Official grading of dry peas is provided by USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, upon request and for a fee.

The revised standards are scheduled to be published in the May 29 Federal Register. Copies are available from the Grain Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, USDA, 6525 Belcrest Road, Hyattsville, Maryland 20782.

Now is the time to take advantage of fresh golden, plump apricots. The U.S. Department of Agriculture reports that most fresh apricots are marketed in June and July with a limited supply available in August and September.

To help you enjoy this delicious, vitamin A-rich fruit, here are some tips from USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service.

Apricots develop their flavor and sweetness on the tree, and should be mature but firm, when they are picked.

In buying apricots select those that are plump and juicy looking, with a uniform golden-orange color.

Ripe apricots will yield to gentle pressure on the skin.

Yellowish-green apricots are not fully ripe but will quickly ripen at room temperature.

Store ripe apricots in the refrigerator and use within 5 days.

Apricots average about 12 to a pound but this will vary according to size and variety.

Try this simple but delicious apricot dessert:

BAKED APRICOTS

12 fresh apricots, peeled
½ cup boiling water
¼ cup sugar
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons brown sugar
whipped cream garnish, optional

Halve apricots and remove pits. Arrange fruit, hollow side up, in a shallow baking dish. Combine water, sugar and lemon juice. Pour over fruit and sprinkle with brown sugar. Bake uncovered, until tender — about 20 minutes in 400 degree oven. Garnish with cream, if desired. Serves 4-6.

Stir together sugar, water, corn syrup, lemon juice and rind in small saucepan. Bring to boil over medium heat and boil 5 minutes. Cool. In blender container place lemon syrup, gin, lime juice, cherry juice, peaches and ice cubes. Blend on medium speed of blender until consistency of snow. Serve in chilled glasses with maraschino cherry and peach slices on a skewer, if desired. Makes 4 drinks.

Sues hospital over loss of his dentures

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Ronald O'Banion figures $15,250 should compensate for the "humiliation and embarassment" he suffered for 33 days after his false teeth were lost.

O'Banion filed a suit for that amount of money recently against Jewish Hospital, where his false teeth disappeared with his meal tray.

He said he had just returned from surgery, was heavily sedated and placed the dentures on a food tray before falling asleep. O'Banion said when he awoke, the tray was gone and so were his teeth.

Royalty enters the fashion world

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prince Egon von und zu Furstenberg, 28, studied investment banking all of his life so he could keep an eye on the family fortunes but one day he decided banking was like having a rock in his head and he turned men's wear designer.

He was brooding at his desk at Lazard Freres and Co., a Wall Street investment bank, when something snapped. Next thing he knew he was working days at an E.J. Korvette discount store as an as-his and her fashion show. attending classes in design at the New School at night.

It was only a short time until he was able to follow in the footsteps of his wife, Princess Diane, who started her own business five years ago and has been immensely successful as a designer. They have been separated for a year but remain good friends and recently put on a joint his and hers fashion show. Both were widely acclaimed.

The hits of his show were leather jackets in a wide variety of style and cut and in many colors, a brilliant red shirt jacket of double-faced wool, shirts and sweaters in brilliant are decor designs reminiscent of the tower on the Chrysler Building in New York and some brilliant brushed denim. Hers were for chic and flattering dresses.

Swinging Couple

Some other highlights of his collection: Cabretta leather coats cut like blazers or zippered or inlaid with knit, and in short battlejacket sizes; suede jackets with an American Indian pattern influence, sweaters with an all over turtle design for good luck, machinewoven sweaters manufactured wrong side out to give a hand made look, a brilliant array of printed sports shirts, one with an art deco design that showed an all over pattern of nudes arising from the sea against a flaming sunset.

Diane dropped her title for business reasons and so did von Furstenberg. They even took out the "von" which to Europeans denotes nobility but put it back in for esthetic and other reasons. He also dropped the "und zu" since the whole name and title is a mouthful.

The von Furstenbergs had a mild reputation for swinging and once posed nude for a New York magazine before magazines were using nude centerfolds. But von Furstenberg modestly grabbed a towel at the last minute and the magazine contented itself by showing Diane from the waist up.

The gossip columns have linked him in recent weeks with Minnie de Beauveau-Croan, granddaughter of Antenor Patino, the Bolivian tin king and one of the richest men in the world. Von Furstenberg's family includes the Fiat automobile empire and there were suggestions Egon and Minnie could join forces and produce tin lizzies.

"We're just good friends," he said of the gossip column reports. "Diane and I separated three months ago but not legally. Divorce? It's really just a trial separation and there are no lawyers yet. The children, Alexander, 4, and Tatiana, 3, are with her. We are trying out how it is to live alone after 10 years when you haven't really made up your mind what to do. Minnie? She lives in Paris."

Not a Playboy

Von Furstenberg was born in Venice, the son of Prince Tassilo von Furstenberg and Clara Agnelli, sister of the chairman of the board of the Fiat Motor Works. There was school in Venice, boarding school in Switzerland, college in Geneva where he met Diane on the third day of school and a year's service in Burundi on a sort of a Swiss peace corps observing the Watutsi and Hutu tribesmen, which was better than military service.

The von Furstenbergs came to New York six years ago and attended all the proper parties where they cut a swathe. However Egon said he never considered himself a playboy because he did not like to dance and did not have a fast car or a yacht, never showed off.

"I'm really into my work," he said. "It is fascinating to start my own company and see it grow like a child. My clothes are already in many of the big New York department stores. I always wanted to design but was told that investment banking was the only proper thing to do. It was in my head like a stone. Now I walk down the street in New York and see some one wearing one of my creations and I'm happy."

Boston costs higher than other cities

BOSTON (UPI) — It costs more to live in the Boston area than any other city in the continental United States, according to figures released by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The greater New York area ranked second. Hartford, Conn., was third.

The Bureau said an average family of four in Boston would require $14,893 to live on an "intermediate" level —$2,267 above the average of 37 other mainland cities surveyed.

Only Anchorage, Alaska, and Honolulu were more expensive with figures of $16,520 and $14,937 respectively.

The report showed the average cost of goods and services jumped 9.7 per cent between the fall of 1972 and the fall of 1973 when the survey was conducted.

The survey included taxes as well as "those goods and services making up the day-to-day necessities of life" — food, housing, transportation, clothing and medical care and other "family consumption costs."

A hypothetical family in the survey was made up of a 38-year-old husband employed full time, his "non-working" wife, a 13-year-old boy and eight-year-old girl.

Boston had the highest housing costs, the second-highest food bill and the highest personal income-tax payments, according to the report.

Living costs in the greater New York area and nearby northern New Jersey averaged $14,448. The same family in Hartford needed $13,721, the report said.

San Francisco was fourth at $13,378 and Buffalo, N.Y., was fifth at $13,223.

The 1973 Statistics showed a 12 per cent jump in food costs and a 3.2 percent increase in housing costs over 1972.

Wendell D. Macdonald, head of the Labor Department's Boston office cited the city's heavy dependence on real estate taxes, a shorter than average building season and higher construction and fuel costs as reasons for expensive housing.

Te said the necessity of importing food from outside the region accounted for the high cost of eating.

He used melon to rob a bank

CHICAGO (UPI) — Police arrested Stanley Glover recently after he allegedly robbed the Illinois State Bank armed with a half-eaten watermelon.

Police said Glover, 23, an unemployed ex-serviceman, robbed the bank of $12,000, then began distributing the money on the street. He was carrying $8,970 when apprehended, police said.

Officers said Glover got the money by threatening a teller with a "bomb" in a brown paper bag. Police said they found only the watermelon inside.

Dentist saw trouble ahead in Nixon's smile

HONOLULU (UPI) — President Nixon's problems with the Internal Revenue Service and Watergate didn't surprise Dr. Robert M. Gibson a bit.

The dentist claims he knew Nixon's presidency wouldn't be smooth once he had seen him smile.

Gibson, who contends that smiling is a basic form of body language, said he knew Nixon would defeat Sen. George McGovern for the presidency because "Nixon has a big smile, and McGovern has a rather bland one."

"Nixon's smile showed strength," Gibson said, but a "threatening cuspid, the pointy tooth three off the center shouldn't be quite as pointy as President Nixon's, "indicating to Gibson there was trouble ahead.

"A slightly rounded cuspid takes away the sharp look," Gibsos said. "It's friendlier. Nixon has a big smile, but it isn't necessarily a sincere one."

The 46-year-old dentist who specializes in capping teeth said he became interested in smiles years ago when he saw that his patients weren't displaying his work to the best advantage.

"For years I've been doing cosmetic reconstruction," Gibson said. "I can understand people covering up poor teeth, but even after the work was done, many patients still weren't showing their teeth when they smiled."

So Gibson started explaining to his patients during their treatments "how important smiles are, how they are a way of showing others the best in you."

"A good smile comes from the inside out," he said, "starting way deep down in your heart and ending in the smile in your eyes."

While capping the teeth, Gibson would tell his patients about the techniques he has developed to improve a smile. Many were pleased with the results of his advice, word spread and soon local politicians started asking Gibson for suggestions on how to improve their smiles.

"You want your smile to reflect the best in you," he said. "You can say what you want about yourself through a smile.

"At first, of course, people are very self-conscious when they practice smiling. But after a while they get the hang of it and what a difference it makes.

"I tell my patients that every morning after they've finished brushing their teeth, they should smile up a storm.

"Stand in front of the mirror, start with a small smile, and work up to a big wow of a smile," Gibson said with a big full smile lighting up his face.

"Start with a little smile, the one you use when somebody opens a door or stands aside to let you go first," Gibson said. "Make a good arc with your lips and show the tips of your upper teeth."

A basic rule of a good smile is "show your teeth," Gibson said. "People who smile without showing their teeth tend to be secretive."

Gibson recommends that during practice sessions, hold the small smile for 10 seconds, then move up to the "half smile, the 'I'm glad to see you smile.'"

Then comes the big moment, the full smile, the "you have just won a trip to Paris smile," Gibson said.

"Watch to see that you are smiling evenly, that both ends of your mouth are going up at the same angle. An uneven smile can look like a sneer."

Teeth suggest all sorts of personality traits to Gibson, who is in the midst of writing a book about smiles. Correcting or capping poor teeth, he emphasises, can convey a positive outlook where a negative impression was left on others before.

"A thin upper lip stretched over the teeth is a hostile smile," Gibson said, even though the person may not want to reveal that he is angry.

"A chipped tooth suggests aggression. Small, square teeth have done a lot of grinding and suggest a tense, determined, even stubborn person.

Gibson considers John F. Kennedy the president with the best smile, followed by Dwight Eisenhower and Franklin D. Roosevelt. The best living smilers in Gibson's opinion are Princess Grace of Monaco among women and skier Jean-Claude Killy among men.

It takes about a month for Gibson to complete a capping job, and he recommends that his patients practice smiling daily during that time.

But Gibson cautions that if a person can't learn to smile attractively in 30 days in a natural way, that he stop the exercises because he'll develop a phony smile by overtrying.

New volleyball record claimed by 24 girls

CASPER, Wyo. (UPI) — Twenty-four Casper high school girls today claimed the world's record for playing 225 consecutive hours of volleyball.

The girls passed the previous record of 168 hours last Friday set by Kirkby College of Further Education in Liverpool, England. They continued play to stay ahead of a group of Illinois students also attempting to break the record.

The marathon was started May 31 by the girls to raise $2,500 in pledges for athletic uniforms and equipment at the Natrona County, Wyo., high school.

Should you buy no-lead gasoline?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Should you buy no-lead gasoline for your car?

The question is pertinent because many service stations are already offering such gas. By July 1, under new federal regulations, it should be available to motorists in about 110,000 stations across the country.

That figures out to about two in every three stations in city areas and roughly enough other station in rural sections, according to estimates from the Environmental Protection Agency.

Stations are being required to carry the gas because 1975 model cars —which will start appearing in showrooms in September —won't run on anything else without destroying their expensive new exhaust control devices. To force the issue, these new cars will be equipped with smaller necks in the intake line under the gas cap which will fit only narrowneck nozzles on the new no-lead gas pumps.

But the new nozzles obviously will fit older cars with the standard intakes, so the question comes back to whether the driver should try no-lead gas.

The answer is that you can, in general, if your car is a 1971 model or later, up through the current '74 models. Earlier models have high compression engines requiring gasoline with more octane than the no-lead gas has.

Even that is not a hard and fast rule, however. Chrysler turned out some models in 1971 and 1972 which required an occasional tank of leaded gas to keep the engine running properly. In addition, cars tend to develop their own octane appetites with prolonged use. If there's any doubt, consult your owner's manual and your own experience.

"Regular" gas contains lead, incidentally, though not as much as "premium." The octane rating of most no-lead gasoline will be about 87 under the formula now being used on those stickers placed on the face of gas pumps. That level of octane, in general, is not sufficient for pre-'71 model cars.

There is also the matter of price to consider in no-lead gasoline. The EPA estimates it will cost about five cents more than regular. The industry thinks it will be more like two or three cents.

If an oil company is not now turning out no-lead gas, government rules allow it to charge up to the price of premium for the product once it starts offering it. Some companies already carrying it, however, are not charging premium-equivalent prices, so it is possible the pressures of the marketplace will keep the price below that of premium.

One final point: The automobile industry has been worried that people will shy away from buying '75 models because they may fear no-lead gas will be hard to find, particularly in rural areas. The EPA doesn't think there will be much of a problem. That remains to be seen, but experts believe drivers of '75 models will be able to use a few gallons of leaded gas in a pinch wthout ruining the anti-pollution device. And both EPA and the automobile industry seem to agree that next year's models will get quite a few more miles to the gallon on no-lead fuel than those of the current or past few years because of the switch to the new exhaust control device.

3 white Bengal tigers born at Cincinnati Zoo

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Three white Bengal tigers were born at the Cincinnati Zoo Thursday, raising the known population in the world to 33.

The three cubs were born to Kesari and were sired by Rawana, who died Monday of a kidney disorder. Both tigers were on loan to the Cincinnati Zoo from the National Zoo in Washington D.C.

Ed Maruska, zoo director, described the three cubs as "pink-nosed, pink-pawed, with ash grey and black stripes and icy blue eyes."

Maruska said the three cubs increased the number of white tigers in American zoos to five. The other two are in the National Zoo.

He said their color will lighten with maturity. They weighed three pounds each at birth.

U.S.-Sweden relations seem to be improving

By JOHN F. BARTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration officials hope that relations between Sweden and the United States, seriously strained in the latter days of the Vietnam war, are on the mend.

The sharp public criticism of U. S. policy in Vietnam by Sweden's outpsoken Prime Minister Olaf Palme was a constant irritant to officials here.

Relations between the two countries reached an all time low in the closing months of the war when Palme compared President Nixon's policies in Vietnam to those of Adolf Hitler in the World War II.

Dr. Jerome Hall was recalled from his post as U.S. Ambassador to Sweden and the United States asked Sweden to delay sending another ambassador here.

Now that American involvement in Vietnam has ended, a thaw in relations between Washington and Stockholm is apparent.

Officials here are suddenly recalling that, after all, Palme attended Kenyon College in Gambier, Ohio, and toured the length and breadth of the United States as a young man.

Palme has frequently stated that he obtained many of his political ideas from his observations of American life during that tour.

A recent ceremony in the White House marked what administration officials view as a turning point towards more positive relations with Sweden: President Nixon formally received the credentials of Swedish Ambassador Count Wilhelm Wachtmeister.

Neither the President nor the ambassador made any mention whatever of the recent strain in relations between the two countries. Instead, both stressed the principles that the nations have in common.

In his formal remarks, Nixon said when the contributions that American citizens of Swedish descent have made to this country are considered, "one realizes that the foundations upon which to build a lasting structure of friendship between our two countries are broad and solid."

"It will be most worthwhile for our two countries to build upon those foundations," Nixon said. "By working together in the years to come on our shared interests and concerns, not only can we revitalize our bilateral ties, but we can move ahead to find solutions to problems that will help make the world a better place in which to live."

In his remarks, Wachtmeister noted that Sweden has had strong ties to the United States since its Revolutionary War.

'Swedish - American friendship has a long history," he said. "I am glad to recall the fact that Sweden was present at the very beginning. Swedish volunteers fought in the war of indepedence."

Modern society needs spiritual nourishment

By BART KINCH

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Lewis R. Wolberg, founder and board chairman of the Postgraduate Center for Mental Health, believes that modern society is suffering from spiritual malnutrition.

"Food for the soul, the need for self-expression and creativity, is just as vital as bodily nourishment," Wolberg said recently.

The eminent psychiatrist believes that the hobby of photography is one of the best avenues available for individuals to fill this need for creative expression.

"It is the most valuable leisure time activity I know of for personal growth," he said. "When individuals take up photography, they start becoming creative naturally. When they see that they can create pleasing pictures, they want to go one and do more with their cameras.

Darkroom set up

"Our society neglects this need for self-expression and this spiritual malnutrition often manifests itself in boredom, depression, feelings of futility, pervasion, anxiety and even psychosomatic illnesses," he said.

A serious amateur photographer himself, Wolberg, with the assistance and guidance of Popular Photography magazine publisher Sidney Holtz, recently set up a research darkroom at the center, one of the world's largest mental health training and research facilities, to study how the hobby of photography contributes to personal growth.

Wolberg concurs with Holtz' view that photography has values that transcend the average hobby and they hope the research darkroom experiment will prove to have sociologcal values.

"Unlike other hobbies, with a camera you can produce a finished product that can be satisfying even if you are a beginner," Wolberg said. He also noted that "photography is sufficiently flexible so that as an individual gets more involved, he can expand into more complex dimensions which demand greater skill.

"The individual can adapt photography to his own needs and moods," Wolberg said. "And as these change, he can change his photographic activities accordingly.

"I know of no other leisure time activity that is so flexible and so suitable to people's needs."

Wolberg, clinical professor of psychiatry at New York University Medical School, was criticial of public school systems where, he said, "creativity is somehow hammered out of children early in life.

"It has often been observed," he said, "how wonderfully creative children are in the early grades of elementary school. But by the time they reach the third grade, they've been trained to be just like dowels."

Experimental laser process has scientists both excited, fearful

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — An experimental process known as laser isotope enrichment has nuclear scientists and government leaders both a little bit excited and fearful.

Successful development of the process would represent what one physicist has labeled a "staggering advance" in obtaining cheap nuclear reactor fuel.

It would also mean more countries could easily acquire enough enriched uranium to build their own nuclear weapons.

A group of Washington State University chemistry students plans to do preliminary research work this summer on what would be the process's key component—the dye laser.

The dye laser, like other lasers, emits a fine beam of light, but is unique in that it can be tuned to very precise frequencies through the use of a dye solution.

"We're going to study the properties of dry lasers," says Dr. M.W. Windsor, chairman of the WSU chemistry department. "By learning more about their behavior we will aid in their possible use in isotope enrichment."

Windsor will supervise a handful of students during their 10-week research project, which will result in a report available to scientists doing more involved research on laser isotope enrichment. He emphasizes that WSU students will not themselves be attempting laser enrichment.

At present, a process known as gaseous diffusion is used to enrich the fissionable istope U235, which makes up only 0.7 per cent of natural uranium.

This concentration must be increased to between 2 and 3 per cent for use in conventional fission reactors.

Diffusion, however, is a remnant of World War II, explains Windsor, and requires massive structures to house the necessary equipment and equally massive amounts of power to operate it.

The diffusion plant at Oak Ridge, Tenn., for example, has cascades of diffusion cells filling buildings as large as 60 acres and a half-mile long.

The three diffusion plants in the U.S. consume about 6,000 megawatts or about 1.5 per cent of the ration's total electrical output.

The new laser process would reduce the cost of obtaining fissionable U235 by as much as one half.

Basically, the process involves use of tunable dye lasers, which can theoretically excite atoms or molecules of one isotope of a particular element without exciting other isotopes.

The excited isotope—in this case U235—could be ionized and separated by electrical or magnetic forces from the remaining natural uranium, says Windsor.

Prisons improving

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

Former Attorney General Richard Kleindienst, the first Cabinet alumnus since 1929 to be convicted of a crime, recently escaped serving a jail sentence because of a lenient judge.

Long before he had any legal problems of his own, Kleindienst showed a special interest in prison reform. Some of his former colleagues who served in the Nixon Administration and became entangled in the Watergate affair may reap the benefits of his efforts. When he was in office, Kleindienst called prison reform "one of the most important social and law-enforcement programs of the '70s."

In 1969, the Federal Government started a 10-year program to improve the federal prisons. Fortunately, for those already convicted in the Watergate conspiracy, the Federal prisons have already taken on a new look.

The fear of homosexual molestation and brutality is a major concern of most men, especially young men, faced with serving a prison term. Because Federal prisons now emphasize privacy, the dangers of homosexual attack or rape are much less than in old-style prisons where, according to former prisoner and labor leader, James Hoffa, homosexuality was rampant and condoned by many prison guards. Much of the pervasive fear in prisons results from homosexual jealousies that often lead to stabbings and murders. Increased privacy affords a place of retreat where tempers can cool. If violence is to be avoided, this is essential in any situation where there is overcrowding and confinement.

While he was Attorney General, Kleindienst encouraged volunteer efforts to help inmates and former offenders.

Partly as a result of this, many community organizations, including the Junior Chamber of Commerce, have established in-prison chapters. The Junior Chamber of Commerce has over 250 prison chapters, with 13,000 dues-paying members inside, and thousands of Jaycees outside ready to come to their aid if needed.

In a statement made while he was in office, Kleindienst said of prisoners and those accused of criminal offenses, ". . . the walls of prejudice crumble if we get to know them (the prisoners) as flesh-and-blood individuals." He may have been thinking of this when tears of gratitude and relief streamed down his face as Judge Hart gave him a 30-day jail sentence and a $100 fine and promptly suspended both penalties.

LIKE THIS — Julie Bowser, center, gives a few pointers to Julie Young, 7, left, and Sylvia Young, 11, of La Verne as she explains to them plans for the YWCA Day Camp opening in July.

Registrations open for 'Y' camp period

A YWCA Day Camp for girls will be held in July at Claremont Collegiate School on Padua Avenue in Claremont under the sponsorship of the YWCA of Greater Pomona Valley.

The day camp will be open to all girls, 6-12 years of age, who live in Claremont, La Verne, Pomona, Upland and surrounding towns. Hours will be 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and will include such activities as swimming instruction, tennis instruction, creative arts and crafts, table tennis, dance and drama, singing and crochet.

There will be four one-week sessions. Dates are July 8-12, July 15-19, July 22-26, July 29-Aug. 2. There will be a fee for each session.

Miss Susan Bowser, a graduate of La Verne College, will direct the camp.

Inquiries and registration may be made through the YWCA, 207 E. Monterey Ave., Pomona 91767.

Camperships will be available through the YWCA and applications for that aid will be available at the YWCA.

Vacation tips

Whether your vacation will be 100 miles away from home or 5,000, you still must do certain things before you leave.

Use your imagination. What would happen if you were burglarized or if the house caught fire? Does a neighbor have your key? Do the police know you are away?

Have you stopped the delivery of your papers? Newspapers allowed to pile up are an invitation to burglars, as is uncollected mail. If your local paper is going to report your trip (and this is always news), suggest that they do it upon your return rather than before you go so that your absence is not advertised.

When you leave the house, be sure that all household appliances that heat up are disconnected. Put your valauable jewelry and important papers in your safe deposit, and don't leave valuable knickknacks within view of windows. Don't trust locked closets or drawers—these are an invitation to pilferage. It is better to leave your fur coat with your cleaner.

If you make your house really difficult to break into, burglars are discouraged. Discuss with a locksmith your present arrangement as to door locks and window guards. Make the house as secure as possible—then go with peace of mind.

Don't overlook the garage. Many burglars make a specialty of things like lawn mowers and tractors in poorly guarded garages.

Most prowlers are afraid of light. Consider an electronic eye thet turns a lamp or two on at dusk. It uses little energy and is an excellent safeguard. Don't leave notes saying when you'll be back, although you can write something like this to put on the kitchen table: "Joe, there is a steak in the freezer for you. We'll be back soon, but you can fix it yourself." You could also add, "Uncle Ned is asleep on the top floor, so please be quiet."

Some people leave the radio on all the time they are gone. This uses energy but also makes it seem that somebody is in the house, so you have to weigh the value of this ploy against its extravagance.

Don't draw your shades or shutter your windows while you are gone as this is a "no one home" announcement to anybody going by.

If possible, have a neighbor check your house once a day to see that no one seems to have been attempting a break-in. Try to get such a person to come at different times, not always the same time, in case anyone is watching.

Do you have suggestions on how houses are best guarded? Letters, please.

"DEAR MISS VANDBERBILT: In a recent column you did not completely answer a question. What do you think about women guests taking their handbags into the living room instead of leaving them with their coats? —Mrs. E.R., St. Paul, Minn."

In Latin America it is considered a terrible breach of etiquette to take your handbag with you, rather than leave it with your coat. Presumably, this might indicate to the hostess that you don't trust her servants.

In this country, however, I feel it is no breach of etiquette to take your handbag along with you, but you should not clutter up the dinner table with it unless it is very, very small indeed. Most women either keep their handbags in their laps or put them on the floor next to their chairs—but not where anyone will fall over them.

From a practical standpoint, it is convenient to have the bag in case one wants to get a handkerchief or something else. Also, many women who smoke prefer to use their own brand and, increasingly, hostesses are not offering cigarettes at the table.

Clubwomen!

Special forms are due

Valley Women, a supplement of the Progress-Bulletin highlighting activities off all women's clubs in the valley, will be published July 23.

Madame President will your club be included?

Fact sheets, sent out May 16 to club presidents or publicity chairmeen, are due by the end of this week if they are to be included in the special edition.

If any club has not received the form to be filled out, an officer of the organization should contact the Progress-Bulletin women's editor, Mrs. Mary Remillard, at the newspaper, 622-1201, this week.

The annual edition will carry interviews with the four Woman Achievers for the valley who were selected rently by a panel of judges, in addition to the stories of almost 200 women's clubs.

Match colors

It's match, not mix, your colors for fall clothing; look for combinations of burgundy, claret and grape; rust, cinnamon, burnt orange and terra cotta; or loden, olive, forest and moss greens, to name a few.
